TRIBUNE WRITER SEES A CRUISER FIGHT OFF DEATH

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 7TH FLEET IN SOUTH CHINA SEA, Jan. 15 [Delayed].—The men in faded blues and khakis sprawled on the cruiser's forward deck in the lee of No. 3 turret, whose big guns provided shade from the sun and security from raiding planes. We are part of the American fleet patrol in these waters.

Loudspeakers screeched. Every one scrambled, one eye on the sky afar where Jap planes maneuvered.

The flight broke again and again. Planes separated into all corners of the sky. The Japs like to attack singly.

Watch One Plane.

We watched the planes one by one. But our eyes returned most frequently to one, a dive bomber. For an unexplainable reason we knew this plane was our special enemy.

Even with our bow, the plane climbed and turned. When it straightened its course led straight across our bridge. In a steep dive the plane came.

"Emergency speed ahead," ordered Capt. Jack Duncan, Tulsa, Okla. In seconds the ship was racing thru the South China sea.

Ship Bursts into Flame.

"Open fire," shouted the gunner officer, Lt. Comdr. Hugh Hanna, Rock Island, Ill. The whole side of our ship burst into flame and smoke. From the muzzles bits of fluff floated down like seeds from cottonwood trees in midsummer.

The deck rang with empty shell casings. Men's shirts turned dark with perspiration.

Forty millimeter cannon added their bark to the din of the big guns, even and regular like the tick of some monstrous clock. Marines like Sgt. George Valone, 6518 S. Ashland av.; Lawrence Burns, 7943 Lafayette av., and Tom MacBurney, 7012 Clyde av., all of Chicago, manned these.

The plane grew bigger and bigger. Now it was inside 5-inch gun range. Long strings of tracers converged on the plane, 500 yards off and coming at 300 miles an hour.

Captain Changes Course.

You thought you could hear the roar of the motor and the whine of the wings. It was now or never. In a moment the bombs would drop. At an altitude that would barely carry the plane over the ship, the Jap couldn't miss. A Negro mess boy running with ammunition crashed into an officer and sent him sprawling.

"Hard left," the captain shouted. The change in course might save us. The sudden swerve knocked one gunner off balance. He reeled backwards. His knees caught the lifelines. He somersaulted head over heels overboard and vanished into the foam. We circled later hunting for him, but in vain.

Guns Knock Off a Wing.

Just when it seemed too late, at the instant when the men in near-by ships were saying, "There goes the cruiser," our guns knocked off one wing.

The plane nosed over out of control. It barely cleared the ship between the masts, scattering bits of metal as it went, and splashed into the water 30 feet to port, carrying its bombs with it harmlessly. The wing fluttered into the sea on the other side.

"Good going," said Rear Adm. Russell S. Berkey, Goshen, Ind. "Some shooting when you split the plane in two and put half on each side of the ship," the captain said.

The guns died suddenly. There was a vast silence, ponderous stillness in the wake of death.

"Did you pray for us?" some one asked the chaplain. To him, who just before the attack had held services with men kneeling in a cave walled by gun turrets, it was like asking a gunner if he had fired.

"Guns are mighty handy, but it's the Lord who always looks after us," he said.

BULLETIN.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17 (Wednesday)—(AP).—Super Fortresses raided Formosa today in their third strike against this mighty Japanese island bastion since Jan. 9.

(Map on page 6.)

MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Luzon, Jan. 17 [Wednesday]—(AP).—One week after landing in Lingayen gulf, an American spearhead was 32 miles on the way to Manila Monday and still rolling southward virtually unchecked on land or in the air.

However, on the left flank of the broadened front the first Japanese counter-attack of the invasion was reported in the Pozorrubio sector on Sunday. Gen. MacArthur's bulletin today said the blow was repulsed.

Official statements located the deepest American penetration as on the central of three main north-south highways, 45 road miles from Lingayen and 83 from Manila.

Sever Main Highway.

In the left sector the Yanks seized Binalonan, five miles above Urdaneta, thus severing the main north-south highway at two points.

"Farther north our troops closed in on Pozorrubio, repulsing an enemy night counter-attack," said Gen. MacArthur. "Our forces maintained pressure on the enemy east of Damortis. This and an envelopment move cut the road at his rear three miles west of Rosario. Heavy fighting in this sector continues."

American progress toward Pozorrubio was slowed but not halted by the Japanese counter-attacks. Small tanks were used by the enemy. Yank guns knocked out one "tankette," and others withdrew.

United States patrols in the northwestern sector spotted other enemy tanks, but the Japanese retreated.

[The British radio said yesterday "the long expected Japanese counter-attack against Gen. MacArthur's forces on Luzon has begun. A powerful Japanese force, grouped in the hills on the eastern flank of the American bridgehead, has opened an attack." The Americans are now 34 miles inland, it was added.]

The Yank column which reached Camiling, 30 miles south of Lingayen, on Sunday was working its way southward against nothing stronger than an occasional harassing patrol.

Probe Cabaruan Hills.

United States troops drove wedges across main highways of Luzon's central plain while patrols pushed ahead in the center to reach Moncada, 10 miles southeast of captured Bayambang, on the main road to Manila. At Moncada the Yanks

Two New MacArthur Stories

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—A shore party from a navy attack cargo ship was unloading its cargo on the Leyte beachhead when a small landing boat approached. A signalman, charged with keeping his area clear of other craft, shouted: "Get that boat out of here."

Ignoring the order, the war department related today, the boat proceeded toward the beach. An army lieutenant shouted for an amphibious "duck" to come out and pick up the stranded passengers. An assistant beachmaster yelled back: "Walk in, the water's fine."

The ramp on the landing craft dropped and out stepped Gen. MacArthur into the waist deep surf. He waded out, greeted the shore party with a smile, and remarked: "Good morning. How're things going?"

WITH THE U. S. 6TH ARMY, Luzon, Jan. 15 (AP).—Gen. MacArthur walked thru the wreckage of the Damortis railroad station with an inspection party today and paused to honor a second lieutenant.

To Irving L. Peterson, 23, Fergus Falls, Minn., he presented the distinguished service cross. On the night of Jan. 13 Peterson had led a demolition patrol into the then enemy held railroad center and ambushed 13 Japanese guards at an ammunition dump.

MacArthur told the lieutenant he was proud of his performance. Pausing beside a monument, the general asked: "What's this?" Peterson said: "A Nipponese monument."

"Well, blow it up," MacArthur said, smiling, "and put your own there."

VISITOR AT THE BACK DOOR

FINE 2 BRITISH GIRLS WHO FLEW CHANNEL IN U. S. PLANE TO SHOP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Cecilia Katherine Johnstone, 28, and Diana Nixon, 30, daughters of the late earl of Cowley, were fined $242 and costs each today for their unauthorized flight to Brussels in a plane piloted by Col. Glen Myer of the United States army air forces. Col. Myer was recalled to the United States after the episode.

The prosecution made public a statement in which Cecilia had said she thought "it would be amusing" to go to Brussels and suggested to Myer that her sister come too. They left Nov. 14 and after landing in Belgium motored to Brussels for a shopping tour in a jeep taken over in the plane.

Cecilia said she had asked Myer whether the flight was an offense but that he had replied the American forces were a law unto themselves.

Burt Standish, 'Merriwell's' Creator, Dies

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 16 [Special].—Gilbert Patten, 78, whose fiction character, "Frank Merriwell," thrilled millions of youngsters with his heroic rescues of maidens in distress and his phenomenal ability to pull athletic contests out of the fire at the last minute, died in suburban Vista today.

Gilbert Patten.

Patten, who lived with his son, Harvan, wrote under the pen name of Burt L. Standish and was considered one of the world's most prolific writers of dime novel fiction. He wrote a 20,000 word book every week for 18 years and his life time production was estimated at 40 million words.

A checkered and none too successful career as machinist, weekly newspaper publisher and manager of a professional baseball team preceded Patten's rise to fame on the exploits of "Frank Merriwell," his brother "Dick," and later, "Frank Merriwell Jr."

Invented Hero's Name.

At the age of 30 Patten was offered a chance to write "on approval" for Tip Top Weekly, "The Boy from the West." In 1895 the magazine chose him to write a series about an adventurous schoolboy athletic type.

Patten devised the name of his hero by taking "the three qualities I most wanted him to embody —frank and merry in nature and well in body and mind—and made the name Frank Merriwell."

"Frank Merriwell, or First Days at Fardale," which came off the presses in 1896, was followed by "Frank Merriwell at Yale" and numerous others in the series.

Ran Away from Home.

"Merriwell," a paragon of manliness thru prep school and college, became a real character in the minds of millions of youths. Patten received $50 a week in his first contract for the series, a figure which was tripled before he quit writing them.

Patten was born Oct. 25, 1866, in Corinna, Me. A gangling, shy youth, he ran away from home at 16 because he disliked school. A passion for baseball, which later emerged in his stories, led him to manage a team at Camden, Me., where Bill Carrigan, later a Boston Red Sox star, was a player. Patten published the weekly paper, Corinna Owl, in 1888, but he sold the paper shortly afterward and increased his fiction writing.

WOULDN'T TAKE NIGHT SHIFT, SO CIO STRIKER GETS NEW ONE: TO 1-A

Cleveland, O., Jan. 16 [Special].—The CIO worker who last week precipitated what was described as Cleveland's most obstructive strike since the start of the war, because he disliked being transferred to a night shift, today was deprived of his occupational deferment from the draft and was reclassified from 2-B to 1-A.

The employe is Victor Stemberger, 29, a boiler operator for the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company and a union steward in the plant for the CIO Utility Workers' Organizing committee.

In support of his protest against night work, 400 CIO coal passers at the light company walked out last Friday. Their unauthorized strike so reduced the company's power output that the army took over the system the following day to forestall a threatened paralysis of Cleveland's entire war production.

Stemberger, father of two daughters, had received a six month occupational deferment last Dec. 28. His reclassification was ordered by local selective service board No. 16.

U. S. 1ST AND 3D ARMIES LINKED AT HOUFFALIZE

British Open Drive North of Aachen.

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Jan. 16 (AP).—The British 2d army smashed eastward in a new offensive near the German border north of Aachen today, exactly a month after the start of the Germans' Belgian breakthru. During the first hours the Tommies made some progress against moderate resistance and their offensive was continuing.

This switch to the initiative by Gen. Eisenhower's allied armies came as American forces in Belgium captured the highway hub of Houffalize, virtually ironing out the Nazis' salient into the Ardennes, and made other gains in Luxemburg and in Germany. The United States 1st army also drove on against St. Vith, last major communications center left to the enemy in this sector.

Armored units of Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army made contact today with Lt. Gen. Hodges' army troops in Houffalize.

Still Some Mopping Up.

First army patrols entered the town last night, but it was the 3d army's tanks which did most of the work of clearing the highway hub today. The process of mopping up southwest of the town remained incomplete, yet for all practical purposes the 12th army group was reunited along a north-south front.

Thus the disruption of the command of Lt. Gen. Bradley, which was one of the major achievements of the German drive, has been nullified exactly a month after the German attack.

Other elements of the 3d army were on the move inside Germany south of the bulge, where they captured Borg in a new two mile thrust east of the Moselle river despite enemy counter-attacks.

Strike in Morning Fog.

The British struck in a morning fog north of Sittard, which is 10 miles west of Geilenkirchen and 14 miles south of Roermond, and were smashing into a German held triangle between the Maas [Meuse] and Roer rivers. An artillery barrage preceded the attack.

The blow contained an element of surprise, and was aimed at powerful defenses which the Nazis had been building since October. A sudden thaw had covered the snow-covered Dutch roads with slush.

Sittard is in the narrow Maastricht appendix of Holland between Germany and Belgium.

The German salient, against which Field Marshal Montgomery's forces were driving, thrusts sharply into allied lines just north of Sittard, which is 18 miles northwest of Aachen. During the last fortnight the Nazis have made several strong local attacks there in an effort to extend their defensive lines. All were repulsed.

American 1st army units were within six miles of St. Vith, key en-

Radom Seized; New Offensive Gains 38 Miles

LONDON, Jan. 17 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Two great Russian army groups poured like a Red flood thru broken Nazi defenses on the Polish plain south of Warsaw today, reaching within 38 miles of the German border.

Gathering speed as it went, the winter offensive recorded gains of 30 to 38 miles on a twisting battle front more than 200 miles long from Grojec, 25 miles southwest of Warsaw, down to Slomniki, 12 miles north of the historic citadel of Krakow.

Premier Stalin in two orders of the day disclosed that besides the 1st Ukraine army group that began the offensive Jan. 12, the powerful 1st White Russian group leaped into the assault Jan. 14 and in three days advanced from the Vistula river 38 miles on a 75 mile wide front.

Capture Radom.

The 1st White Russian group, commanded by Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, with at least 44 generals under him, sealed its drive with the capture of Radom, powerful German fortress 55 miles south of Warsaw, Stalin's orders disclosed as Moscow's saluting cannon roared.

The regular late night war bulletin broadcast from Moscow announced that troops of the 1st Ukraine front, led by Marshal Ivan S. Konev, captured more than 700 additional Polish towns Tuesday, racing within 38 miles of the border of German Silesia at Rokitno and within 40 miles at many points.

Drive on Stronghold.

Konev's men, besides reaching within 12 miles of Krakow, seat of Germany's government-general for Poland, took Koniecpol, only 23 miles east of the stronghold of Czestochowa, Poland's "holy city."

Moscow was silent on the German high command's acknowledgment that the Russians also were pushing a full scale offensive in East Prussia and had taken the railway city of Schlossberg, 18 miles inside the border. Altogether, the Germans said the Russians now were on the offensive in 11 sectors.

The Russians mentioned only the two interlocking major drives in Poland and the continuing cleanup in Budapest, where 120 additional blocks were captured Tuesday and the dwindling and encircled enemy garrison lost another 3,160 as prisoners. The Russians now hold 4,300 square blocks of the 4,500 that make up the Hungarian capital.

Drive in "Full Swing."

A dispatch from Moscow last night said "the grand Red army offensive aimed at liberation of Poland and carrying the war into Germany was in full swing thru the vast snow covered areas of the longest land front in the world."

It added that the German army already was "so badly hurt that it must yield considerable ground almost immediately."

In support of this prediction the soviet announcement said that troops of the 1st Ukraine front had swept across the Pilica river line in southern Poland on a front 32 miles wide, "permitting the enemy no chance of organizing a defense on it."

A German military spokesman, quoted by Swedish correspondents in Berlin, admitted late last night that the Russians had smashed a deep defensive system in Poland and declared that the Germans must establish a new front "at a rather great distance" west of the present battle lines.

F.D.R. GRABBING POWER, SENATE GROUP WARNS

Pushes Its Probe of 3,600 'Directives.'

BY LELAND FORRESTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—The Roosevelt administration has been grabbing powers of congress thru directives that deal with everything from toy bean shooters to the seizure of a mail order house doing no war work, the senate judiciary committee charged today.

The committee declared that the directives, some of them issued without constitutional basis, at times have misinterpreted congress' aims, and the public interest requires a determination of the extent to which the nation is falling away from constitutional government.

3,600 Executive Orders.

The charges were made in a report which the committee filed to bolster its request that the senate grant an additional $10,000 to enable a subcommittee to finish an investigation of the constitutional or statutory authority behind the thousands of executive directives issued under the Roosevelt administrations since 1933. President Roosevelt alone has issued more than 3,600 executive orders, the report asserted, and added that "some" of these "have no constitutional or statutory basis."

The report, in mentioning the beanshooters, apparently referred to a recent war agency ruling which barred merchants in a west coast city from selling the toys when boys discovered that dried beans when used as ammunition could cause great discomfiture to adult residents of the town. Bean supplies were rapidly depleted and the agency stepped in and stopped sale of the toys.

The mail order house alluded to obviously was Montgomery Ward & Co. of Chicago, properties of which recently were taken over by the army for the second time in less than a year. Congress investigated the first seizure, and there have been congressional denunciations of the current seizure.

Cite Agricultural Clash.

In asking for the additional funds, the report cited a legislative and executive clash over the functions of the department of agriculture. It observed that the functions of the department were fixed by law. But the president, by executive orders, shifted many of the department's powers and duties to the war food administration, the report charged.

Such clashes as these between congressional statutes and executive orders are continuing, the report declared.

The intent of congress as expressed in legislation has at various times been "misinterpreted in the issuance of various executive orders and departmental regulations and directives," the report asserted. "Our government is becoming more and more a government by directive rather than a government of laws."

It added that the public interest makes it necessary to find out "how much the United States is departing from constitutional government."

Norse Capture German Air Base

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP).—Norwegian troops have opened their first big attack against the Germans, advancing 80 miles in extreme northern Norway and capturing one of the two most important Nazi air bases in the region. This success was announced by the Norwegian high command tonight.

Operating under the command of Col. A. H. Dahl, hero of Narvik, the Norwegians drove over the barren, ice sheathed wastes of Finnmark and gained positions south of Porsanger fjord. Banak air field at the base of the fjord was captured.

The air field was described by Norwegian officials as equal in importance to the one at Kirkenes. It was one of two bases from which the Germans launched air attacks on allied convoys bound for Russia. Russian forces previously had taken the Kirkenes airdrome.

The Germans were left with a small air field at Alta, in West Finnmark, as an advance base, and with the nearest major base at Bardofoss, south of Tromso, 200 miles from Porsanger fjord.

Norwegian military sources here said the Norwegians advanced inland over the Tana River valley and thence westward to the Skoganvarre district, 18 miles south of Porsanger fjord. Clad in white parkas and wearing skis, the Norwegians drove across some of the most difficult terrain in northern Norway, twice making mountain crossings.

The assault came only two months after the first contingents of Norwegians had invaded their country and joined Russian forces which had driven the Germans back to the Tana valley. The Norwegians have freed about one-half of Finnmark.

SHIVERING YANKS IN PARIS LONG TO BE NEAR FRONT

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Paris today is a city of 3,500,000 shivering, uncomfortable French, who live in strange contrast to the Belgians and Dutch many miles closer to the front lines.

After a few hours sampling the hospitality here, soldiers talk longingly of Holland and Belgium, where, not far behind the lines, there are fresh eggs, milk, butter, coal, and hot water, commodities which are almost nonexistent here.

Those who try souvenir hunting can get a fine sweater [but, after all, it's only a sweater] for $65. Ordinary scarves are $20 a copy and flimsy women's underwear is a bargain at $45.

F. D. R. LAYS WHIP ON CONGRESS TO DRAFT WORKERS

Ignores Opposition of Industry and Labor.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—In the face of mounting opposition from the ranks of both industry and labor, President Roosevelt moved today to crack the whip on congress for prompt enactment of a compulsory labor draft law.

Maj. Gen. Hershey.

The President summoned congressional leaders to the White House this morning to demand immediate action on a pending draft labor bill, even as Philip Murray, head of the administration favored CIO, was denouncing the proposal before a house committee as wholly unnecessary and a "detriment to the program."

Later, at his news conference, Mr. Roosevelt announced he will send a message to congress, probably tomorrow, emphasizing what he called the extreme need for such a law.

Meets Military Chiefs.

Those at the earlier White House meeting included Rep. May [D., Ky.] and Sen. Thomas [D., Utah], chairman of the house and senate military affairs committee, together with Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Adm. King, commander in chief of the navy.

Murray's statement, before the house military committee, followed similar opposition yesterday from the AFL, which charged the draft measure is sought to cover up New Deal bungling of man power.

Meanwhile the National Association of Manufacturers, recognized spokesman for industry, said in a statement today that the proposed law would "straitjacket" industry and labor, and proposed that alleged man power shortages be solved by voluntary coöperation of industry, labor, and government.

The President told reporters the need for the compulsory labor law, which he demanded two weeks ago in his annual message to congress, is extreme because more people are needed both in war production and the army and navy.

Backed by Marshall, King.

He said he would send with his forthcoming message letters from Gen. Marshall and Adm. King urging adoption of the measure.

Reminded that Murray, whose CIO is credited with swinging a fourth term for Mr. Roosevelt, was opposing the compulsory law, the President asked whether Murray had offered an alternative. Told the CIO leader suggested that industrial and labor leaders could solve man power problems voluntarily, Mr. Roosevelt said he did not think that would bring results.

Murray told the house group that so called labor shortages in war work are due, not to lack of man power, but to shifts in military demands and lack of planning by the army and navy and other procurement agencies in placing orders.

Virtually all actual labor deficiencies can be met, he said, by local recruitment or placement of war orders in areas of labor surpluses. The N. A. M. statement expressed similar views.

Aimed at May Bill.

Murray's testimony was directed specifically at a pending bill, authored by Chairman May [D., Ky.] of the house committee, which would control the jobs of all men aged 18-45. But he explained he was equally opposed to any broader legislation covering all working men and women.

The President did not say whether he will indorse the May bill or repeat his earlier demand for a broader measure. The May bill would forbid men 18-45 from leaving essential jobs without permission from draft boards and would require all those in that age group to take any job designated by local boards.

Meanwhile, the administration's new policy of drafting previously deferred farm workers brought a mass protest on Capitol hill today from more than 100 farm state congressmen, who charged the move has struck a body blow at vitally needed food production.

The congressmen called upon Draft Director Maj. Gen. Hershey, who was summoned to the meeting, to modify his recent order, which has been interpreted by local boards as calling for the draft of all able-bodied farmers under 26 years of age. There are 350,000 now deferred in this group.

Rep. Lemke [R., N. D.], chairman of the meeting, charged the draft order violates the Tydings amendment, designed to protect food output by requiring deferment of necessary farmers.

Accused in Murder

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

MRS. ELIZABETH M. JONES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—A blonde young British strip-tease dancer today accused an American paratrooper of shooting to death a London taxi driver as the couple's trial for murder opened in Old Bailey court.

The girl, Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, 18, said in a written statement that when she complained against the shooting to handsome Pvt. Karl Gustav Hulten of Boston, and asked how he could commit the "cold blooded murder," he replied, "People in my profession haven't time to think what they do."

George E. Heath, the taxi driver, was slain in his cab last Oct. 6, robbed of $28 and his body thrown in a ditch, the prosecution asserted. Hulten insisted in a statement, which his counsel fought in vain to keep from being admitted as evidence, that he wouldn't have been mixed up in the slaying if it hadn't been for the girl's insistence that they take a taxi instead of going for a walk as he had suggested.

The trial marks the first time an American soldier has faced a capital charge in Old Bailey.

CHIANG PLACES POLITICS ABOVE WAR, HOUSE TOLD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—A dark picture of allied prospects in China was given the house today by Rep. Mansfield [D., Mont.], who reported that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and his Communist opponents are "more interested in preserving their respective parties than they are in carrying on the war against Japan."

However, he said that the United States is committed to support Chiang and his government.

Mansfield, an expert in far eastern affairs, spent last November and December in China on instructions of President Roosevelt. He gave congress a 5,000 word report on his mission which stressed impending disaster unless the rival political forces can be reconciled.

Fighting Bishop Pleads for Tolerance by French

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Pierre Theas, militant Catholic bishop of Montauban, whom the Germans imprisoned for his defense of Jews, is now appealing for tolerance among the French, with special reference to anti-clericalism. The Montauban city council having voted cancellation of all financial aid to church schools, the bishop has sent the councilors a letter of protest.

RESHUFFLE JOB PRIORITIES FOR NEW DRAFT CALL

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—To speed the drafting of 200,000 industrially deferred men in the 26 to 30 age group in the next six months, the war man power commission today announced a new job priorities guide for the nation's draft boards to govern order of inductions.

The new guide is based on the list of 35 essential industry categories, established Feb. 25, 1944. To facilitate the latest draft program, the new guide creates a new category of critical industries.

Roughly one-third of the several hundred occupations in the 35 job categories are listed as critical. The remaining two-thirds continue on the essential list but drop in deferment status.

The new classification of critical jobs is designed to protect key men in the most important war and war supporting industries. These are not to be inducted until men of the essential class have been called.

War Production First.

For the most part all jobs contributing generally to the production of war materials were listed as critical. Some civilian activities supporting war production were placed in this listing. Other civilian activities, no matter how highly regarded, were retained in the essential class.

During the week Selective Service Director Hershey is expected to issue instructions to draft boards for the induction of the 26 to 30 year olds based on the new WMC guide.

These instructions for the 26 to 30 age group are expected to call first for induction of all those not employed in industries on the essential list. Second, it is expected, the call will be for replaceable men in essential but not critical industries to be inducted. The third call will be for replaceable men in critical industries. The fourth step would be to call all men in essential industries and the last step to call all men in the critical industry category.

200,000 to Face Call.

It is estimated that there are 800,000 deferred men in the 26 to 30 age group. It is proposed to call 200,000 of these among the 900,000 men to be drafted before July 1.

The new guide made no attempt to indicate relative importance of various jobs in the 35 categories except to say that all technical, scientific and research personnel engaged in any of the industries are to be regarded as working in critical activities regardless of whether or not the industry is designated as critical or essential.

In only seven of the 35 categories were all jobs listed as critical. These divisions covered the production of aircraft and aircraft parts; ships, boats, and parts; ordnance and accessories; ammunition, metal shapes and forgings for essential products; machinery and essential rubber products.

Four Industries Not Critical.

Four categories failed to place a single job in the critical list: Agriculture and commercial fishing; production of apparel for home front purposes, and finishing of essential metal products.

In failing to include government office holders in the critical listing, WMC officials explained that government personnel employed in establishments included in essential activities should be considered according to the priority given the activity in which they are engaged.

Mining of coal, iron, copper, lead, zinc, and mercury were listed as critical.

Newspaper Jobs Not "Critical."

Work on newspapers, press associations, and news syndicates was continued in the essential classification. This means that newspaper men 26 thru 29 will be called in the draft ahead of registrants classified in critical occupations. In the communications category, which includes newspapers, the only critical ratings were given to producers of military and naval charts and maps, instructional and technical manuals, and radio, cable, telephone and telegraph workers.

In the category of educational services only one division, the United States maritime service training program, was given critical rating.

Marital Trouble

MRS. GLORIA HILMER.

Mrs. Gloria Hilmer, 31, of 5326 Winthrop av., a former model, posed in Circuit court yesterday in the little upper garment she was wearing one night last June when her husband's detectives found her with a soldier in a room in the Morrison hotel. The detectives said she was wearing a navy blue brassiere.

"You can see it is not a brassiere, but a halter, such as men can see on women at any beach in the summer," Mrs. Hilmer told the court, after she loosened her silver fox wrap and opened her plaid silk blouse.

Judge Feinberg granted a divorce to her husband, Martin, 36, a navy Seabee, on his charge of adultery. Hilmer, who is in the Pacific, was represented by Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker. The judge, noting that Mrs. Hilmer's "outfit was sufficiently abbreviated to show her abdomen and her back," held that her presence in the hotel room with a strange soldier at a late hour constituted sufficient circumstantial evidence.

Court Exiles Boy Who Operated Cat Swindle

Richard Todd, 16, of 2227 Bissell st., who sold alley cats to Northwestern university medical school for $2 each, then altered vouchers so he could collect larger sums of money, was sent yesterday by Judge Frank H. Bicek in Juvenile court to live with an aunt and uncle in West Virginia. "I won't ever do another bad thing if you let me go," Richard pleaded. Judge Bicek smiled and complied.

BIG STEEL PLANT LACKS WORKERS TO RUN 2D SHIFT

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

For lack of 861 workers at the Republic Steel corporation's big plant at 116th st. and Burley av. tens of thousands of American soldiers and sailors some months hence may lack guns, ammunition, tanks, and other essential equipment, high ranking army and navy officers said yesterday during a tour of the plant by newspaper writers. The purpose of the tour was to inform the public of the plant's desperate need for more workers.

"It is tragic that we cannot utilize the plant to the fullest to provide munitions for our fighting men," said Col. John Slezak, chief of the Chicago ordnance district. "Here we have a 90 million dollar plant paid for out of the taxpayers' money to make the steel which is so essential to our fighting forces. We should have all the steel the plant is capable of making, but the labor force employed is sufficient for only one shift."

Guns in Transit Win No Battles.

Col. Slezak said that the ordnance district is pressing munitions makers in the Chicago district to the utmost to turn out all the guns, shells, bombs, and other equipment they can make, but without the necessary steel the manufacturers cannot meet the requests.

"It is vital that we have ammunition and equipment at the right place at the right time," Col. Slezak said. "Ammunition and guns in transit are of no use to the troops ordered to make an attack. We need desperately many items on our critical list, including many sizes of shells. We want these items to be delivered to the various war theaters so they will be ready for use in the campaigns planned by our staffs.

"We simply do not have enough of the kind of steel we want to fill the ordnance orders for the future."

Cannot Produce All Needs.

Col. Slezak said that not enough workers and materials are available to produce all the munitions needed so the ordnance department is emphasizing production of the items most critically needed. However, items which are not on the critical list are much needed, too, and must be made as conditions permit.

Lt. Comdr. G. E. Slocum, officer in charge of the branch district civilian personnel office of the navy, listed many items made from steel produced at the Republic plant which the navy needs, including pontoons and rocket bombs. He emphasized that Chicago must find the men and women to give the plant a full complement of workers.

M. E. Goetz, district manager for Republic, said that the plant needs men and women for all steel mill job classifications.

YANKS' LETTERS HAIL WHEELER'S STAND ON PEACE

Unconditional Surrender Idea Disapproved.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] intensified his campaign for a dictated peace today after Prime Minister Churchill had again demanded unconditional surrender in the British house of commons.

Wheeler made public some of the mounting pile of letters he has received from American fighting men who warn that insistence on the unconditional surrender program means the unnecessary slaughter of American soldiers and sailors by enemies that have no incentive for giving up.

Of Churchill's renewed demand for unconditional surrender, Wheeler said in an interview:

"Of course Mr. Churchill apparently doesn't care very much how long the war is continued as long as we do most of the fighting. His views aren't in accord with the views of the American boys who are doing the fighting."

Letters Pour In.

Wheeler said letters from service men have been pouring in since he first denounced the unconditional surrender plan as "asinine" and demanded that President Roosevelt state the nation's peace terms to save American lives. A stack of congratulatory telegrams from members of the service has arrived since Wheeler's warning on the floor of the senate yesterday against permitting the United States to be drawn into European power politics.

One of the letters was from an army sergeant who has returned from overseas. The sergeant asked that his name be withheld and commented that the request was a "cowardly" one, but that it was necessitated by army regulations. The letter said:

"Apropos your recent radio speech in regard to the unconditional surrender feature of the German phase of the war, may I give you a little episode which happened when I was captured in the landings at Salerno?

Will Fight to Last.

"A German major [the American's captor] who spoke excellent English and said he had been a banker at Hamburg gave me a lecture.

"'What we can't make out,' I said, 'is why you people carry on the war. You can't win. You admit that yourselves. Meanwhile German cities are being pounded to dust.'

"'But what can we do?' he said, slamming his fist against the top of his desk with impatience. 'What else can we do but fight when your Roosevelt and Churchill offer us nothing but unconditional surrender? You are from the south. You know what unconditional surrender means. Before we accept any such terms we'll fight to the last town in Germany—and to the last street in that last town.'"

Fury Not Surprising.

Another sergeant, whose name is withheld, wrote from "somewhere in the Pacific":

"For the people back in the United States, it is an easy thing to insist on unconditional surrender, but I wonder if they have ever stopped long enough to know what it implies. You don't have to explain it to any one who is slugging it out in the far corners of the earth. On a battlefield we demand unconditional surrender and the enemy's understanding of that is total submission to our domination, which would leave him in the position of a draft animal.

"It is no wonder that our enemy fights back with fanatical fury to the last man. We saw it happen. Fortunately, we have captured some of the enemy and our treatment of them shows that we are Christians who practice what we preach."

Sicily Rebels Burn Police Barracks in Draft Riots

ROME, Jan. 16 (AP).—Premier Ivanoe Bonomi announced today that crowds armed with bombs and guns had burned a Carabinieri barracks and other buildings in Naro, Agricento province, Sicily, in new disorders protesting the military call-up. One soldier and five "rebels" were killed and 17 persons were wounded, it was announced.

CHURCHILL DECLARES WAR GOES ON UNTIL THE GERMANS GIVE UP

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill today refused to budge from the official British-American stand on two of the war's most controversial discussion points. He told the house of commons that the objectives of the Atlantic Charter remained valid and that "the war will be prolonged until unconditional surrender has been obtained."

Churchill said he was in complete agreement with President Roosevelt's views on the Atlantic Charter. He said that while the objectives now were just the same as in 1941, all of them could not be achieved immediately.

In reply to a suggestion that the allied demand for an unconditional surrender had a "tendency to stiffen the people of Germany behind their leaders and prolong the war," the pugnacious prime minister replied:

"No, sir, we don't take that view at all. I think the house would be overwhelmingly against our attempting to make peace by negotiation. At any rate, our allies would be overwhelmingly opposed to such a course. I am not of the opinion that the demand for unconditional surrender is prolonging the war."

11TH ARMORED DIVISION JOINS 3D ARMY'S FIGHT

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY IN BELGIUM, Jan. 16 (AP).—The 11th armored division, commanded by Brig. Gen. Charles Kilburn, Silver City, N. M., is fighting on the 3d army front in the Bastogne area. It is the 10th United States armored division identified on the western front.

The 11th armored division was activated Aug. 15, 1942, at Camp Polk, La., and went to Camp Barkeley, Tex., a year later. It prepared for overseas duty at Camp Cooke, Cal., arrived in the European theater last Nov. 12, and was garrisoned in North Salisbury, England.

The division crossed the channel to France on Dec. 20 and made its first attack on Dec. 30 in Bastogne.

22 Men in Hospitals Here Get Awards.

Hall, Gardiner commanding officer, made the presentation.

Sgt. Heinzleman, in the fighting near St. Lo, had covered his comrades' escape when his group was caught in heavy enemy fire and had then, altho himself wounded, given first aid to two other soldiers before dragging himself to cover.

Others Get Medals.

In the same ceremony Lt. James F. Haran, 7815 Burnham av., received the air medal and Pvt. Fred L. Gauthier, 3207 E. 92d st., the Purple Heart.

The air medal with oak leaf cluster was awarded to Lt. William L. Rogers, Manteno, near Kankakee; the Purple Heart to Pvt. William S. Vincent, Hull, Pike county, and a Presidential unit citation to Tech. Sgt. Roy A. Henderson, Eau Claire, Wis.

The Purple Heart was awarded to 13 other Vaughan patients.

It was learned yesterday that Lt. Gordon C. Burket, 5012 Irving Park rd., received the soldier's medal recently in the San Bernardino [Cal.] air technical service command for assisting in the removal of a disabled pilot from a burning plane at the risk of his own life.

F.D.R. SIDESTEPS QUIZ ON DELAY IN VISIT TO STALIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—President Roosevelt today dodged questions at his news conference about his impending meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin as it was reported in reliable circles that the conference had been postponed indefinitely.

Mr. Roosevelt dismissed the reported postponement as just another news story, but would say no more about the meeting than that he planned to see the allied leaders anon.

According to the reports, the conference was postponed by Stalin on the ground that he is too busily occupied with the recently opened Red offensive to attend a "Big Three" parley at this time.

Dickers with Churchill.

Churchill countered the Russian postponement with a suggestion that he and the President meet in anticipation of a later meeting with Stalin, according to informed sources. This proposal was reportedly rejected by Mr. Roosevelt on the ground that such a meeting might be misunderstood in Russia and thruout the world as the establishment of an Anglo-American front.

The President reportedly countered the British suggestion by offering to send Harry Hopkins, No. 1 White House intimate, to London as a special representative to listen to such proposals as Churchill is prepared to make.

Avoids "Big 4" Talk.

It has been reported that Hopkins would accompany Mr. Roosevelt to the big three meeting and that Secretary of State Stettinius would be sidetracked to the conference of American nations which opens next month in Mexico City. The President refused to say who will go with him, if he goes.

He dismissed concern in the British press over the reported failure to include Stettinius.

He also declined to comment on reports that the "Big 3" would become the "Big 4," as Gen. De Gaulle, French leader, is seeking to join in the conference.

BURNING TANKER BEING TOWED TO CALIFORNIA PORT

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 15 (AP).—A Union oil tanker that caught fire today 29 miles west of San Luis Obispo, 233 miles south of San Francisco, was being towed to that port tonight under command of a skeleton crew which had the flames under control, western sea frontier headquarters announced.

The frontier said 57 officers and men abandoned ship and were rescued shortly after the fire broke out, but that the master stayed aboard the tanker. The rescue was by navy and army craft.

U. S. 1ST AND 3D ARMIES LINKED AT HOUFFALIZE

British Launch Offensive North of Aachen.

emy base 29 miles northeast of Houffalize and only four miles from the German border. St. Vith is the only important communications center left to the Germans thru which they can extricate remnants of two panzer [armored] armies.

The 75th division cleared Salmchateau and Bech east of the Salm river and Ennal to the north. The 30th division finally cleared Thirimont, seven miles north of St. Vith, after four days of hard fighting. The 1st division continued its drive beyond Faymonville and took Steinback, four miles southeast of Malmedy.

The stubbornly held village of Sterpigny, four miles northeast of Houffalize, also was captured.

The Germans pulled out of Cherain, four miles northeast of Houffalize, without a fight after having previously defended the town bitterly. Other United States troops battled deeper into the suburbs of Bovigny, six miles south of Vielsalm.

South of Stavelot 1st army infantry surged thru densely wooded country in a mile advance southeast of Grand Halleux, while columns knifing deep into the northeast shoulder of the almost liquidated enemy salient seized Fayonville in hard fighting and pushed on a mile and a half to Ondenval.

Falls to 2d Armored Troops.

Houffalize, the road junction which it appears Von Rundstedt had hoped would hold his now shattered Belgian bulge together, fell to the famed American 2d [Hell on Wheels] armored division.

With the Houffalize-St. Vith highway cut and Yank forces driving on the town from two sides, the Nazis found Houffalize untenable and yielded it without their usual street fight. American troops threaded their way thru a litter of ruined German tanks and transport which allied planes had left smouldering along the roads, and entered the town without firing a shot.

Numerous towns were captured to the north and west of Houffalize. A field dispatch indicated that the Germans now virtually were cleared from the area west of the road between Houffalize and Bastogne, eight miles to the southwest.

The capture of Houffalize narrowed the bulge to 15 miles west of the German frontier. The penetration, started a month ago, had extended 40 miles almost to the Meuse and overran about 2,000 square miles. Only about 400 remained today in Von Rundstedt's grasp. It was estimated the Germans had lost half the armored vehicles which they used in trying to split the western front.

NAZIS USE 3 DIVISIONS

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH AMERICAN 7TH ARMY, Jan. 16.—The fierceness with which the Germans covet Hatten and Rittershoffen as gateways to the northwestern plains of Alsace is indicated by their having employed probably three divisions in eight days in the relatively small sector and by having made 18 attacks as well as numerous infiltrations and patrol sorties in this period.

The over-all picture is one of a German offensive on the 7th army front in the two broken villages north of the Haguenau forest, but it has been a seesaw struggle there all the way with Americans and Germans alternating on offense and defense.

Late yesterday the Germans brought more tanks and infantry into Hatten from the east and were able to gain some ground. At one time during the evening the condition of our forces in the village was described as critical.

Regain Yardage Lost.

But American armor and infantry assistance came in. Our artillery stepped up the pace and the yardage lost during the day not only was won back but the enemy was pushed farther eastward. It was street to street and house to house fighting, and it continued all today.

We hold the main crossroads in the center of what is left of Hatten. The northwestern section of Hatten is just a smoking, jagged ruins, and there is very little else, too, in the west of the village.

The German strongpoints in the eastern portion are a battered church and a cemetery. The southeastern area of Rittershoffen the Germans also are defending from near a church and in a cemetery. The church tower has been destroyed by artillery.

[The British radio, quoting a correspondent with the United States 7th army, reported that American forces had launched a powerful attack against the German bridgehead across the Rhine north of Strasbourg in Alsace.]

Yanks Score Slight Gains.

Slight gains were scored north of Herlisheim, the farthest penetration made by the enemy force which crossed the Rhine on Jan. 5. The Germans have been reinforced in their bridgehead and may be holding the small river bank area with about 2,500 troops.

Both American and German troops are in Gambsheim, nine miles north of Strasbourg, fighting for possession of the town, one of the first into which the enemy infiltrated when they first made their crossing.

The Yanks also are attacking toward Offendorf, two miles to the north.

SPRINTS 3 MILES ALONGSIDE JEEP TO KEEP WARM

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 3D ARMY FORCES NEAR NOVILLE, Belgium, Jan 15 [Delayed].—In the town of Foy, below Noville, today we saw Corp. William Frey, 6423 S. Peoria st., Chicago, whose wife, Loretta, lives at 5744 Sangamon st., Chicago. His "keep warm" recipe was to "keep moving." He said he and others ran three miles beside a jeep a couple of days ago to warm up.

In the woods near Noville we met Sgt. Edward C. Millies, 4312 Wentworth av., Chicago, who said he would be very happy to return to Chicago any time now.

In Foy, we met Pvt. Robert Belonger, 20, Oshkosh, Wis., who was one of the few G.I.s we've seen whose feet were warm enough. Belonger was wearing three pairs of socks with a piece of blanket wrapped around his feet. He had overshoes but no boots.

FOUR 7TH ARMY G. I.S CAPTURE NAZI GENERAL

WITH U. S. 7TH ARMY, Jan. 16 (AP).—Gen. Hans Lingner, commander of the German 17th SS panzergrenadier division, was captured by four American 7th army doughboys last week, it was announced tonight. Lingner, 29, is believed to be the first SS [elite] division commander captured on the western front.

The Nazi officer and his aides and chauffeur were taken prisoners when the general's driver took the wrong road and ran into a 7th army outpost near Rimling on Jan. 10. He icily refused to talk with any one below his military rank. He has spent almost half of his life in the schutzstaffel, Nazi elite military corps.

The German party was taken prisoner by Sgt. Carl Bunnich, Indianapolis, Ind.; Sgt. Robert Brindel, Marshalltown, Ia.; Sgt. Colegre Marime, Lancaster, N. Y., and Pvt. Harry Lee Daffin Jr., Baltimore, Md.

YANKS RESENT COLD MORE THAN THEY DO DEATH

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 1ST ARMY IN BELGIUM, Jan. 15 [Delayed].—Odorless death lies in these Christmas tree thickets of the Ardennes forest.

In the warmer days of Normandy and eastern France and Belgium death then had its sickly, sweet smell. It was part of the battle field, as inescapable as the shrieking German mortars or the nerve shaking crunch of big shells falling.

Snow falls in soft flakes or drives against the eyes with stinging pellets. The cold freezes the gutted German artillery horses and the peasants' cattle. And the fallen soldier is embraced by the snow and cold.

Resent Cold More Than Death.

The soldiers resent the cold more than they do death. They struggle constantly to keep warm. Some huddle in grimy clothes, their faces bearded, drawing warmth from a tiny bonfire.

A British correspondent, writing from the comfort of Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st army group headquarters, said the cold is much worse for the Germans. He said the enemy had to sleep in the snow, while American and British troops had shelter in buildings.

We wondered what he was talking about as we drove today thru these front line thickets. A man could easily freeze to death here. If he's lucky he has a blanket or maybe two. But if sleep catches him alone without a chance to draw the body warmth from his foxhole buddy his life is in danger.

Suffer from Frostbite.

As it is, many soldiers are suffering severely from frostbite. Even men in tanks, despite the heat generated by a tank engine, are frostbitten.

Tank commanders order their troops to wrap their feet in blankets. Others make them wear layers of socks inside their rubber overshoes. They wear no combat boots.

You think of these soldiers as you drive past and you wonder how they stand fighting in these conditions. But they do. Sometimes they are drawn from the front long enough to get three warm meals and one night's sleep before they go back into the attack.

BRITISH EMPIRE WAR CASUALTIES TOTAL 1,043,554: CHURCHILL

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP). — British empire casualties from the start of the war in September, 1939, to last Nov. 30 totaled 1,043,554, Prime Minister Churchill told commons today. The United Kingdom suffered the heaviest casualties—635,107, Churchill said. He listed dominion casualties as: Canada, 78,985; Australia, 84,861; India, 152,597; New Zealand, 34,115; South Africa, 28,943, and other colonies, 28,946.

Churchill gave this breakdown of casualties, listing Newfoundland with the United Kingdom:

Country.	Killed.	W'nded.	Miss'g.	Pris'n'rs.
Unit. King.	199,497	235,207	39,383	161,020
Canada	28,040	39,010	4,507	7,128
Australia ...	18,015	34,336	6,913	25,597
New Zealand	8,919	17,116	938	7,153
South Africa	5,783	11,796	599	10,765
India	17,415	45,224	13,935	76,023
Oth'r c'l'nies	4,493	3,686	14,015	6,752
Total ...	282,162	386,374	80,580	294,438

The total does not include service personnel dying from natural causes, civilian casualties, or loss of merchant seamen.

[The United States army and navy offices recently reported that the total American casualties up to Dec. 14, 1944, were 628,441. By adding to this total figures which covered western front casualties since the German break-thru Dec. 16, total United States casualties to date would be 721,035.]

NAZIS PRAISE U.S. ARTILLERY, BUT RAP DOUGHBOYS

Captured Document Tells of Capabilities.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY IN BELGIUM, Jan. 16.—Scornful of our doughboys and tanks, one German division, at least, in its official pronouncements discloses the highest regard for American artillery. An estimate of American capabilities was contained in a document captured by the 30th division.

American artillery, said this document, is of the highest standard and is extremely effective. The Germans said American mobility, which was so advantageous in Normandy, is still noteworthy. They added that our three way coordination among tanks, artillery and air force is another evidence of superior communications.

Discusses Accuracy.

This document, prepared to inform all German troops of the strength of American artillery discussed the American artillery's "amazing accuracy." It added an accolade for the speed with which our guns have been able to adjust fire on target for direct as well as indirect fire.

[Fire on target is a system of firing from varying ranges to have all shells reach the target at the same instant. Direct fire, roughly defined, is fire at a visible target.]

Cub observation planes, the German document said, will call for two or three rounds from a gun to adjust fire on target and then "in no time at all" fire will be adjusted and brought down. This indicates, in the enemy's opinion, excellence in our artillery maps as well as in fire data.

In Normandy, the German document said artillery regiments, or even larger units, laid down coordinating fires. Recently, the enemy pointed out, the tendency has not been observed. [The article was prepared during the German offensive when Lt. Gen. Hodges was getting set up to halt the enemy drive.] However, the document added that our artillery effort has instead been concentrated on interdicting enemy supply routes. In this the German appraisal was also correct.

Finds Fault with Infantry.

In speaking of infantry, the German division showed much less respect. The document said American infantry is a "long way from being good." It declared the doughboys would not attack unless they had superiority of artillery and other weapons.

According to the Germans, our doughboys do not like to attack at night [yet our most experienced divisions prefer night attacks], and if the Germans counter-attack quickly after any American gain they believe our men will bolt.

On a few counts, however, the Germans paid grudging compliments. They said we must train excellent grenade throwers, most of them in our reconnaissance outfits, and that numerous expert riflemen are used whenever we set up a strong point.

Praise U. S. Foxholes.

The Americans also, in the opinion of soldiers on the other side of the line, now make good use of cover and camouflage, while American foxholes are "outstanding examples of comfort."

Returning to disparagement, the German document said Nazi observers had reported that American tanks lost aggressiveness and turned around when attacked in close combat or with artillery, or when a tank lost contact with the enemy. In this connection it should be mentioned that a Gen. Sherman tank is no match for a German Panther or Tiger tank in a headon collision.

In conclusion, the German estimate said that documents taken from American prisoners indicated our commanders had exact knowledge about German bunkers and artillery positions.

Link Yank Armies

SGT. LAWRENCE BECKER.

[Associated Press Wirephotos.]

CAPT. BROOKS NORMAN.

WITH 84TH U. S. INFANTRY DIVISION, Ardennes, Belgium, Jan. 16 (AP).—"Nice day for skiing," the captain said to the sergeant as they met along the icy river Ourthe. And that is how the 1st and 3d armies linked up yesterday. The linking was done by two ski enthusiasts from Seattle, Wash., who met for the first time in enemy-infested country south of Laroche. They are a former University of Washington ski instructor, Capt. Brooks Norman of the 4th United States Cavalry group, and Sgt. Lawrence F. Becker. Becker led a patrol from the 3d army, Brooks from the 1st.

10 ILLINOISANS ARE DECORATED FOR GALLANTRY

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY, Belgium, Jan. 16.—Silver stars for gallantry in action have been awarded four Illinoisans who are members of the 35th infantry division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Paul W. Baade. They are:

Sgt. Walter A. Reynolds of Savanna, Ill., Tech. Sgt. William A. Freed, Lexington, Ill., and two Chicagoans, Lt. Nicholas N. Maslikosa, whose mother, Mrs. Violet Krainovich, lives at 9836 Escanaba av., and Pvt. Richard W. Nelson, 2716 43d st.

Sgt. Reynolds formed a three-man patrol to contact the unit on his right during the night of Nov. 12 and came upon an enemy machine gun. He and his men surprised the enemy, made them prisoners, and destroyed the gun.

Knocks Out Half Track.

Sgt. Freed on Nov. 24 entered a French town, then saw enemy tanks and vehicles approaching. He deployed the men in his platoon, then personally took charge of a rocket launcher which knocked out an enemy half track. Sgt. Freed killed three of the four occupants of the half track and wounded the fourth with rifle fire as they tried to man machine guns. When the enemy tank also was halted, he exposed himself to fire into the slits and turret, killing two more Germans, wounding another, and forcing the remainder of the tank men to surrender.

Lt. Maslikosa, after his own tank was knocked out near St. Lo, saw other tanks of his platoon about to enter a mine field, and tried to halt them by running in front of them, despite heavy enemy fire.

His effort was in vain, however, and all the tanks were disabled, so Lt. Maslikosa had the crews remove their machine guns under enemy fire and fight the remainder of the day as infantrymen. Then a second lieutenant, Maslikosa since has received a promotion in the field to first lieutenant.

Helps Rout Enemy.

Pvt. Nelson, a radio operator for the commander of the 1st battalion, 320th regiment, was on duty the night of Nov. 10 when the enemy overran the position. He was wounded in the throat by a hand grenade burst. Despite his wound and despite enemy machine gun fire, he remained at his post until the enemy was routed, when he was ordered to lie down and await medical aid.

Five other Illinois members of the 35th division were awarded bronze stars. They are:

Tech. Sgt. Walter L. Soltanek, 1319 W. 49th pl., Chicago, who reorganized his platoon under heavy fire after the platoon leader, platoon sergeant, and platoon guide became casualties. The platoon then destroyed two enemy machine gun nests.

Tech. Sgt. Dorvin M. Stephens of Batavia, Ill., who took command of his platoon when its leader was wounded and led it without loss from an encircled position.

Battles Four Hours.

Sgt. Daniel A. Wisniewski, 2019 N. Leamington av., Chicago, who with two other noncommissioned officers engaged a strong enemy force in a fight lasting four hours.

Tech. Sgt. Joseph B. Sweeney, 1753 21st pl., Chicago, and Tech. Sgt. Rodney N. Deain, Gilson, Ill., "for meritorious service in connection with military operations against an enemy of the United States."

Sgt. Rene C. Meirsenne of Genesee, Ill., radio operator with the 4th armored division, was given the bronze star for remaining at his post in a half track under heavy enemy artillery fire, during which he handled the work of the operations officer when the latter was engaged in other duties.

2,000,000TH YANK SAILS TO EUROPE WITH A SMILE

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Jan. 16 (AP).—The 2,000,000th American to leave Britain for Europe since D-day last June 6 passed thru this transportation corps port, recently, the army said today. He is Corp. Walter Riehl, 27, an infantry man from Cumberland, Md.

Riehl had fallen asleep in a bunk aboard a landing craft which was to take him across the channel when the vessel's loudspeaker blared that he had made history.

Riehl woke up, smiled, and went back to sleep.

R. A. F. BOMBERS POUND GERMAN CZECH TARGETS

LONDON, Jan. 17 [Wednesday]—(AP).]—R. A. F. bombers, sweeping across the English channel in very great strength, last night pounded the German industrial center of Magdeburg and three synthetic oil plants, including one in Czechoslovakia, the air ministry announced today. The synthetic oil plants bombed were those at Zeitz and Wanneeickel near Leipzig and at Brux in Czechoslovakia.

The raids followed up heavy American daylight assaults upon the Krupp works at Magdeburg and railyards in the Leipzig area.

Swarming over the heavily defended Leipzig area, know to allied airmen as "flak ocean," more than 600 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 650 Mustangs and Thunderbolts of the 8th air force, bombed an oil plant at Ruhland, 65 miles east of Leipzig.

The bombers roared thru spotty clouds and most of the bombs were released by instrument. Some Nazi fighters were sighted, but the Germans offered no opposition, giving the Mustangs and Thunderbolts a chance to strafe enemy communications deep in the reich.

Australia Will Clamp Curbs on Wheat Supply

CANBERRA, Australia, Jan. 16 (AP).—The Australian government will soon establish a system of controls over wheat supplies, W. J. Scully, commerce minister, announced today. He said controls would include wheat and stock feed quotas. Scully added that drouth, depletion of fodder reserves and Australia's obligation to supply the allies with wheat and flour necessitated the regulations.

MOYNE MURDER COUNT ALTERED; TWO FACE DEATH

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 16 (AP).—The two young Jewish nationalists on trial for the assassination of W. E. Guinness [Lord Moyne], British minister resident in the middle east, lost their confident, debonair attitude today as the prosecution suddenly altered the charges to make them both responsible for the shooting.

Originally only Eliahou Hakim had been charged with the death of Moyne. His companion, Eliahou Bet Souri, had been charged with complicity in the killing of the diplomat and with the slaying of Moyne's chauffeur. As the chauffeur's slaying was unpremeditated, Bet Souri had stood a good chance of escaping the death penalty.

The prosecution's move was taken under advisement by the court and a decision will be announced tomorrow. The change in charges is permissible under Egyptian law. Nevertheless the defense opposed it.

NAZIS STEP UP ARTILLERY FIRE BELOW BOLOGNA

ROME, Jan. 17 (AP).—The enemy stepped up artillery, mortar, and machine gun concentrations today on snowbound American troops in the mountains south of Bologna, where they have been pouring heavy fire for weeks. Otherwise activity of ground forces across the entire Italian front was limited to a few patrol clashes.

Rain, sleet, and snow hampered 8th army forces in the eastern Po valley and there was no change in position. The 5th army welcomed rising temperatures and clearing skies, but the snows of the last week—when as much as 12 inches fell in one day—restricted activities.

On the Tyrrhenian coastal area at the western end of the front considerable enemy activity was observed and German artillery fire was increased in intensity, but little contact was reported.

Hints Britain to Shorten Clothes Rationing Period

LONDON, Jan. 16 (AP).—Britons will get 24 clothing coupons for the next rationing period, which Hugh Dalton, president of the board of trade, said today he hoped would be only six months long. Women give up to three coupons for a pair of stockings, seven for shoes, nine for short-sleeve dresses, and 18 for long-sleeve dresses. Men give 26 for a suit and nine for shoes.

GEN. IKE GIVES HIS BLOOD AND HOPES FOR BEST

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, Paris, Jan. 16 (AP).—In response to an appeal to soldiers assigned to supreme headquarters for blood needed at the front, an officer walked briskly into the clinic and took his place in line with the other volunteers. He gave a pint of blood, drank a cup of coffee, and started to leave. Then one soldier in line noticed that it was Gen. Eisenhower and remarked, "Hey, that would be the blood to get!" The general overheard the remark and replied: "If you do, I hope you don't inherit my bad disposition."

104,000 TONS OF SHIPS BLASTED IN CHINA RAIDS

No Jap Planes Intercept Carrier Craft.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Jan. 16 (AP).—Adm. Halsey's 3d fleet wound up a week of the most audacious naval operations of the war by sending carrier planes Saturday, Sunday, and Monday up and down more than 350 miles of the China coast, destroying or damaging 30 Jap ships totaling 104,000 tons and smashing such choice targets as Canton and Hong Kong.

Against puny enemy air opposition the carrier planes ruled the skies as they did over French Indo-China's shore Jan. 11 and over Formosa Jan. 8.

Formosa was attacked Saturday, Sunday, and Monday at the same time other carrier planes were sinking enemy oilers, bombing the former British navy docks at Hong Kong and the harbor at Canton.

[The Japanese radio claimed yesterday that 24 American carrier based planes were shot down, four probably destroyed, and 29 damaged during a 200 plane raid on Formosa Monday.]

Returns Incomplete.

In raids dating back to the Jan. 8 assault on Formosa, Halsey's planes now have accounted for well over 300,000 tons of enemy shipping, including several escort warships and more than 250 planes.

Adm. Nimitz, in disclosing the preliminary results of the China raids today, gave only incomplete totals for Sunday and Monday and none at all for Saturday.

18 Vessels Damaged.

The Sunday summary on air attacks on Canton, Swatow and Hongkong:

Nine ships totalling about 22,000 tons were sunk. These included one destroyer, one destroyer escort, and one tanker.

Nine ships and nine small vessels were damaged.

Sixteen aircraft were shot out of the air, 18 more were destroyed on the ground and 38 were damaged on the ground.

At Takao, Formosa naval base, seven locomotives and warehouses and docks were destroyed.

Monday Damage Listed.

The Monday strike summary:

Shipping totaling about 87,000 tons was sunk or damaged. This included the 17,000 ton tanker Kamoi, and two oilers.

Seven Japanese planes were shot down, one was destroyed on the ground and seven were damaged on the ground.

In Hong Kong the royal navy docks, the former British naval base, and the commercial Toikoo docks, other harbor facilities and fuel storage areas were damaged.

HELD FOR BURGLARY AND ARSON.

Walter Gordon, 17, of 1734 Monroe st., who appeared yesterday before Judge Joseph J. Drucker in Boys court on a charge of burglary and arson, was held to the grand jury in $30,000 bond.

were 32 miles inland from the gulf.

American patrols were reported probing the Cabaruan hills, which dominate a flat plains area 18 miles inland from Lingayen and are important as observation points and artillery sites. A spokesman said some artillery fire against the advancing Yanks came from the low-lying hills.

Reach Highway Junction.

On the right flank the Americans reached Alaminos, astride two highways, on a peninsula west of Lingayen gulf.

Rosario, where the enemy has been making a determined stand for several days, is on the strategic Manila highway No. 3. That highway, just east of Rosario, forms a junction with the paved road leading into the hills to the summer capital of Baguio.

Japanese forces in the Baguio area must hold the road as the last good connection between them and other forces of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita trying to struggle up bomb-cut roads from the Manila sector under constant aerial attack.

The first determined enemy stand is being made much nearer Baguio against 6th army units striving to push east along nine miles of concrete road from Domartis to Rosario.

Commander Puzzled.

One commander told Fred Hampson, Associated Press correspondent: "Sometimes I wonder if their defeat in Leyte didn't break the back of Japanese strength in the Philippines. I still think they are going to fight us somewhere along the line, but they're losing their golden opportunity. These swamps, rivers, and bogs could have been the bloodiest battlefield in the world, and they are letting us get thru it without fighting."

AGREEMENT REACHED ON WAR WORK FOR ELEVATOR OPERATORS

Elevator operators who leave their jobs temporarily to take work in war plants will be permitted to return to their regular employment after the war without loss of seniority rights, under an agreement to be signed today by representatives of the Building Managers association of Chicago and the AFL Elevator Operators and Starters union.

More than 2,000 members of the union are employed in buildings in the loop, Martin J. Dwyer, union president, said last night at a meeting at 175 Washington st. at which members approved the proposed agreement.

Reemployment rights of operators and starters who enter war work will be the same as the rights of men who enter military service. The union will assist building managers in obtaining substitute elevator operators.

SUPPLY CREWS FIGHT BATTLE OF LUZON BEACHES

BY WALTER SIMMONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LINGAYEN, Luzon, P. I., Jan. 16.—Rear detachments are fighting the tough battle of the Luzon beaches.

Any one who thinks a "wall of water" is just a journalistic phrase should see the towering swell which sends a breaker crashing into the beach, sinking amphibious trucks and tractors, broaching LSTs and LCTs, washing causeways ashore and small boats, too, if they venture within 300 yards.

Unload 24 Hours a Day.

Yet the unloading continues at all costs 24 hours a day. When a duck, loaded with three tons of steel matting for the Lingayen air field, sinks, the crew bobbing in the water is rescued and the ruined vehicle winched ashore to furnish spare parts for other ducks. Sometimes when the water is too deep the vehicles cannot be recovered and remain as a navigation hazard.

Back of the beaches truck drivers like Pvt. Grant Henry, Negro, 4001 Vincennes av., Chicago, haul the unloaded supplies across improvised bridges toward the front. Boat crewmen like Corp. Conrad Anderka, 3322 N. Claremont ave., Chicago, dare the breakers to transport essential personnel from ship to shore.

Filipinos Help In Task.

Hundreds of Filipinos are helping. Lt. Col. Marryl Shaver, a San Francisco lawyer, had charge of 3,200 native laborers. He is divisional civil affairs commander.

Other hundreds are helping clean up the wreckage of Lingayen. A few natives were killed and a number wounded by American bombardment and Jap air raids.

U. S. LIQUOR BILL IS 7 BILLIONS IN YEAR—A RECORD

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Americans spent more than 7 billion dollars—or an average of $54 per person—for alcoholic beverages in 1944, a new record, the commerce department reported today.

In actual quantity, they drank: More liquor than in 1943, but not so much as in 1942; more beer than in any previous year; slightly less wine than in 1943.

The 7 billion dollars is roughly 1 billion dollars greater than the amount spent in 1943 and nearly 2 billion dollars above 1942 when $5,200,000,000 was laid down for drinks.

Half of the billion dollar increase over 1943 was due to higher federal taxes on distilled spirits.

HONG KONG LIKE DESERTED CITY, SAY U.S. FLYERS

ON A CARRIER FLAGSHIP OFF THE CHINA COAST, Jan. 15 [via Navy Radio [Delayed]—(AP).—United States pilots returning from the Hong Kong raid today said the important Japanese held city looked lifeless with little traffic and no industrial smoke. However, there was much fat shipping in the world famous port and base—the greatest harbor of South China.

Lt. [j. g.] Paul Gary.

Pilot Lt. [j. g.] Paul Gary, 6049 S. Albany av., Chicago, Ill., said: "I saw some transports in the harbor and a lot of smaller shipping, but the city itself looked deserted. What impressed me most was the drab, beaten up appearance of the countryside around Hong Kong. It looked dry and brown and unbelievably used up. It made me realize how much old China has suffered."

IN NAVY SINCE 1942.

Lt. [j. g.] Paul Gary, 27, has been in the navy since July, 1942, his wife, Grace, said yesterday. Lt. Gary, a graduate of Tilden High school who studied engineering at the Chicago Technical college, was an employe of the Inland Steel company.

TROOPS FROM CHINA JOIN WITH BURMA FORCE

MYITKYINA, Burma, Jan. 16 (AP).—Chinese patrols driving westward from Yunnan province have made their first contact with patrols operating in the north Burma border area in the vicinity of Mengmao. It was the first meeting of the Chinese armies in Burma with troops from China since Burma fell to the Japanese two and a half years ago.

The two forces seek to wipe out the enemy garrison in the Chinese border town of Wanting, old Burma rd. terminal and last remaining obstacle to opening of the new India-China overland supply line.

Namhkam, last Japanese bastion in north Burma, was captured by troops of the Chinese 1st army under Gen. Sun Li-jen, which slipped thru the jungle and stormed the town from the rear.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

TRUE STORY: GREAT NORTHERN NEVER WILL DRIVE "LAST SPIKE"

Continual Improvements of Line, Equipment and Operations Mark Railway's Progressiveness

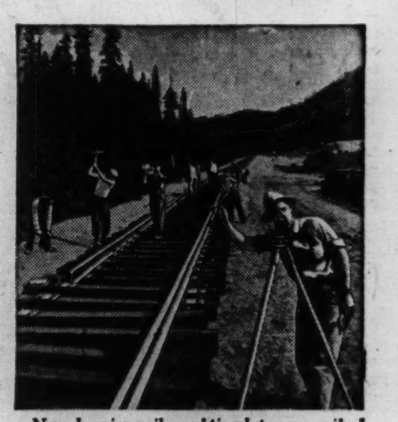
On January 6, 1893, Great Northern became a transcontinental railway when a line extending eastward from Puget Sound was joined in the Cascade mountains with track pushed westward from the Great Lakes.

The construction crews posed that wintry day for the traditional "last spike" picture. But, actually the job of building and improving Great Northern never has stopped—in good times and bad!

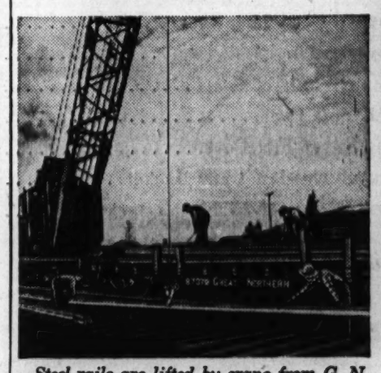
Great Northern constantly has been improving its roadbed and structures by reducing grades and curves, laying heavier rail, building stronger bridges, boring time-saving tunnels, including the 8-mile Cascade Tunnel, longest in the Western Hemisphere.

Typical of the railway's forward-looking policy is the major track relocation project now under way on Great Northern's main line through the Flathead River canyon, bordering Glacier National Park in the Montana Rockies. Here three tunnels are being blasted through solid rock to eliminate several sharp curves.

A real "last spike" has not been driven on Great Northern—and never will be!



New, heavier rails and tie plates are spiked to chemically treated ties. Maintenance crews give daily attention to roadbed.



Steel rails are lifted by crane from G. N. flatcars and placed in position.

YANK TELLS OF 3 YEARS LEADING GUERRILLA BAND

Runs Little Group of 20 Up to 2,000 Men.

WITH U. S. FORCES ON LUZON, Jan. 16 (AP).—An American who spent nearly three years leading thousands of armed Filipino guerrillas against the Japanese, came out of the Luzon hills today eager to tell about enemy forces and get a pair of American-made shoes.

Capt. Robert Lathem.

He is Capt. Robert Lapham of Davenport, Ia., who began his hit-and-run warfare against the Japanese with 20 men and six rifles.

He was a second lieutenant when Gen. MacArthur ordered him to go thru the enemy lines in February, 1942, to organize guerrilla bands. As his army grew he promoted himself to major. That left him plenty of ranks to pass out to Filipinos who brought in new guns and new men.

Looks Like a Cowboy.

The strapping 6 foot guerrilla leader came thru many close calls unscathed, and appeared at G-2 headquarters looking like a Hollywood-style cowboy—a beaten down garrison hat, long sideburns, native clothes, and Japanese shoes with the toes cut out.

"Early in February MacArthur ordered me and an American major to break thru enemy lines across Bataan and work our way into Pampanga and out in the central Luzon provinces to organize guerrillas," he said.

Eight Americans Along.

"We took with us eight Americans, four of whom were officers, and 10 Filipino scout noncoms.

"We made our way to Clark field and Fort Stotsenburg, where we got a small group instructed and started on their mission of fighting Japs.

"Our main handicap at first was the small number of firearms. We took only what we could carry, and that was six rifles for 20 men. But as we moved, Filipinos with guns joined us, adding to our fire power.

"Since there was no one to promote me, I had to boost my rank to major in order to give the Filipinos who brought in guns some rank. If a Filipino had six guns I made him a sergeant, and if he brought in 12, a lieutenant.

Tells Narrow Escape.

"There were many close calls, but probably one of the hottest escapes was in the spring of 1943. I was in a house in the hills of Nueve Ecija with several of my men. We were sleeping, when just before dawn the Japs encircled the house and started firing in the windows.

"One of my bodyguards brought two Japs down sneaking in the front door. I grabbed a gun and with the others in the house raced out the back door. We kept on running until we were well into the hills."

On one occasion, the guerrila chieftain said, he was eating breakfast in a native barrio when a Japanese patrol appeared.

"The Japanese came up, looking in the windows," Lapham said, "when about 40 or 50 men opened up on them. The Japanese dropped everything and ran for the hills."

Gets All-Out Orders.

On Jan. 5 Lapham received orders thru the underground network to begin an all-out drive against the Japanese. He spread the word among his guerrillas that American troops were going to land in force.

"My men went to work immediately, and up to Jan. 13, when I left them to come thru the lines to headquarters, they had accounted for at least 1,000 Japanese killed," Lapham said. "They knocked out 43 trucks and derailed one train. They love to wreck trains."

The captain said he had more than 2,000 men in his forces and recently the Filipinos have been pouring in until he again has more men than guns.

THIS REPORTER PUTS A BANG OR TWO INTO NEWS

BY LEWIS HAWKINS.

WITH U. S. 3D ARMY OUTSIDE HOUFFALIZE, Jan 16 (AP).—I met an infantryman in a patch of woods yesterday just as Staff Sgt. Edwin Siebern, Cincinnati, O., called to him to "lay some fire on those trenches up ahead."

So the soldier started firing and our conversation went something like this:

"What's your name, soldier?" [Bang!] "Pvt. Brendal." [Bang!]

"First name?" [Bang! Bang!]

"Edward." [Bang!]

"What's your home town?" [Bang!] "Chicago." [Bang! Bang!]

By that time he had used up his clip, and I was able to find out that he lived at 2411 S. Trumbull st. without having his Garand throw empty cartridges in my face. Then he and his pals moved on.

The house after remodeling.

Henry V. Adams, head of the Foundry Supplies Manufacturing company, 2221 Orchard st., was named in a criminal information filed yesterday in federal District court charging him with violating war production board regulations limiting expenditures for private dwelling repairs to $200.

Assistant United States Atty. Bernard Sokol said Adams, after an unsuccessful appeal to the agricultural war board at Elgin for permission to spend $1,835 on repairs to a one and one-half story dwelling on a farm near Elgin, remodeled the house at a cost of $13,157.

Sokol said investigators learned that Adams had represented to contractors who performed the work on the house that he possessed priorities for materials.

Maximum penalty is a year in jail and $10,000 fine, Sokol said.

WOMAN WRITES FROM JAP CAMP IN PHILIPPINES

A post card from a Japanese prison camp in the Philippines was received yesterday by Mrs. Marjorie Barr, 2524 E. 72d pl., from her sister, Mrs. Gladys Henkle Beusse, a Chicago woman who went to the Philippines in 1940. It was the first word the family had received from her since the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Mrs. Beusse wrote that on May 14, 1944, she had received packages and letters from relatives.

Staff Sgt. Richard Armato Gigante, 33, a member of the Maywood tank battalion captured in the Philippines, has written his sister, Mrs. Betty Sadis, 3030 W. 114th pl., that he is in good health. The message, dated May 6, 1944, said he had just received letters, some mailed three years earlier.

EXPECT FURTHER HITLER JABS TO KEEP INITIATIVE

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Jan. 15.—With the Ardennes offensive definitely liquidated after a 30 days battle, and the German rearguard engaged solely in skilful defensive fighting to permit withdrawal of all possible elements from the rapidly constricting bulge, speculation concentrates on Hitler's next move.

It is considered certain Hitler will continue to exercise the initiative inherent in offensive operations as long as humanly possible, to stave off the inevitable date when the allies launch the big push which will reopen a war of movement similar to the operations which overran all of France and Holland.

Puts Allies on Defensive.

Altho Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's offensive misfired tactically by its failure to capture Liege and the Meuse river crossings, it succeeded—thru seizure of the initiative—in throwing the allies off balance and placing them on the defensive, a situation from which they are not yet able to extricate themselves.

Possession of the initiative enables the holder to move, shift, and concentrate his forces at any point he selects, as the opposing forces must be constantly reenforced to prevent an advance becoming a break-thru, and a break-thru becoming a debacle.

Thus, Von Rundstedt's capture of Liege might have collapsed the whole allied front in Holland thru the amputation of supply lines, necessitated the evacuation of the Aachen penetration, and constituted a grave threat to Antwerp.

Generals Realized Danger.

Gen. Eisenhower, Field Marshal Montgomery, and Lt. Gen. Bradley all have stated for publication they always realized the potential danger of an enemy thrust thru the Ardennes, with a tempting prize if successful.

But they accepted the "calculated risk," as Bradley called it, and preferred to employ the divisions gnawing into the Siegfried line as springboards for a decisive spring drive, rather than leave units idle in the Ardennes sector, which was unproductive for exploitation, from the allied viewpoint.

But a scrutiny of the map fails to reveal any other sector promising such valuable results if successful.

The Strasbourg operation is neither tactical nor strategic, as recapture of the Alsatian capital means nothing to the Germans militarily, but only affects French morale and prestige, with the possibility of some recriminations against Eisenhower if he fails to reenforce the sector to prevent the loss of the city.

The Saar Path to Sedan.

A massive operation from the Saar would lead inevitably toward Verdun, still a poignant memory to the German high command after the fiasco of 1916.

Nor would a profound penetration from the Trier area, in the southern allied hinge of the Ardennes pocket, offer attraction, as it leads eventually to open terrain, ideal for the employment of tanks and armor, wherein the United States material superiority would find scope for employment.

Extensive operations against the Aachen area, if successful, would provide Hitler useful domestic propaganda, and delay the allies crushing into the industrial heart of Germany, the Ruhr.

With 20 of 70 odd divisions stationed on the west front chewed up in the Ardennes, Von Rundstedt would be taking a desperate chance to commit another 20 to stage a political offensive for Hitler. There are no indications yet that the German military hierarchy dares defy the Fuehrer's intuition, nor his understandable determination to remain alive and in power as long as possible, tho it involves sacrificing the reich to forestall his doom.

If Germany's tank production has fallen off as sharply from the results of allied bombing as experts acquainted with reich industry believe, then Von Rundstedt is encountering the greatest difficulty in replacing tanks, self-propelled artillery, and motorized transport for his shattered units.

Halted Continuity of Attacks.

The Ardennes blow failed of its ambitious objectives, but it deprived Eisenhower of the initiative and pushed us back on our heels. It arrested the continuity of the repeated blows everywhere along the line, punching thru German strong points to the jumping-off positions we want for the ultimate battle movement when a preponderance of men and material can be made to count.

But already it has increased American war production, according to figures received here, and already it has intensified the fighting spirit of American troops, who want to finish the war as quickly as possible and get home.

The mother was given custody of the child when she obtained a divorce in February, 1940, but Frueauff, represented by Atty. Benjamin H. Ehrlich, charged she has neglected the boy. CLAIMS HORTHY'S SON WAS SHOT BY HITLER'S POLICE

BY DANIEL DE LUCE.

MOSCOW, Jan. 16 (AP).—Wounding by the German Gestapo of a young son of Hungary's former regent, Adm. Nicholas Horthy, was reported tonight by Col. Gen. Janos Voros, Hungarian defense minister. The latter said he saved his own life by escaping a Nazi internment camp.

In an interview Voros said Horthy's son, Nicklos, was lured by Nazis with a fictitious invitation to supper in Budapest, then shot in the stomach and taken to a German prison.

Makes Fruitless Appeal.

The Hungarian defense minister said he had made a fruitless appeal to Hitler last September to let Hungary get out of the war. He said he had visited Hitler's headquarters in East Prussia as Horthy's special envoy. Voros said his appeal to Hitler had set off a two hour harangue in which he quoted the Fuehrer as saying:

"Now we are all sitting in one boat in a dreadful storm. He who jumps overboard—man or nation—will surely drown.

"It is possible the boat will capsize. But it is more than likely it will reach land.

"To the last man, to the last drop of blood, I will defend the fatherland. . . . How can Hungary even think of an armistice?"

"Looked Like a Pig."

"Hitler looked like a pig who had been fed too much," Voros said in describing his visit with the Fuehrer. "Plainly he was sick in mind and body. The last previous time I had seen him was in May. Between May and September, even in those few months, I was convinced his mental condition had deteriorated.

"I still wince when I think of the last time I saw Hitler. Such lies, such hysteria, such crafty ruthlessness!

"When my plane reached the German frontier the curtains were drawn. We landed at Breslau. Then came an unexplained two hour delay. I realized later it was to prevent me from arriving at Hitler's headquarters in daylight. When we finally took off again and landed near the headquarters I was certain it was somewhere in East Prussia."

My interview with Voros, a lean immaculately dressed man of 53, was not arranged by the soviet foreign commissariat. As a member of the Hungarian armistice delegation, however, he was permitted the courtesy of the soviet government of receiving foreigners — a courtesy also extended to the Romanian, Bulgarian, and Finnish delegations which came to Moscow in recent months.

Voros told his story in a Moscow hotel room. His Hungarian was translated by another member of the delegation.

ARRESTED FOR PUNCHBOARD EXHIBIT.

CHURCHES URGED TO OPPOSE SPLIT OF GERMAN AREA

Partition Plan Attacked in Proposed Policy.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 16 (AP).—Advocating "self government for all dependent peoples" but opposing dismemberment of Germany, a list of recommendations for a church's platform in international affairs was introduced at a peace conference of Protestant faiths here tonight.

More than 500 delegates, representing virtually every Protestant denomination in America, attended the opening sessions of the conference, called by the commission on a just and durable peace of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Debate on the recommendations will continue four days.

Earlier, delegates heard an address by John Foster Dulles of New York, who urged the United States government to regard international collaboration "at the low level of actualities rather than the high level of theory."

Self-Government Urged.

Proposals for debate, covering world peace structures and settlements with Japan and Germany, were introduced by Prof. William E. Hocking of Harvard university.

Recommended for "the structure of a world organization" were these principles:

Eventual self-government should be assured for all dependent peoples; access to economic and security values in dependent areas should be primarily for the benefit of the dependent people themselves; and progressive steps for improving each area should be internationally agreed upon, started at once, and internationally supported.

Oppose Dismemberment.

Recommendations introduced on the peace settlement with Germany include punishing "only those responsible for crimes," no dismemberment of the country, and strengthening of "forces inside Germany which are committed to freedom and international coöperation."

Also recommended was the full sovereignty of China, "a place for Japan in the comity of nations, Philippine independence, recognition of "Russia's great importance" in the far east, and further modification of United States immigration laws to place oriental natives on the same basis as prospective immigrants from nonoriental countries.

UNWED MOTHER FIGHTS FATHER'S SUIT OVER BABY

Bernard Kublake, 40, of 810 Hyde Park blvd., went to court yesterday to seek custody of his 6 weeks old son, born to an unmarried woman.

He told Judge Harry M. Fisher in Circuit court that he and his wife are willing and able to care for the child, but that his mother, Miss Martha Boldt, 41, of 6149 Kenwood av., and the Lutheran Child Welfare association have prevented him from seeing the boy.

After a conference with Miss Boldt, Judge Fisher continued the case to April 23, pending an investigation.

MANDALAY FALL VITAL, ASSERTS BURMA VETERAN

Brig. S. F. Irwin.

Capture by the allies of the historic city of Mandalay, from which they are now only 26 miles distant, will give allied troops a better opportunity to use mechanized forces in subsequent attacks on Rangoon in Burma and Bangkok in Thailand, Brig. Stephen F. Irwin, until recently chief staff officer of the British 14th army in Burma, said in Chicago yesterday.

Capture of Rangoon, he said, will eliminate some 800 miles of hazardous travel for allied forces shuttling supplies to the interior.

STYLE LEADERS FOR 121 YEARS

FRANCE, GREECE, AND BELGIUM TO RECEIVE U. S. AID

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The United States today put part of its economic resources and some of its limited shipping facilities behind the maintenance of political order in liberated Europe.

President Roosevelt promised the new prime minister of Greece, Nicolas Plastiras, that the United States would "assist wherever practicable in the rehabilitation of your long suffering nation."

The state department disclosed that, despite the extremely tight shipping situation, a little more shipping has been made available for increasing exports of American civilian goods to France in the first three months of 1945.

Army to Buy Abroad.

Meantime, the army service forces told of plans to obtain more than a billion dollars' worth of critical goods for allied armies from French and Belgian industry in 1945. The arrangement, which is apart from lend-lease, calls for the United States and Britain to supply the bulk of the raw materials for the goods, which include uniforms and tires. The aim is to obtain needed supplies and provide employment in France and Belgium.

President Roosevelt's promise to the Greek prime minister was made in a message answering a plea from Plastiras for help in reconstructing "the ruins accumulated by the long enemy occupation of the country."

Help to Greece falls in two categories. First will come supplies handled by the united nations' relief and rehabilitation administration. After that will come some measure of economic rehabilitation designed to help the Greek people recover their own internal economic stability.

Allocate More Shipping.

The assistance to France is exclusive of relief and is designed entirely to assist economic rehabilitation. Under the plan agreed upon by Secretary of State Stettinius and Jean Monnet, the United States indorsed an import program planned by the French, but what the French really get will be determined by available shipping.

The state department said that to date only "a small part of France's requirements" had been delivered but that some additional shipping has been made available for the first three months of this year.

These supplies, which are being shipped on a lend-lease credit on the promise of the French to pay up promptly and fully, consist mostly of rail and highway rolling stock and trucks; coal and gasoline for transport power, and certain raw materials.

Report Reds Will Get 5th of Finn Merchant Fleet

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 16 (AP).—One-fifth of Finland's merchant fleet, 30 ships valued at $14,000,000, will be turned over to Russia as partial war reparations, the Finnish publication Mercator said today.

U. S. AND CANADA INCREASE FOOD SUPPLIES IN 1944

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—United States and Canadian civilian food supplies were, in most cases, maintained or increased in 1944 compared with 1943 as the result of sharply increased production, the combined food board reported today. Food supplies were kept at 1943 levels or increased despite expansion of military needs and large shipments to the allies.

Civilian food in Great Britain also showed some improvement over 1943, the board disclosed, but continued below the pre-war level for many foods and below 1944 levels in the United States and Canada for meat, dairy products, eggs, sugars, and fruit.

Look out for old Thirsty Plug! Your gasoline is too precious for you to lose 1 gallon in every 10. But that's the amount dirty or worn spark plugs can waste. Better have your Standard Oil Dealer make sure yours are in good working order.

Many oils—even some 10 W oils—congeal when cold, and take a firm grip on engine parts, which can then move only with difficulty. This increases starting troubles . . . is tough on the battery. Easiest-on-the-battery motor oil—bar none—is Standard's Iso-Vis 10 W.

Too bad your crankcase doesn't squeak! When springs squeak, most folks get their cars lubricated. Crankcases give no warnings of sticky sludge that may clog oil lines and lead to burned-out bearings, etc. Better change oil every 60 days, or at 1000 miles—whichever comes first.

CIGARET RATION CALLED UNFAIR AND RIDICULOUS

Only the Dealers Like Dealers' Card Plan.

With the state revenue department tax figures indicating a further drop of about 3 million packs of cigarets for Illinois smokers in January, reaction yesterday to the impending national cigaret rationing program ranged from "unfair" to "ridiculous." Chicago druggists, however, indicated they would give the plan a trial.

Under the ration system, which was announced Monday by 1,000 members of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors in war time conference in the Palmer House, a smoker will carry a card issued by his retailer to regular customers only. The card will be punched when a pack of cigarets is purchased. It will be up to the retailer to determine how many smokes each customer may have from the available supply.

Indorsed by Retailers.

Despite sharp criticism from druggists' groups, the plan was "unhesitatingly indorsed" by the Retail Tobacco Dealers of America, Eric Calamia of Newark, N. J., president of the group, said.

The plaint of the druggists was summed up as follows: "We'll go along with the plan, because anything is better than the present confusion. We can get our cigarets to regular customers all right now—but why don't we get our proper share of cigarets from the distributors?"

Smokers Prove Skeptical.

Smokers consulted at random asked, "Why can't we get several cards at different stores and buy from all of them?" To that question Joseph Kolodny, secretary of the N. A. T. D., replied, "It's the retailer's responsibility to see that his regular customers get their smokes by using the cards."

Cigar store chains said flatly the plan "couldn't possibly operate."

John M. Meyers, executive secretary of the Chicago Retail Druggists association, said a dealer "is lucky to get 50 per cent of pre-famine supplies."

Should Get About 70 Per Cent.

State department of revenue figures showed that a dealer should get about 70 per cent of his normal supply despite all factors in the shortage.

The state records showed a drop of about 28 per cent in the number of cigarets entering the state last December, compared with the same month in 1943, which was before the shortage developed, and a drop of nearly 18 per cent below last November when the shortage was already acute. The figures are:

	1944. [Packs.]	1943.
Dec.	41,878,250	58,285,250
Nov.	51,036,600	57,976,650
Oct.	45,842,978	56,903,150

In the first 13 days of January, 1945, tax was paid on 17,050,000 packs.

VOTE TO INDICT BOHME FOR FIRE FATAL TO SEVEN

The grand jury was reported yesterday to have voted true bills charging murder and arson against Charles Bohme, 44, of 1135 E. 44th st., in connection with the fire Nov. 19 at the Lille apartments, 1353 E. 47th st., in which seven persons lost their lives.

Bohme, who police said confessed setting the Lille fire and 26 others in the Kenwood district, was taken before the grand jury by Assistant State's Atty. Francis T. McCurrie. The true bills were said to charge arson and murder by arson.

The city council yesterday expressed gratitude to Capt. William Burke, Lt. Leonard McPhail and other police of the Hyde Park station and to Mrs. Lida Webster, 4222 Ellis av., for their part in the capture Friday of Bohme. The resolution was introduced by Ald. Cohen [4th].

A wise guy, huh?

'PARTY CIRCLE' SCHEME FOR 'CON CON' AN ORPHAN

Leaders Say They Are Not Sponsors.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly said yesterday they have taken no position on the proposal that the legislature enact a law so that voters marking straight ballots in the 1946 general election would automatically be voting in favor of a constitutional convention.

Some promoters of "con con" [political slang for constitutional convention] believe that, with the leaders of both the Republican and Democratic patronage organizations committed to the convention, it cannot fail of legislative approval this session. These promoters are already busy on the next step—assuring approval by a majority of all the voters in the 1946 election.

"Party Circle" Bill Is Planned.

The "party circle" bill is the means chosen toward that end. This bill, not yet introduced, will provide that the "con con" proposal be printed on the ballot under the party labels, if the parties indorse the proposal in state convention. Persons marking the party circles would be voting for the "con con."

"I didn't support the 'party circle' bill in the 1943 legislature, Gov. Green said. "I haven't given much thought to any such bill for this session, but I'm not going to have one introduced."

Mayor Kelly, who is Democratic Cook county chairman and Democratic national committeeman for Illinois, likewise said he had not studied the "party circle" plan of voting.

Schnackenberg Opposes Plan.

Elmer J. Schnackenberg, speaker of the Illinois house for two sessions, recalled yesterday his leadership in battles against the "party circle" bills.

"It is a plan for tricking the voters," he said.

"Resolutions are usually decided on by a few party leaders early one morning in a smoke filled room. This would be true of a proposed constitutional amendment, altho 'con con' might receive greater consideration."

"Under the 'party circle' method not one in 100 voters would realize that in voting for his favorite candidates he also was voting for constitutional change. Proponents of a constitutional convention should have enough confidence in their issue and the voters to put it squarely up to them. The issue should not masquerade under a party label."

The Old Time Printers' Association of Chicago will place a wreath on the monument of Benjamin Franklin in Lincoln park at 1 p. m. today in observance of his 239th birthday. Larry E. Goddard, president, will speak at the ceremony.

On Saturday night in the Furniture club banquet hall, 666 Lake Shore dr., the printers will hold their 60th annual reunion and dinner-dance. Speakers will be President Goddard, Fred J. Hagen, and Gradie Oakes, both of the latter past presidents of the Chicago Club of Printing House Craftsmen.

The Old Time Printers' association was organized in 1886 to honor the memory of Franklin. The Franklin monument in Lincoln park was donated to the association by Joseph Medill.

RANKIN TO PUSH DIES' FIGHT ON REDS, SMEARERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.], in a radio address tonight, characterized the new and permanent house committee on un-American activities as "a grand jury which will be in session from now on" for action against communistic and other subversive elements in the nation.

The Mississippian, whose motion to revive and perpetuate the old Dies committee was approved, 207 to 186, by the house on Jan. 3, said he was reluctantly accepting a place on the committee, despite pressure of other duties, in order to guard against attempts to stifle its work.

He warned that "it is likely to prove embarrassing to some members of this new committee if they attempt to block our efforts to rid this country of these un-American activities."

Move to "Stack" Committee.

Rankin referred to the fact that four of the six Democrats appointed to the committee voted against its creation. He had predicted such an attempt by the New Deal leadership to "stack" the committee.

"I have finally decided to accept a place on the new committee," he said, "in order to assist in steering the committee on a course that will reach all forms of un-American activity, whether they be in high or low places and to preserve the valuable records of the Dies committee."

Since 1920, Rankin continued, American Communists, "poison in the bloodstream of our nation, have used ever-changing tactics to undermine and weaken our government, wipe out the Constitution, and destroy everything our fathers have built, in the hope that out of chaos they might seize power."

Reds Must Be Watched.

"They must be watched and spotlighted, along with the Germans, Japs, and other un-American elements, because their aim is the destruction of our system of government and our way of life."

Rankin adopted the phrase, "smear bund," coined by former Chairman Dies [D., Tex.] to designate radio and newspaper publicists and propagandists "whose members have done so much to destroy the character and reputation of men in public life who do not agree with them on national and international affairs."

"We must have a committee on un-American activities," he declared, "to strip the mask from these impostors and show the American people what they are and what they propose to do."

Rankin called upon all citizens to write their congressmen and tell them their views on the committee's work.

"The house established this committee because it was reflecting the concern of a vast majority of the American people over what is happening thruout Europe and what might happen to this country if we should relax our vigilance."

BAN UMBRELLAS AT ROOSEVELT'S INAUGURATION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—If the weather for President Roosevelt's inauguration Saturday is as bad as some of his earlier ones, the guests will just have to take it.

The last item on the official program made public today says: "No umbrellas permitted."

The President estimates the ceremony scheduled for noon, will take no longer than 20 minutes, Secretary Stephen Early said.

Official guests are expected to number no more than 5,000 and the ceremony will be broadcast over the nation and shortwaved abroad.

CAUSE OF HOTEL BLAZE SOUGHT; QUIZ SURVIVORS

Statements Vary; 8 of 14 Dead Unidentified.

Survivors of the fire in which 14 persons were killed and eight injured early yesterday in the 75 room General Clark hotel, 217 N. Clark st., were still being interviewed last night by investigators attempting to learn the origin of the blaze. It was one of the worst fires in Chicago in 25 years.

John L. Fenn, chief of the fire prevention bureau, said he believed it started in the rear of Wolff's cigar store, 219 N. Clark st. One witness, Lale Henry, 38, of Bloomington, a sailor, told Coroner Brodie he was awakened by an explosion and saw flames in the corridor outside his room on the second floor. Other witnesses said the fire started at the front of the hotel and some said it originated at the rear.

Flames Spread Rapidly.

Most witnesses agreed that the flames spread rapidly.

If the fire had started at the rear of the building it would have swept swiftly up the wooden stairwell and elevator shaft to all floors and the roof, Fenn said.

An inquest will be opened at 11 a. m. today in the county morgue by Coroner Brodie before a jury of six engineers.

Eight bodies, including that of one woman, remained unidentified last night.

Identified dead are Addison Wolfe, 50, draft board employe; Joseph Miller, 35; William Roeslen, 72, a bus boy; Thomas McCormick, 47, cab driver; Edward Jesle, 36, linotype operator, and Joseph Fellen, 60, an accountant.

Five Remain in Hospitals.

Five persons who suffered injuries and burns remained in hospitals. They are Hoke Bailey, 33, a sailor on the U. S. S. Wolverine, reported critically burned, at Wesley Memorial hospital, and Mrs. Ella Johnson, 38, multiple fractures of the left leg, a possible skull fracture, and lacerations sustained, apparently, when she leaped from a window; Frank Carroll, 46, hotel clerk, minor burns; Charles Webb, 62, waiter, burns on hands and face, and Louis Caplin, 71, minor burns, all in Henrotin hospital.

Perry Rosenberger, night manager of the hotel, said 76 persons, most of them men, were registered there Monday night. The hotel register was charred, hampering attempts to identify all the bodies.

Thousands of persons saw the fire that was discovered soon after midnight. It was not under control until 3 a. m. Three persons leaped into firemen's nets, and a dozen were rescued by ladders.

JAILS MOTHERS WHO LEFT BABES IN FRIGID ROOMS

Mrs. Beatrice Hanson, 19, and Mrs. Ruth Moen, 25, both of 10065 Indianapolis av., and both wives of men in service, were sentenced to 30 days in jail yesterday by Judge George B. Weiss in the Court of Domestic Relations on charges of contributing to the dependency of their five children.

Policeman Theodore Wojciehowski of the traffic division testified he found the youngsters unattended, hungry and cold in their unheated flat. He said one baby's hands were frozen to her bottle and that the clothing of another child was frozen. Policewoman Mary Bennett corroborated his story. Mrs. Moen and Mrs. Hanson testified they had attended New Year's celebrations and that each thought the other was at home with the children.

In another case, Mrs. Helen Ivanic, 22, of 853 N. Hermitage av., was given a year's probation for leaving her two children alone while she visited a tavern. Richard Pavey, 21, and his wife, Vertice, of 2846 Warren blvd., were placed under supervision for leaving their infant home alone while they were out drinking.

Romance Tuned To The Hunting Horn

MISS BARBERA

Never was there such a novel! Horses and hounds and two dashing heroes run rampant through its pages. It's a sweeping, high-spirited, tally-ho of a book, done up in the best romantic tradition.

We refer to "The Bolinvars" ($3.00) by Margaret Bayliss, first published in a limited edition seven years ago, and now reappearing on the literary scene in a blaze of renewed glory. Miss Barbera, manager of the Daily News Bldg. Book Shop, recommends "The Bolinvars" without reservation. She guarantees it will delight the reader who enjoys fiction for fiction's sake.

Miss Barbera also suggests you read Jan Karski's gripping story of the Polish Underground, "Story of a Secret State" ($3.00). For four years, Lt. Karski served as a liaison officer between the secret state and the Polish government in London. He tells fearlessly and proudly of the underground web of schools, courts and newspapers which flourished in spite of the Nazis' rule.

Then, if you would start the New Year right, get a copy of "Dear Sir" ($1.00), that amazing and amusing collection of actual letters received by draft boards, business houses and the like. It's a "comedy of errors" with misplaced commas and dangling participles as the comedians. Don't miss it!

SEWER PROJECT, AT 84 MILLIONS, TOPS CITY PLANS

Council Will Hear the Details Today.

BY EDWARD SCHREIBER.

A sewer construction program that would become Chicago's No. 1 post-war plan if its sponsors have their way will be considered today by the city council committee on planning headed by Ald. Lindell [9th].

The program as it will be explained to the committee today by its sponsors, Public Works Commissioner Hewitt and Thomas D. Garry, superintendent of city sewers, has the approval of Mayor Kelly, who is expected to appear at the committee meeting to urge full consideration of the proposal.

Hope for Federal Grant.

Total cost of the program has been estimated at $84,596,000, much of which it is hoped will come from federal grants. A plan to raise the city's share of the cost has not yet been formulated. An added expenditure of 15 million dollars in sanitary district funds for sewers which will be attached to the city's system is also being considered, it was learned.

The purpose of Hewitt and Garry in presenting the program, they said yesterday, is twofold. First, Chicago urgently needs adequate sewerage, and second, it would provide many post-war jobs for returning soldiers and sailors and for men no longer required in war plants.

Important to Health.

"No post-war project approaches this sewer program in importance so far as preserving public health is concerned," Hewitt said. "No large city can exist without sufficient sanitary facilities and blighted areas cannot be revived without the prerequisite of adequate sewers."

Hewitt pointed out that as a means of providing jobs for returning veterans and others no project can be put into operation as speedily as sewer construction. Surveys for much of the work already have been made. Size has been calculated in most instances and the grade determined. Most of the cost, it was pointed out, would be for labor, both skilled and unskilled.

CAPTAINS CARRY JOB APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

Six police captains and an acting captain who were discharged last June by the Chicago civil service commission appealed to the Illinois Supreme court yesterday to compel the city to comply with Superior Judge Joseph A. Graber's order to reinstate the officers and pay their back salaries.

The officers, who asserted they were discharged illegally, are Captains Thomas Harrison, John T. Cartan, Walter F. Healy, Lewis Klatzco, Eugene Barry, and Thomas Connelly, and Lt. William J. Drury. It was said in Springfield that the Supreme court may rule this month on a motion to consider the officers' petition.

James S. Osborne, secretary of the civil service commission, said yesterday that all lieutenants who qualified for promotions to captains should file records of military service with the commission by 5 p. m. tomorrow. They will be allowed a maximum of 1.7 points for 18 months' service. Military credits will make some changes in the standing of 110 names posted Monday. Lt. Michael J. Ahern, in third place with 87.87 points, will get full military credit and may move to top position with 89.57 points.

COUNCIL URGES: EMPLOY WOMEN ON STREET CARS

A resolution encouraging the Chicago Surface Lines to employ women conductors on street cars was adopted by the city council yesterday on motion of Ald. Keenan [49th], who said the company has blamed deteriorating service on a shortage of man power. A company official said women will not be employed as conductors or motormen now.

The council also approved a suggestion by Ald Wagner [14th] that the Illinois commerce commission be requested to order the surface lines to improve their service. Deadline for the traction companies to accept the 1941 unified traction ordinance was extended to May 1.

A tax levy of $69,228,717 for the board of education for 1945 was approved by the council. This is an increase of $1,396,110 over that of 1944.

Now, more than ever, it is to your advantage to follow the dispatches of the experienced staff of Chicago Tribune foreign correspondents thruout the world in order to keep abreast of events affecting American lives and America's future.

SEZ WHO?

"YOU CAN'T LIVE in that tangled mess of wilderness," said the people who came down to the docks to see them off in 1620.

"Sez who?" said the Americans-to-be—and did it.

"You can't ignore my taxes," said a king, not many years later, "even though you had no voice in framing them."

"Sez who?" said the 1776 Americans—and set off the most momentous revolution in all history.

"You can't keep that hemisphere all for yourselves," said a big European coalition. "You've got to cut us in."

"Sez who?" said the 1823 Americans—and announced the Monroe Doctrine.

"You can't unite east and west," said the short-sighted. "They're too far apart."

"Sez who?" said the 1869 Americans—and threw a railroad across the continent.

"You can't pay laborers five dollars a day," said the look-with-alarmists.

"Sez who?" said the twentieth-century mass-production Americans. And proceeded to pay labor even more.

"You can't get over the Depression," said the weak-in-heart. "America's mature. It's full-grown. All you can do now is divide what you already have."

And Americans—a little frightened, a little timid—made no answer. Until three dictators, seeing our timidity, said, "Democracy is degenerate, anemic, afraid."

"Sez who?" said the 1941 Americans—and rolled up their sleeves and built the biggest production plant and fought the greatest war the world had ever seen.

And now there are those who say, "But we'll never be able to use in peace all the productive capacity we built for war."

Sez who?

★ ★ ★

It's true that our productive plant is bigger than ever before. It's true that a lot of it was built for war. It's true that much of it will have to be rebuilt for peace.

So what? We can do it!

It's true that, to keep all that productive capacity operating, we'll have to make sure that people will be able to buy all we'll be able to produce after the war.

We can do that, too!

Not through government hand-outs—which would only pile up more debt and higher and higher taxes. But by using our productive capacity to give Americans more for their money in the things they buy, so they can buy more—and thus create more jobs and more earnings for all.

In short, by making full use of this country's limitless energy and ambition, we can help lead the world into an era of peace and plenty greater than any yet seen.

Business is pledged to do its part—first, by increasing the opportunities for all to earn and, second, by increasing the opportunities for all to buy.

To increase the opportunities for all to earn, business pledges a just and enlightened wage policy, and the opening of every possible avenue of advancement for the worker.

It proposes to proceed at the earliest possible moment with the starting of new ventures and the expansion of old in order to provide more jobs for more people—including returning servicemen and demobilized war workers.

It proposes to put into workers' hands the most efficient tools available—so that a worker, by increasing his production, may add still further to his earnings.

To increase the opportunities for all to buy, business proposes to make full use of the technological "know how" it has accumulated during the war to put on the market the finest products that can be made, at the lowest prices for which they can be sold.

It proposes to seek, through unending study and research in the fields of production and distribution, every possible means for lowering prices still further over the years, so that more of the good things of life can be enjoyed by more and more of the people.

It proposes to encourage full and free competition to avoid restraint of trade and so assure better and better values.

★ ★ ★

This is business's program for the future. To bring it about as quickly as possible will require your help. For its accomplishment will need legislative action—action that you can encourage. Postwar tax policies that leave sufficient funds for expansion. Laws that clearly prevent unregulated monopoly. Labor policies that establish the responsibilities of both labor and management. And business operation under law instead of by unpredictable "directive."

If you wish to know more about this program, write for the free booklet, How Americans Can Earn More, Buy More, Have More. Address: National Industrial Information Committee, 14 West 49th Street, New York 20, N. Y.

These messages are published to make clear the steps that must be taken to assure the American people of an economy of abundance in the postwar world. They are sponsored by the NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL INFORMATION COMMITTEE of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS, which represents thousands of different businesses, large and small, employing 75 per cent of the wage earners in the manufacturing industry.

"the unpleasant aroma of cooking no longer greets my husband"

"I have a small apartment with a long narrow foyer," writes Mrs. Maphet. "It seems all cooking and house odors settle right there. Recently I purchased my first air-wick* and placed it in the hall. Well, when my husband returns from work now, the unpleasant aroma of cooking no longer meets him at the front door. I hope others appreciate air-wick as much as I do."

CHICAGOAN DIES IN B-17 CRASH IN TENNESSEE

Dyersburg, Tenn., Jan. 16 [Special].—Corp. Edward J. Lavin Jr., 160 N. Laramie av., Chicago, was one of six army airmen known to have been killed in the crash of a B-17 bomber near here last night. Four others are missing and are believed also to have perished. Corp. Lavin would have been 24 on Feb. 21. He entered the army in August, 1942. He leaves his parents and two sisters. He was radio operator of the ill fated B-17.

Chicagoan Missing.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 16 (AP).—Ensign Rine Kruger Jr., Crestline, O., and Arthur Ernest Utecht, aviation radioman 3d class, Munising, Mich., were found alive in the Cascades east of Mount Vernon today and search parties were dispatched to hunt for four companions in a medium bomber missing since Sunday. Kruger and Utecht parachuted from the plane. Fate of the other four, who included Daniel Smotherman, aviation ordnanceman, of 7411 St. Lawrence av., Chicago, was unknown.

6 NAZIS IN U. S. CAMPS SLAIN; 2 OTHERS SUICIDES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Six German prisoners of war have been slain and two others forced by fellow prisoners to take their own lives in prisoner of war camps in this country, it was disclosed by the war department today.

With the exception of one, all of the victims were accused of turning traitor against Germany by giving information to American officials or expresing anti-Nazi views, officials said.

The penalties were imposed by "kangaroo courts" of prisoners. Some of the victims were beaten, others hanged, in the darkness of night.

There has been no record of such incidents since April, 1944. Speedy courts martial of suspects by then had been inaugurated and special protection was provided for prisoners who feared they would be harmed.

PLASMA SAVES CHICAGO HERO IN GUAM FIGHT

Corp. Richard J. Adams, 26, marine, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Adams, 8015 Constance av., a patient in Oak Knoll hospital, Oakland, Cal., owes his life to a speedy transfusion of blood plasma in the battle on Guam, his parents have learned.

Adams was one of a wave of marines who stormed the beach. A sniper's bullet grazed his chest, but he kept on going. Then a mortar shell threw him into the air. Flying metal ripped out part of his hip bone, and caused abdominal injuries.

His first transfusion of plasma came within five minutes. Then he was taken to a hospital ship, where more plasma was pumped into his veins at intervals for 40 days. When he arrived at Oakland, he weighed 70 pounds. Since his admission there last October his weight has risen to 100 pounds, still short of his normal 160.

BARNES ENDS 5TH YEAR AS POLICE LABOR UNIT HEAD

Police Lt. George T. Barnes, who was ninth on the civil service list of eligibles for police captaincies which was released Monday, finishes his fifth year as head of the police labor detail today. He was given command of the detail when it was organized Jan. 18, 1940, after the furor created by the ball bat murder Dec. 27, 1939, of Marius Hvid, owner of a union picketed garage at 3514 N. Halsted st.

In handling labor disputes Lt. Barnes often attends labor-management meetings lasting most of the night, and then gets out at 3 or 4 a. m. to police picket lines. His work has received commendation both from labor officials and employers.

Lt. Barnes was appointed a policeman June 8, 1922. Except for his first six months in the department he has been a detective, working in plain clothes. He was promoted to sergeant Sept. 1, 1935, and was made a lieutenant Sept. 1, 1942. He lives with his wife, Jeanette, and daughter, Dolores, at 2904 N. Luna.

How many lives has an M-18 HELLCAT?

One way to answer that question is to take a look at battle-front reports from a Buick engineer, sent to get firsthand dope on how the Buick-built M-18 Hellcat is doing.

On one occasion, he writes, one of our Hellcats ran into nine enemy tanks of various sizes.

When the smoke cleared away, all of the German vehicles lay in blasted ruins. The Hellcat was knocked out, too—but only after taking a nine-to-one toll.

In another engagement, eight M-18's were attacked by 20 enemy tanks. When the battle was over, three German tanks were scurrying for cover, 17 were done for—and none of our vehicles or men had been hurt.

But that isn't the whole story.

To the men who handle them, ability to stay in the fight is just as important as the Hellcat's 55-mile top speed, its ability to master any terrain, and the accuracy of its high velocity 76-mm. cannon.

On that score, this can be quoted direct from the same sort of battle-front reports:

"The vehicles have gone mile after mile with little or no maintenance, and in most cases they keep right on going."

All of which, as we see it, makes a gratifying picture. The Hellcats are fast. They go anywhere. They hit hard. And, in the good Buick tradition, they can take it.

Which is exactly what Buick men and Ordnance experts were aiming for from the start.

THE SENATE DEBATE.

The debate into which the senate was led by Mr. Wheeler's proposal that the allies without delay state their peace terms to Germany disclosed a disposition among the administration spokesmen to falsify history and to abase their country before the world. As might have been expected, the senator from Florida, Mr. Pepper, was particularly zealous in heaping fiery coals upon the heads of Americans.

To hear him tell it, when the senate after the first World war refused to accept the league of nations the United States became responsible for all the succeeding miseries of the world down to the present day. If Mr. Pepper had been a paid apologist for the craven statesmen of Europe who refused to attempt to stop the axis aggressors thru the league or by any other means, he could not have done a better job. If he had deliberately sought to make this country contemptible in the eyes of both its allies and its enemies, he could not have improved his performance.

Sen. Lucas of Illinois, apparently mindful of his new responsibilities as a member of the foreign relations committee, distinguished himself with a display of ignorance notable even for him. Sen. Wheeler was compelled to set him right when Mr. Lucas indicated a belief that Woodrow Wilson had not outlined peace terms while the first war was in progress, but had enunciated the 14 points after the war.

President Wilson's name is frequently invoked by the New Deal internationalists in these discussions of foreign policy, and it would seem that they ought to know something about him. If they knew a little more they would know that both he and other allied leaders showed a much greater disposition than does Mr. Roosevelt to offer principles upon which the enemy could base expectations of a peace which would tempt him to lay down his arms.

Mr. Wilson, after May 18, 1917, when they were sent him by Mr. Balfour, was not unaware of a great number of the secret treaties which were to cripple his efforts at Versailles. His allies did not feel it necessary to disclose all of their back room agreements to him, but he was at least generally aware of the spoils which they intended to have. He could, in fact, be quite calm about it, remarking on one occasion, "The experience of Europe has made national disinterestedness almost incredible to its peoples."

Against this sort of background Mr. Wilson was still capable of offering the 14 points. They were, on the one hand, a statement of moral purpose which, in view of the intrigues and spoils politics of his allies, were unlikely to prevail as a working basis for peace and world organization, and of this he could not have been unaware. On the other hand, they were a highly practical piece of war diplomacy, calculated to weaken the resolution of the central powers to carry on the war, and to offset the peace tender which Germany had made thru the pope on Aug. 1, 1917.

Lloyd George has never been accused of idealism, yet he, too, was aware of the value of sounding conciliatory, even tho his talk was conceived by himself as a weapon against the enemy. Therefore, on Jan. 5, 1918, he was to be found saying, "We are not fighting a war of aggression against the German people. . . . The destruction or disruption of Germany or the German people has never been a war aim with us from the first day of the war to the present day. . . . The settlement of the new Europe must be based upon such grounds of reason and justice as will give some promise of stability. Therefore it is that we feel that government with the consent of the governed must be the basis of any territorial settlement in this war."

Before the text of Lloyd George's speech had arrived in this country Wilson wrote a message for Balfour on his own typewriter to be sent over the signature of Col. House. In it he explained his motives in his forthcoming speech of Jan. 8 outlining the 14 points. Balfour was informed:

"The President wishes me to let the prime minister or you know that he feels that he must presently make some specific utterance as a counter to the German peace suggestions. . . . The President feels that we have so far been playing into the hands of the German military party and solidifying German opinion against us, and he has information which seems to open a clear way of weakening the hands of that party and clearing the way of all possible misinterpretation and misunderstanding."

Here, then, in so many words was the motive for Wilson's statement of the 14 points. Here was expressed his belief that they would prove a powerful propaganda weapon, divisive in their effect upon the ranks of the enemy, and capable of hastening the end of the war.

Perhaps the tendency of the New Dealers in the senate to retreat into past history—and to misinterpret it at that—is explained by the fact that the bankruptcy of Mr. Roosevelt's diplomacy has left his adherents nothing to discuss that is relevant to present realities. Instead of the 14 points we get the Morgenthau plan. Instead of a crippling blow to German morale we get the mumbo-jumbo of "unconditional surrender."

THE COMMUNISTS GO TO BAT FOR BRIDGES.

Earl Browder feels sufficiently reassured by the results of the election to come into the open in behalf of Harry Bridges and lecture the Supreme court and the nation on proper respect for the American Constitution. Mr. Browder's Communist Political association has asked leave for the court to intervene in Bridges' appeal from an order to deport him to his native Australia as an undesirable alien.

Bridges, thruout his fight to escape deportation, swore up and down that he wasn't a Communist. Mr. Browder, in fronting for him, senses a change of climate in Washington. It will be remembered that Mr. Roosevelt during the campaign issued a soft disavowal of communist support, but now that he is in for a fourth term all parties can afford to drop the pretense.

Mr. Browder and his movement emerge with the evident feeling that Mr. Roosevelt's victory has clothed them in a new respectability which justifies them in assuming such a close responsibility for the conduct of the nation's affairs that they can now interpret the laws of the Republic for the Supreme court. The communist petition asks that hearings in the Bridges case "be properly held in a manner provided by law and the Constitution."

It is obvious that Mr. Browder feels that when the Communists and the CIO political action committee put Mr. Roosevelt across, the accomplishment identified them with the fourth term leadership. They are asserting the same rights to guide and counsel the nation as Mr. Roosevelt himself. The New Deal's communist appendage can now be considered official.

SHIPS, TRAINS, AND PLANES.

The current Aero Digest contains pleas by spokesmen for the American merchant shipping and railroad industries that they be allowed to engage in air transport.

At present the civil aeronautics board interprets the act which it administers as forbidding steamship lines to run transoceanic air lines, or railroads to run domestic air lines. This interpretation of the act is now being contested in the courts by steamship operators. Obviously, the broader question is not whether the CAA possesses the legal power to bar shipping lines and railroads from air transports, but whether it should possess that power.

For the shipping lines Almon E. Roth, president of the National Federation of American Shipping, advances the argument that steamship lines must be given authority to supplement the water routes that they have already developed with air lines if the American merchant marine is to compete on even terms with the merchant marine of other nations.

His plea rests only partly on the fact that British and other steamship lines will be able, after the war, to offer prospective passengers a choice between air and ship travel. There is also apprehension on the part of the maritime companies that they are going to lose a high proportion of their passenger traffic, perhaps as much as 50 per cent, to planes. If the ship owners are not permitted to compete in the new field of air transportation, they fear they will go broke in their present one.

On behalf of railroads which want to get into domestic air transportation, John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, advances the plea that the public will be given better service. Railroads, he says, have to carry air line passengers when planes are grounded. Why, he asks, should they be required to provide the backstop service and yet be denied the cream of air operation?

The argument against the maritime and railroad interests was well summarized a year ago by Rep. Bulwinkle [Dem., N. C.], who said: "Surface carrier interests, if permitted to throw their weight into air transport enterprises would cripple if not entirely destroy the independent air carrier. This would result in an air transport industry dominated by those whose primary interest is to protect their interest in the older form of transportation."

To this a representative of the shipping lines has retorted that it would have been just as absurd to forbid owners of sailing ships to run steamships as it is to forbid owners of steamships to run airplanes. For the railroads, Mr. Pelley meets the charge directly with the assertion that the same problem already has been met by the railroads, when they entered the field of bus transportation. He quotes a spokesman for independent bus operators to the effect that, instead of attempting to sabotage or stifle bus transportation, rail owned bus lines have been active in developing it.

The American instinct, verified by more than a century of experience, is that competition gives the public better service and lower costs, in transportation as well as in other lines of business. To justify barring the older transportation industries from the new field of air transport, it would be necessary to prove that their entry would stifle competition instead of quickening it. The existing air lines are not the best witnesses on this point. They have an obvious interest in keeping added competitors out, which may not be, and probably is not, coincident with the public interest.

It should not be assumed that railroads would run air lines as they run railroads, or that shipping lines would run air lines as they run steamships. The existing air lines fear that the vastly greater financial resources of the maritime and railroad businesses would crowd them out of the field developed by their pioneering. If railroad owned air lines were encumbered by the accounting red tape, executive timidity, and featherbed rules of the railroads the existing air lines would have little to fear, and if the steamship owned air lines were handicapped by communist crews the competition would not be damaging. That, however, is not likely to be the nature of the competition as the air lines foresee it.

COMIC OPERA LOVE.

While watching Prince Danilo and his Sonya in the revival of "The Merry Widow," yearning for each other's arms yet refusing to accept their happy fate until the third act finale, we meditated upon the mysterious force that keeps the heroes and heroines of operetta apart. They are always that way, and no one knows why. The few words of inadequate explanation that the librettist contributes often disappear in rehearsals in favor of a song and dance, but if spoken on the stage they are usually inaudible.

* * *

This problem has troubled our mind for almost half a century. Science has been deeply concerned with the unknown architecture of the atom and the invisibility of viruses, but our own ambition has been to solve the riddle of operetta plots. The behavior of the principal characters runs counter to the natural laws that control the boy-meets-girl situation. We grant that the course of true love never did run smooth, especially on the stage, but what ruffles it so persistently in lyric comedy? The tenor and soprano, biologically predestined for rapturous embraces at the final curtain, nevertheless seem to be under a spell of nagging, snubbing, sneering, misunderstanding, and quarreling until the merry choristers troop out at 11 p. m. to serve notice that it is time to end that nonsense and surrender to nature.

* * *

In the case of Prince Danilo and his merry widow, we know that the prince had been jilted by the lady when she was a maiden and had sworn that never again would she get her pretty claws into his hide and heart. But we learned this from reading a book; never, in the many times that we have attended "Merry Widow" performances, have we heard it clearly spoken from the stage. Producers, we assume, throw such useful information into the wastebasket.

* * *

As it was in the beginning, so it is in the present. The latest model from the operetta production line, "Oklahoma," contains the same old mystery.

When Boys Become Tree-Sitters.

You have not completely lived as a boy unless you have spent at least one summer in a tree-top house. To a boy perched on a 6 by 6 foot platform 15 feet in the air, the panorama below is thrilling. Small trees look like bushes, bushes look like cabbage plants, and picket fences assume toothpick stature. Your back yard is just a small, green, oblong plot.

To join a tree-top gang required an ability to chip in with building material. If your back yard could boast of a good sized tree, you could almost dictate to prospective members. An extra tall ladder made you a member; also, any lumber you could sneak from Pa's basement. Hammers, saws, and nails were the open sesame for election. Hinges, a good strong pair for trap door purposes, made a high grade member.

Each tree-top project would boast of many accidents during its building and occupancy. Smashed thumbs, skinned shins, 15 foot falls, and rusty nail punctures led the list.

Undesirable members were ingeniously blackballed. For instance, you could be left up there last—without the ladder. The trap door could accidentally fall across your hands. The parental investigating probe, "Did he fall or who pushed him?" usually closed our castle in the sky, but not for more than a week. After much begging and pleading, and relentless juvenile perseverance, plus the promise to behave hereafter, the house was reopened. Alexander Beifuss.

THE BACKWARD LOOK.

The days that have gone and never can come again,
They lay on my heart a burden of tears unshed.
Whatever tomorrow bring, be it joy or pain,
Can never equal the sum of the days now dead.
If there were a final curtain to every play,
Or a heart could finish the tale and close the book,
Then every tomorrow could be another day,
With never a burning ache nor a backward look.
For this is the heaviest cross that a heart can know:
The weight of the vanished days that we cherished so!

In Valhalla, the ancient Norsemen's heaven, there were no rationing problems. Bulfinch's work on mythology says:

"The flesh of the boar Schrimnir is served up to them, and is abundant for all. For altho this boar is cooked every morning, he becomes whole again every night."

Overheard in a tobacco store: "Sorry, no pipes, but we have a full line of cigaret holders."

Add civilian horrors: The use of stapling machines instead of paper clips. A convenience for the letter sender, no doubt, but often a nuisance and loss of time for the recipient.

P. S. W. asks: "If the 4-F's and men over 30 are to be taken in the draft, how will they be called? Will the 4-F's be taken for limited service?"

Both groups will be called by order number. The men in the 4-F classification who are found capable of serving will have their papers stamped, "acceptable for military service." It appears now that there will be no limited service designation.

A. H. M. asks: "Would you define the term 'income' as used by the veterans' administration in connection with a widow's pension for widows of World War I, whose husbands died of nonservice connected causes? I believe that income in case of a widow without children is limited to $1,000. Does this mean after the taxes on such income have been paid?"

The limitation applies to total income from all sources before tax has been deducted. However, if the widow is operating some sort of a small business, all the expenses incident to deriving such income are to be deducted before determination of the widow's eligibility for payment of all or a part of the pension.

AMERICAN HOMES ARE CLEAN.

THE practical application of the rules of sanitation within the home is the pride of these United States. It has been well said of many a housewife, "You can eat off her kitchen floor."

The manual labor involved may have cost many a backache but the significance is clear. The average American home is immaculate. Meals are prepared so that they cannot become contaminated and they are served on dishes that are free from noxious germs.

We must keep in mind, however, that in war time we are likely to drop our standards. There are two principal sources of pollution. The first is dirt that is tracked into the household or is carried on soiled hands or clothing. Thus particles may find their way into the digestive tract. The second is water, milk, or some other commonly employed substance that may become the "starter" of an epidemic.

We must not forget that typhoid fever, altho it has largely been conquered, can make its appearance and spread widely if we become careless. Fortunately, we have a specific method of acquiring immunity. A series of three inoculations will safeguard us against this aforetime scourge. We must recall that there are carriers in our midst. They have had the disease, perhaps years ago, and still harbor the causative "bugs." If, perchance, they work in a kitchen or dining room, the organisms may be transmitted to many individuals. Recently, in one of the provinces of Canada, a sizable outbreak was traced to cheese manufactured from unpasteurized milk.

Most of our food poisoning episodes are due to the salmonella group of microbes. These invaders can cause so many disorders that we must be ever alert against their presence. Proper refrigeration and keeping insects away from our nutriments will save the day.

This same precaution applies to dysentery. The civilian population escapes this malady no more frequently than the members of the armed forces. It has been estimated that there are nearly 200,000 cases each year in this country. The total is not consistent and may rise or fall, depending upon the season. But dysentery is so often disastrous with children that it becomes a serious health problem. Vermin can carry the germs on their legs and pollute our edibles.

Our most immediate and important reason for protecting milk lies in the growing prevalence of Malta, or undulant fever. While fatalities are few, nevertheless the period of illness may be prolonged. We will stamp out this infection when we practice universal pasteurization of milk products.

Finally, we must mention staphylococci, which reside on the skin of many of us. We carry these organisms into minor cuts and wounds via scratching and many a one will display a crop of boils when his only trouble is lack of good hygiene.

But no one need develop a bacteria phobia. In fact, many forms are harmless. The dangerous types, however, do abound. With a little care, we can avoid them. We can oblige cleanliness to pay big dividends.

CLEAN UP.

L. H. writes: I have been told that fumigation after a communicable disease, is now out of style. What has taken its place?

REPLY.

Thoro cleanliness. The ordinary rules of housecleaning should be invoked—washing the walls, ceiling, and floor of the sickroom. Repainting or repapering may be called for. All the bedding should be aired and laundered and the furniture gone over with soap and hot water, our best antiseptic agents.

MENTAL SYMPTOMS.

H. J. writes: Is the mind affected in pellagra?

REPLY.

Yes, if the disorder is not corrected. Mental depression, alterations in personality, even delusions may be experienced.

BY ANY OTHER NAME.

D. R. writes: What is the technical name of head lice?

REPLY.

Pediculosis.

TAKING OVER

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Whose War Is This?

The marine just back from two years in the Pacific looked up from the double order of scrambled eggs he had been eating with such relish and sighed. "Sometimes," he reflected, "I wonder whether the women of America are in this war."

To the other marines in his company, he explained, he had been a mentor and grandfather. He was an old man, 28, and they were 17 and 18, and 19. They called him Pop and brought him their problems. Invariably the problem dealt with the girl back home. At least four times a week he tried to straighten out tangled romances and marriages by interceding, as a chaplain might, in a letter written directly to the girl or wife.

"Then there was this young Italian kid from New York state," he began. "He was a good, clean, fine kid. Down in Australia he had always behaved himself. He had saved his money and sent it back to his girl to keep for him. It was one of those childhood dream things. They had always planned to be married. He bought her a beautiful ring and sent it to her. She was all he wanted out of life, all he talked about.

"The day we went into Peleliu there was a last mail call right before we went in. He had a letter from the girl. She was 'very sorry, and hated to tell him, but—' she had married a soldier stationed near her home three days before. Yet in the letter just before that she had told him how all she dreamed of was his return.

"He was a fine, good kid, and he went into that beachhead and fell the first day. He didn't even duck."

"It takes months and months to train a marine. It takes months and money and men, a long line stretching back and a line that begins at home. And then he doesn't duck because he doesn't want to duck. He has nothing to go forward to.

"If she had broken the thing off gradually over a period of months, it might have been different. Then he could have built up indifference and resistance and compensation. He wouldn't have been so vulnerable. But out there you're always vulnerable. All you have to cling to is what you left back home.

"Johnny was a good kid and a good friend," bitterly, "and that's what it did to him.

"Things like that make you wonder whether the marines are the only ones fighting this war," he concluded. "If that is true, we'd like to know it and come on home."

Nomenclature.

The list of names was long and glittering. Hidden in the middle of it was this: Mr. and Madiman Clifton Fadiman.

Confusion.

The parents of the 10 year old boy had gone thru a hectic Christmas season. When it at last drew to an end, the father said to the mother as they retired the night before he must return to work, "Now, don't get up in the morning. I'll fix my own breakfast and get out." The day was bleak and dark when the alarm sounded. The father stumbled out of bed, shaved, bathed, fixed his breakfast, and was about to leave the house when he looked at his watch. It was 2:35 a. m. The 10 year old son had slipped into the bedroom during the early evening and reset the alarm at 1 a. m.

Sugar Daddy.

The middle aged bon vivant had dined and wined well and unwisely with a beautiful siren. As the evening wore on, he began to slide down in his chair. Soon he was fast asleep. The siren took the unused sugar cubes from the table, arranged them on his shirt front in the shape of a cross, placed a red rose in his inert hand, and left.

NOW WE ARE CONFUSED.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Jan. 12.—Here is the answer to that "Solar 8: 18" problem posed by Old Subscriber with the wild glint in his eye. Back in 1884—or maybe it was '85, the year that the Detroit team won the National league pennant—the railroads went down to Washington and induced the Smithsonian institute or some other scientific body to change the time from "sun time" to "railroad" time—and set the clocks in this area ahead about three-quarters of an hour.

When we got into the first World War to make Europe ready for the second World War—we set grandfather's clock ahead another 60 minutes, so that gran'pere was milking the cows at 4:45 in the morning at Shanghai Corners on Pipestone creek, in order to catch the milk train at Sodus, so the customers down at Bung-town on the banks of the canal could have their Jersey cream in time for breakfast.

Sen. Clark of Missouri is right—we have got to get back to "God's time" which is sun time or the country is going to the dogs, and we will lose the war in Europe just as sure as Jeff Davis fought the south into the collapse of the Lost Cause.

The sun rises in this town at 6:33 a. m. Korrected Shanghai Corners' or Ox Bow Bend time—and don't let any time changing, boondoggling burocrat get you out of bed and into your pants at some phony hour in the morning when you ought to be languishing in a dream of your youth—with Clara Kimball Young—in a canoe on the banks of the St. Joe river,

"Where the bumble bee sips when the clover's in bloom,
And the zephyrs come layden with peachblow perfume."

APPRECIATION.

Wallingford, Conn., Jan. 9.—Your first page of the Dec. 25 issue of THE TRIBUNE was seen by the people of my parish, for it was attached to the main bulletin board in our church. We thought it an outstanding feature to have the picture of "Mother and Child"; the Christmas gospel, and the sayings of Jesus adorn the first page of the world's greatest newspaper.

Striking also was your cartoon of THE TRIBUNE being the watchdog of the press. We agree! That is one of the reasons we keep THE TRIBUNE, that we might know the truth.

HUSKY DANCERS AND ATHLETES.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—For a long time I have been wondering how the ballets, ice revues, etc., are able to have their personnel composed so largely of young, healthy, draft age men. Are they deferred because of their artistry? Instead of drafting the farm boys who are essential to the production of food, why not look into the theaters, stadiums, arenas, night clubs, dance halls, and other places of entertainment and find thousands of eligible men big enough and strong enough to fight the Germans and the Japanese?

WILSON ON THE NEW YORK GANG.

Dayton, O., Jan. 8.—Of Mr. Dewey, THE TRIBUNE says: "He got the nomination because of the fiction that only he could carry New York. He did not carry New York." In this connection we should like to quote Woodrow Wilson, who during his campaign for nomination said: "It has become known that the present deadlock is being maintained for the purpose of enabling New York, a delegation controled by a single group of men, to determine the nominee and thus bind the candidate to them. . . . The freedom of the party and its candidate and the security of the government against private control constitute the supreme consideration."

BLOOD FOR FRONT FIGHTERS.

GERMANY, Dec. 16.—Being a citizen of Chicago and knowing full well that your paper reaches most of the population in that city, and also many places outside of Chicago, I want to call attention to the need for blood from donors. Every one ought to be more than glad to buy bonds and also support the fighters, but people are still lax in giving blood. Why? Surely they can't be afraid to part with only one pint, when it means so much to the wounded soldier. Whenever there is a request for blood in behalf of a front line comrade, the response of the soldiers is terrific. If we can do it, why can't the people on the home front?

The soldier is our buddy, he is your son, brother, or father. We won't let him down. Don't you, either. I am in the medical corps and I know what I am talking about.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 13.—I have read with interest your column "Yank Captain Gets Warning on His Future," by Dr. Stephen Rothman. It's too bad Dr. Rothman could not see his way clear to remain in Budapest and carry on his skingame from there.

I do not think our young American doctors who are serving at the front need any criticism from a man who has only been a citizen of this country since May, 1944. My hat's off to Capt. Peter Beal for the fine work he is doing for our American boys.

A. E. BUSH.

THEY'D BE GLAD TO.

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 14.—The American girls shouldn't get too wrought up over the boys' buildup of foreign girls. As a traveling salesman's wife has told her husband for years, "When calico looks like silk it is time to come home."

NEWFOUNDLAND OPENS AIRPORTS TO U. S. AIRLINES

Withdraws Reservation in Transit Pact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—The government of Newfoundland announced today that it is willing to allow commercial airplanes of the United States and other friendly nations to use its refueling bases and fly over its territory after the war.

If the decision is approved by the United Kingdom government in London, it will give Americans the same competitive refueling and transit rights in Newfoundland and Labrador that are enjoyed by British planes, thereby opening to American companies the most direct aerial gateway to Europe.

The announcement said that the Newfoundland commission of government has requested the United Kingdom to withdraw the reservation tacked on the air transit agreement drawn up at the International Civil Aviation conference in Chicago last year.

Set Up "Two Freedoms"

The agreement established what is popularly known as the "two freedoms" of the air. These guarantee every nation signing the document freedom to fly over the territory of the other without landing, and freedom to land for refuling, servicing, or emergency.

Great Britain and the United States were among the 25 nations which signed this agreement in Chicago Dec. 7. When Philip Cunliffe-Lister [Viscount Swinton], chairman of the British delegation, affixed his name, he wrote that the signature did not apply to Newfoundland.

There was widespread American resentment over this reservation because, unless separate negotiations were made, it gave British planes the right to use Newfoundland and Labrador bases while denying that right to American commercial planes.

"Interests Best Served."

At the time Cunliffe-Lister signed the British gave no explanation of why the reservation was taken. The Newfoundland government said today it was done at the request of the two Newfoundland representatives on the British delegation, George London and A. J. Walsh.

The Newfoundland commission of government, the announcement said, has come to the conclusion that "the interests of Newfoundland will be best served in the future by the widest possible use" of its airports.

Newfoundland, caught in financial difficulties during the depression, has been since 1933 in the status of a British colony, ruled by a British governor and a commission of six, composed of three Newfoundlanders and three Britons. Labrador is a dependency of Newfoundland.

STORY OF 3,000 MILE CAR TRIP CAUSES HEARING

OPA Charges Illegal Source of Gas.

Charging that Dr. Eugene W. Szwajkart, a dentist, 4850 N. Mason av., took his family on a 3,000 mile vacation trip to Texas last month on illegally acquired gasoline, the office of price administration has ordered a revocation hearing at 2 p. m. tomorrow, Marion W. Isbell, area OPA director, said yesterday.

Szwajkart faces loss of all gasoline rations for the duration of rationing, Isbell said, if the charges are proved true. The notice was sent to the dentist last Saturday, he said, after members of board 41 at 4942 Milwaukee av., of which Raymond Van Heck is chairman, had received a dozen complaints from irate residents in the neighborhood.

117 Gallon Ration Revoked.

Isbell said Van Heck turned the case over to the area office after he learned that the Szwajkart family of four took the trip to Texas after the board had issued and then revoked a special 117 gallon ration given to the dentist for the purpose of moving to Brownsville, Tex.

The ration was canceled after neighbors reported that members of the family were boasting of their forthcoming vacation trip.

Letters Urge Trip.

Letters from Texas to neighbors urging them to get gasoline and join the family began to arrive about Dec. 20, Isbell said, indicating the Szwajkarts had taken the trip anyway. Isbell said he believed the family left Chicago Dec. 16 and returned Dec. 27.

The hearing will be held by Frederick Fletcher, area gasoline rationing executive.

Dr. Szwajkart refused to say whether he had made the Texas trip or whether he will attend the hearing.

4 Gas Dealers Suspended on Bogus Coupon Charges

Hearing Commissioner John R. Allen of the regional office of price administration yesterday suspended four gasoline stations for the duration of rationing after hearings on charges of accepting and using counterfeit coupons. The station owners and the number of gallons involved were Anthony Penipento, 1152 Adams st., 5,055; Ole Haugland, 9154 Jeffery av.; Peter Linkus, 10656 State st., 1,194, and Louis J. Vaickus, 2625 W. 47th st., 2,388. Linkus testified he paid 12 cents a gallon for counterfeit A-12 coupons.

TWO HELD FOR BURGLARY.

Thomas Graham, 21, of 6234 Dorchester av., and George Thallis, 18, of 1379 E. 57th st., were held to the grand jury in bonds of $30,000 by Judge Joseph J. Drucker in Boys' court yesterday on charges of burglary.

BARTENDER LEFT HOLDING ASPIRIN IN TAVERN DEAL

William Fantozzi, 33, of 2420 Oakly av., a bartender in a saloon at Madison st. and Sacramento av., swallowed a $3,500 aspirin yesterday and then told park police how two strangers had swindled him out of $1,000, plus $2,500 given to him by his brother, now in the ramy, to invest in a tavern.

Fantozzi said he was hooked when he listened to the two men describe a fine buy in a tavern on the northwest side. Fantozzi accompanied the men to the tavern on his night off, and watched as men lined up two deep at the bar and two waiters were kept on the run serving tables and booths.

Excited by the prospective bargain Fantozzi met the two yesterday, and let them examine his wallet, stuffed with $3,500. One of the strangers, meanwhile, developed a headache. Returning the wallet to Fantozzi, he asked him to go to a nearby drug store for an aspirin. When the bartender returned the men had gone. Fantozzi then found that his benefactors had switched wallets on him, leaving him one stuffed with worthless paper. He took the aspirin himself.

H. E. Witherell Named OPA Enforcement Lawyer

Harry E. Witherell, 34, of Evanston, regional litigation attorney for the office of price administration, has been named acting regional enforcement attorney, Rae E. Walters, regional administrator, said yesterday. He replaces Alex Elson, whose resignation became effective Monday. Witherell has been with the OPA two and a half years, during most of which he was chief of the apparel and industrial materials section of the enforcement division.

FIRE IN MICHIGAN AV. BEAUTY SHOP.

Fire in the basement of the Helena Rubenstein beauty salon, 666 N. Michigan av., early yesterday caused damage estimated by firemen at $150. Chief William Quail of the 2d battalion said a defective oil burner caused the fire.

PARDON CLEARS W. H. MALONE OF TAX FRAUD

William H. Malone, 67, of 201 Grand av., Park Ridge, who was sentenced on July 29, 1937, to Leavenworth penitentiary and fined $5,000 on charges of defrauding the government of $59,574 in income taxes in 1929 and 1930, has received a Presidential pardon and his citizenship and civil rights have been restored.

Disclosure of the pardon was made yesterday by Malone's attorney, Sylvester J. Konenkamp.

Malone, former chairman of the Illinois state tax commission, began serving two concurrent two year sentences on May 27, 1938, was transferred because of illness to the federal prison hospital in Springfield, Mo., in August, and was paroled 10 months later. Meanwhile, his fine had been paid by a brother, George.

Malone immediately began a campaign to clear his name after receiving a public welcome in Park Ridge two days after his release. His pardon, won more than five years later, terminated that battle. Malone contended the money in question represented political campaign funds intrusted to him in 1920 for services in behalf of the candidacy of Gen. Leonard Wood for the Republican Presidential nomination and was not taxable as income.

TWO FREED OF ASSAULT CHARGES.

Manuel Garcia, 44, and Francisco Quinkana, 52, both of 117 S. Halsted st., arrested on charges of assault Jan. 12 in the tavern at 128 S. Halsted st. after Ralph Ortiz, 24, of 113 S. Halsted st., bartender, was slashed with a pen knife, were dismissed yesterday by Judge Charles S. Dougherty in Felony court.

CHARLES HAY, WMC DEPUTY, DIES AT CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Charles M. Hay, 64, of St. Louis, deputy chairman and executive director of the war man power commission, died at his home here late today of a heart attack.

Hay, Missouri attorney and politician, had held his WMC position since last July. During the previous year he had been general counsel.

Hay had served as acting chairman of WMC during Commissioner Paul V. McNutt's recent trip to Europe.

SEN. MALONEY OF CONNECTICUT DIES IN SLEEP

Heart Ailment Fatal; Ill Since Jan. 1.

Meriden, Conn., Jan. 16 (AP).—Connecticut's senior senator, Francis T. Maloney [D.], 50, who rose from newspaper reporter to national prominence, died today.

Sen. Maloney.

The senator, who, at the age of 12, was left to support four brothers and sisters and who fought his way to high places the hard way, succumbed in his sleep to a heart attack at a hospital here where he had been ill since Jan. 1.

Connecticut's legislature, its house controled by Republicans and its senate controled by Democrats, was not expected to empower Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, lone Republican among all other state officers, to appoint Maloney's successor until a special election could be held. An election probably cannot be held until late in the spring.

Baldwin, just starting his third term, has frequently been mentioned as a possible candidate for senatorial honors, but because his successor would be Democratic Lt. Gov. Wilbert Snow it was considered highly doubtful he would even consider running. Maloney's term expires in 1947.

Among Maloney's congressional assignments was the chairmanship of a committee investigating international petroleum production and distribution.

MRS. LUCE A CANDIDATE?

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The name of Rep. Clare Boothe Luce was mentioned today in speculation on possible candidates for the Connecticut senatorial seat made vacant by Sen. Maloney's death.

Grace Bull's Engagement Is Disclosed

BY JUDITH CASS.

NEWS of romantic interest in Chicago and several other cities is contained in engagement and wedding announcements made recently. A late winter wedding is planned by Miss Grace Louise Bull and John Edward Barbey Jr., whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amasa Cobb Bull of Glencoe.

Mr. Barbey is the son of Mrs. William Homer Sweney of St. Paul, Minn., and of Mr. Barbey of Reading, Pa. The Sweneys have many friends in Chicago as Mr. Sweney for many years participated in the out of town invitational golf tournament held each summer at the Onwentsia club until the war put an end to those gay week-end gatherings. One of young Mr. Sweney's sisters, the former Mary Glyde Barbey, was married to West Hooker, son of the John P. Hookers of Winnetka, in Louisville, Ky., two years ago when business took the Sweney family to that city.

Pretty Miss Bull attended Penn Hall Junior college and was graduated from Connecticut College for Women. Mr. Barbey is a graduate of the Hill school and Babson institute, and attended Wesleyan university.

Other Romantic News

News of the marriage in Milwaukee last Friday of Miss Jane Lynde Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lynde Bradley of Milwaukee, to David Vogel Uihlein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Uihlein, also of Milwaukee, is of interest to their many friends and connections here. The bride attended Finch Junior college and the New School of Social Research in New York and spent several summers with the Leighton Rollins Summer theater in Easthampton, N. Y. Mr. Uihlein attended the Hill school and the University of Wisconsin.

Also of interest here is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. McDougal of Peoria of the engagement of their daughter, Mary, to Lt. [j. g.] William Barnes III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Barnes Jr. of Decatur, and grandson of the late noted surgeon, Dr. William Barnes, whose lepidoptera collection, one of the largest in the world, was purchased for the permanent collection of the National museum in Washington, D. C. Miss McDougal, whose family pioneered in the settling of central Illinois, attended Miss Porter's school in Farmington, Conn., Pine Manor Junior college, and the Katherine Gibbs school in New York. Lt. Barnes was graduated from Milton academy and Harvard university, at which he was a member of the A. D. club and of the Hasty Pudding institute of 1770. He received his commission from the naval reserve school at Columbia university and has been on duty overseas.

Other Weddings.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter I. Deffenbaugh of Highland Park announce the marriage last Friday of their daughter, Margaret, to Leroy T. Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Carlson of Chicago. The Rev. Edward Scribner Ames, pastor emeritus of the University Church of the Disciples of Christ, read the service at 4:30 p. m. in the Deffenbaugh home. Mr. Carlson, who returned recently from two years of overseas service with the government, and his bride are at home in Cambridge, Mass., while he is in training at Harvard university with the naval

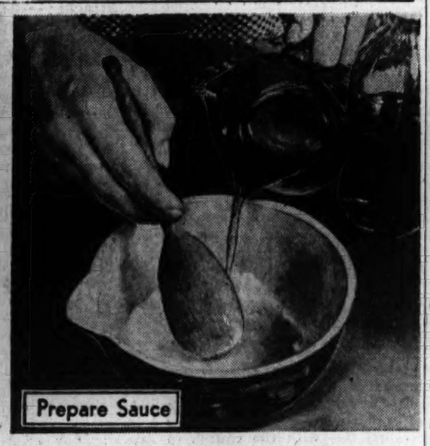
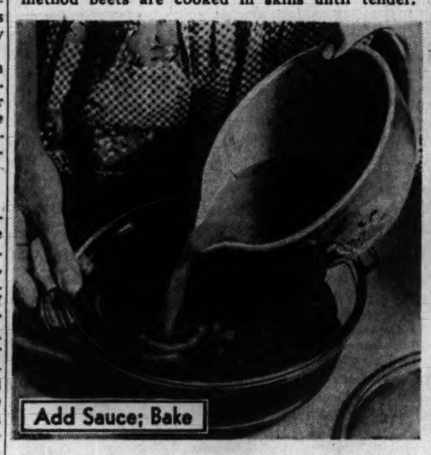
Mary Meade Prepares Oven Cooked Harvard Beets

1 For six servings, pare 1½ to 2 pounds uncooked beets. Raw beets are used in the oven version, while for the top of the stove method beets are cooked in skins until tender.



2 Make sweet-sour sauce by mixing ¾ tablespoon cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, and ¼ cup sugar, then pouring in, while stirring constantly, ½ cup vinegar mixed with ¼ cup water.



3 Pour sauce mixture over beets sliced about ¼ inch thick and placed in casserole. Dot with margarine. Cover dish tightly and bake at 350 degrees 1½ to 2 hours or until tender.

4. This is an ideal dish to include in oven cooked dinners, so popular in winter. An alternate method for Harvard beets is to cook sauce until thick and in it reheat cooked beets.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Increasing Knowledge.

Inquiry among a group of business girls attending evening classes at Northwestern university school of commerce disclosed some interesting reactions of employers. Asked whether their bosses were in sympathy with the idea of studying at night, the answer was almost 100 per cent affirmative.

One girl said her boss wasn't keen about it at the start. "He used to tease me about being a grind," she said, "but recently he has remarked several times that he felt the company had benefited by what I had learned." Another white collar girl, when asked how her boss felt about her working for a master's degree, said the best answer was the fact that the firm had paid for every course she had taken in night school. Still another replied that her boss often told her, "I've learned along with you." One girl, studying advanced accountancy, said her company willingly paid her tuition.

Perhaps this is evidence of greater coöperation between employer and employe. Certainly it helps an employe to feel she is working with her employer rather than for him. It is heartening to any white collar wearer to be assured that her increased knowledge is of value.

Re: Choosing a Career.

The subject of picking a career has kept me warm around the place where my white collar would be if I wore one. Certainly the budding secretary or future swayer of fashion trends should choose a career with forethought. But can she?

Groping in a wilderness of seeming opportunity, the girl may foresee dimly that she will be utterly miserable, even a failure, in the wrong niche. But what can she do about it? Her parents dominate her. She is still a child in their eyes, incapable of making wise decisions.

Even amid today's clamor about headstrong youngsters, parents' ideas exert great influence—often toward a job eventully distasteful to the girl. So, the girl takes the job she can get, the job of which her parents approve. Her career is set, for good or ill.

Civic League Meeting.

The Mount Greenwood Civic league will meet at 8 o'clock tonight at 3315 W. 111th st. Each church in the district has been invited to send delegates.

On the Aisle By Claudia Cassidy

Arrival by Stealth.

Last night "The Voice of the Turtle" had a special customer, not cash. He was Alfred de Liagre Jr., producer of the play, who practically crept out from Broadway, hoping to see his show without the actors knowing he was in the house. As far as I know he got away with it, and made his point of seeing an average performance, neither better than usual by dint of extra effort, nor worse than usual, for the same reason. That would mean a good performance, by most standards, but producers and directors make notes—as a rule. The most famous of them is the bitter one George S. Kaufman once sent backstage to an erring actor. It said, "Sitting on back row watching performance. Wish you were here."

I doubt that Mr. de Liagre had cause to duplicate that caustic crack. He may have emulated Richard Rodgers, whose first glimpse of our "Oklahoma!" sent him backstage, speechless with admiration. And he may have done what Jerry Whyte did when he put that same show in shape for touring while here with "Winged Victory." Rumor had Mr. [or should I say Sgt.?] Whyte filling a 20 page notebook during the first act. The show was back in shape when he finished with it, too.

Among the tales Mr. de Liagre had to tell was the strange saga of Florence Rice, daughter of Grantland Rice, now substituting for Betty Field in the New York "Turtle." A season ago when the show was new, Miss Rice fell in love at sight with the role of Sally. She haunted the Morosco, sitting night after night on a kind of stair that constituted a perch. She learned the role and said she would go on at the drop of a star. But the only time Margaret Sullavan dropped, K. T. Stevens was there to step in. Nothing daunted, Miss Rice kept on waiting, even buying a duplicate wardrobe from Hattie Carnegie, which was expensive persistence. Then Miss Field fell ill, Miss Rice is playing Sally, and they say she is good.

Another De Liagre item concerns his purchase of a new play, "Mr. Peebles and Mr. Hooker," by Edward E. Paramore Jr., slated for early next season. Perhaps on the rebound from the triptych trio of the "Turtle," the new one calls for 30 actors and 10 scenes.

Notes.

Laurette Taylor's book, made up of those brilliant magazine sketches of well knowns, will be published soon. . . . Elisabeth Bergner closes "The Two Mrs. Carrolls" in New York Feb. 3 and probably will come here if she can get a theater. . . . Ruth Gordon says she will be all right for that Feb. 5 return of "Over Twenty-One." . . . Argentinita comes to Orchestra hall the afternoon of Jan. 28, after all. Transportation was worked out.

Stylist's Coats and Suits Win Fashion Praise

BY REA SEEGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 16.—A complete spring collection, composed entirely of coats and suits, is something to see, especially the array of Philip Mangone's 1945 creations. This designer has been famous for years for his sleek, streamlined models for all American women. At last week's spring showings for the nation's fashion writers, presented by the New York Dress institute, Mangone's exciting spring collection, tho almost last on the list, drew a record crowd. It was a long show but well worth every minute, for it included coats for every type of woman, each different—a fashion record seldom duplicated.

There were glamor coats, with great cuffs of silver fox, among the new white, soft woolens. Some flared at the back and swung clear at the kneeline. More fitted coats reached the hemline of the dresses underneath.

Next to the whites came the handsome pale gray models, also luxuriously trimmed with silver fox. These may sound like winter weather garments, but they are superb coats for climates with little or no spring season.

Unfurred spring coats, slim and fitted, were just as exciting as the fur accented models. Mangone's side closing is a signature detail. Spring pastels, as well as the neutrals and sleek town navys and blacks, were designed with this definitely "side line." One model had a row of buttons down the left front and then down the right side of the back.

In addition, Mangone exhibited coats designed with a long wool scarf, the woolen version of the high fashion stole. These coats are young and smart, and should click with the college and career girls. With the checked wool scarf to match facings of buttonholes, narrow cuffs, and collar, the coat is snug and warm for winter. Without the scarf, the fitted coats are neat and crisp for spring.

Capes, full length or shorter, were cut with the rounded shoulder lines. Moire, faille, bengaline, and alpaca made some fashionable dress-up coats, cut with full skirts, some with full sleeves, and others in a wearable, semi-fitted silhouette.

Coats featuring two and even three tones were eye-catching, as were the greatcoat models of checks and tweed mixtures.

Youth's Plea: 'Give Us Chance to Help Solve Our Problems'

BY NORMA LEE BROWNING.

Seven centuries ago seven white doves rose from a deep valley flying to the snow white summit of the mountain. One of the seven men who watched the flight said, "I see a black spot on the wing of the seventh dove."

Today the people in that valley tell of seven black doves that flew to the summit of the snow mountain.

This is a simple fable, told years ago by the poet, Kahlil Gibran, but its moral is applicable to modern trends. The particular modern trend to which we refer is the widespread excitement over the well worn phrase, juvenile delinquency.

According to Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall, director of the Association for Family Living in Chicago, "The number of young people who are valiantly taking hold in truly responsible ways is considerably in excess of those who fall by the wayside. Youth across the country is reaching a new stature of democratic citizenry that many adults may well emulate."

For proof she cites the association's own 20 years of experience with young persons who voluntarily meet to discuss boy and girl relationships, personality development, preparation for marriage and family living, and understanding of parents' attitude.

In the last year more than 10,000 young persons in 148 groups met voluntarily to discuss their problems under the leadership of trained staff members of the association. There is indication, Mrs. Duvall said, that the number will double in 1945.

It is significant that the association did not impose itself on the groups; the youngsters themselves asked for it.

"Young people today are thinking," says Sora Barth Loeb, educational coördinator of the association, who has spent 30 years working with youth groups. "They are bewildered and confused because adults have confused them. They are more sinned against than sinning. They are told they are bad and this often forces them to be bad.

"It is a mistake to think young people enjoy an atmosphere of complete indifference. There is no greater conformist than the adolescent. If you doubt this, try to get them to dress differently, act differently, talk differently from the group with which they are affiliated.

"By nature, young people are not bad nor cruel. They are eager to do the proper thing, interested in living up to an ideal, and, contrary to popular belief, eager to please their parents.

"In their confusion they are thinking, and they are asking frank, straightforward questions that deserve honest and complete answers."

The important question confronting the teen-agers is: How can we understand our parents? Or: What can we do to make our parents understand us?

From a typical teen-age group in Chicago comes these questions:

"If a girl is engaged to a boy who is overseas that she might want to marry when he comes back, but if her mother hasn't told her all the things she feels she should know, how is she going to get her mother to tell her? It is difficult to come out and ask when you are bewildered yourself."

"What is a girl supposed to do when she likes a fellow but her mother does not because she thinks he is not good enough for her daughter?"

"What if your parents object to your dating certain people because for one reason or another they object to the boy's parents even tho the boy himself is nice and popular with your own age crowd?"

"If you care for a boy very much and your parents do not care for him what can you do?"

"What can a girl do to make her parents understand she is sensible about dates and would like to join her crowd?"

"What should you do if your parents won't let you go places for no good reason?"

"Is it right to marry a boy who is a lot older than yourself? My mother has never told me anything but I have already learned. Therefore I am not permitted to go out. Do you think this is right?"

"Is it wrong to go to the mother of the boy you go with and ask for answers to your problems if you know her well?"

"Why do grownups object to high school girls smoking?"

"What should a girl do if a boy asks her for a date and she prefers to ask her mother before she says 'yes' or 'no'? Do you think the boy would feel offended or slighted?

Paris Milliner Fashions Hats from Sacking

BY ANNE BRUYERE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Ordinary brown sacking is being used by Paulette, who designs Tobert Piguest's millinery, to fashion her new midseason hats. Sacking, combined with intricately draped angora formed over a foot high turban, was presented in her recent fashion parade as a complement to a severely tailored broadcloth suit. A large round jeweled pin appeared in the center of the sacking in front.

The wide green felt brim of an off-the-face hat is trimmed with a V shaped design made of strips of sacking, which also forms the high, curved crown. A brown, sombrero shaped felt has wide bands of banana beige woolen which cross under the chin and fall, scarf fashion, on the chest. A multicolored jewel studded pin attaches the loose ends.

For evening wear there is a gold lamé toque covered with huge four-petaled flowers made of pink, orchid, and blue lamé. The same glistening flowers encircle a huge muff made of matching lamé and lined with ermine.

Ardanse is trimming her latest tailored suits with burnished buttons resembling ancient Egyptian coins. These are placed on epaulets, at the waist in back, and on the flapover pockets of double breasted jackets.

The material of a two piece steel gray costume is decorated with tiny Egyptian figures set in parallel rows. The same motif, executed in dark purple, old gold, and raspberry pink, appears on an afternoon dress of white wool with broadly draped shoulders.

Thru the Looking Glass

The more we see of the hair situation the more inclined we are to believe that the young girls are showing us old sisters the light.

The school girls, the college girls, have the prettiest hair to be found anywhere, with the possible exception of those flawless fashion models who idealize attractiveness for all of us.

It seems to us that we might all consider what the young girl does that we don't do. The average college girl, we find, washes her own hair at least once a week, sometimes oftener. She dries it by hand, with towels and a clean brush. Or when she can, she brushes it dry in the sun. And—another thing she does that we don't do—she wields that hair brush vigorously every morning and every night, and sometimes in between when she finds her hands idle.

Now it seems obvious to us that a lesson is to be drawn from this. Can it be that hand drying, which our grandmothers had, is at least part of the answer? We're inclined to think so.

It's extremely difficult for the woman who wears her hair "set" to escape that session under the dryer. But why wouldn't it be a good idea, if her hair has reached the stage where it is positively dreadful, to skip the dryer for a few weeks or even for a few months? It might be well worth the nuisance of having her hair unmanageable for a while after each shampoo. Anything that helps restore hair health is worth trying.

Then there is the brushing. That's even more important. If you won't brush your hair you can't expect it to have luster. That's something you simply must do to help yourself.

Pre-Adolescent Habit Baffles Many Parents

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The habit of night enuresis, when it persists not only after children are immediately past the age when bladder control is normally established, but even into the pre-adolescent years is one that is baffling to many physicians, and both baffling and annoying to parents.

That it has its effect on the boys or girls themselves who have not gained a desirable night continence of the bladder function we know, tho they are the only ones who don't talk about it! Such a boy or girl cannot go for pleasant week-end visits to a friend, because of the embarrassments that would ensue. In spite of this drawback in even the child's mind, the habit will continue.

I have never discussed this subject with a physician, as far as it affects these much older children, but I have many letters from parents who have been unable to get help from that source. Also, I know personally of several families who have been up against this situation, and could get no help anywhere in coping with it. The slight comfort they got, and what I have known to be a fact, was the reassurance that the habit would cease with the full onset of adolescence. But not all parents [or children either] are satisfied to await those years. The habit is one not easy to ignore!

This trouble is more common than the average parent would be inclined to believe, simply because it is something mothers are loath to discuss with others. Yet in the home it becomes a constant source of talk and, naturally, of friction. For that reason some possible remedies should be at least presented to these parents.

'Private Investigator Maclain'. . . . .

By Baynard Kendrick
(Copyright: 1945: By Baynard Kendrick.)

SYNOPSIS: In the sumptuous terrace apartment of the successful novelist, Larmar Jordan, a cocktail party is in session. Capt. Duncan Maclain sits alone with his Seeing Eye dog, Schnucke. He is joined by Sarah Hanley, Larmar's agent. Out on the terrace Sybella Ford, his fiancee, is chatting with Paul Hirst, Larmar's secretary. Troy Singleton arrives. Bob Morse, reporter, tells Maclain he is doing a profile on Larmar, whose wife, Lucia, is very charming and whose latest inamorata is Troy Singleton. Troy insists she received an invitation. Larmar accuses Lucia of sending it for some dramatic purpose. After the guests have gone Ellis Brown Mitchell, gun expert, seeks Hirst's aid in cataloging Larmar's gun collection. Larmar tells Paul he is going to sell his guns. Paul realizes there is something catastrophic to make him dispose of his prize collection. Next day, alone in his apartment, Larmar is studying his financial status, depleted by Troy's demands, when she visits him. As the chimes of Trinity sound, Troy, seated on the terrace, slumps down, shot thru the heart. No one is near. Larmar removes her body to the gun room, and is surprised by the arrival of the police, summoned by Mrs. Oliver, who lives in the apartment above.

STRANGE LOOKING PISTOL.

Winnie had another spasm of barking. "Your dog wants out," said Archer.

"O, the dog!" exploded Larmar. "I wish you two would state your business and get out. My wife's due home and I don't want her to find you here."

"I don't blame you," said Davis.

"Spill something?" he asked, as he straightened up.

"Cocktail," said Larmar and nearly bit off his tongue.

The inspector sniffed at his fingers. "It's hard to get gin nowadays. I hate to see it wasted."

He walked to the foyer and looked at the closed door of the gun room but made no move to try it. Instead he stared over to the right and remarked, "That's a neat little bar."

"I'm glad you like my home," said Larmar. "I have no desire in the world to buck the intricate methods of the New York police department and I must admit I have a very inadequate knowledge of the law. Still, I would like to ask a question. Have you a search warrant?"

The inspector wiped his fingers on a large square of spotless linen before he replied. "What would we want a search warrant for?"

"I believe you need one to go barging into people's homes."

"Barging? Have we been barging, Archer?"

"Not that I know of," said the sergeant. "Mr. Jordan even gave me a cigar."

"I'll tell you how it is," said Davis. "We have certain duties to perform and we like to do them without causing any trouble. Now this lady upstairs, Mrs. Oliver—do you know her?"

"I've seen her once or twice in the downstairs hall."

"Well, she's probably a nosey old wench," Davis continued. "I doubt whether she ever drinks or smokes."

The inspector's gray eyes crinkled. "You understand, Mr. Jordan. She's the type of a dame who shudders every time she passes a bar. Her windows overlook your terrace. You have cocktail parties there occasionally and the sight of so much joy burns up this Mrs. Oliver. So what does she think when she sees a beautiful black haired girl collapse in a terrace chair?"

"You're fascinating me," said Larmar. "What does she think?"

The inspector laughed softly. "She thinks that she heard a shot, Mr. Jordan. She knows this young lady isn't your wife and she can't possibly understand that young ladies, who collapse in chairs, instead of being shot have usually gotten half-shot at a bar."

"I don't see that I'm called upon to involve myself or anyone else, inspector."

"Of course not," Davis agreed. "You carried the young lady inside. She's probably sleeping it off in another room. We'll just take a look. Not even disturb her, see? As a matter of fact, we haven't seen anything. Then Archer and I go home and have dinner and we don't have to bother you again at all."

"This is——"

"Preposterous," Davis replied. "I agree 100 per cent, Mr. Jordan. That's the penalty of living in a big city. A man can't even have a few drinks without some busybody sticking her nose in."

"And suppose I tell you that this young lady's gone home? Assuming a young lady was here."

A clock struck half-past 6.

"We'd call it a miracle," said Sgt. Archer. "I've spent a long time on the force and I've learned a lot about lady lushes. They have rubber legs. I've never seen one yet who wasn't good for eight hours of sweet sound sleep once she slides down in a chair."

He turned his broad back on Larmar and Davis and moved on surprisingly light feet to the terrace door.

A key clicked in the front door, sending Winnie into a renewed spasm of muffled barks and a frenzied scratching on the door of Lucia's room.

Lucia, gently pushing Bob Morse ahead of her, came into the hall.

He grinned at Davis and said, "You certainly meet the most interesting people when you write for a living. What are all the ferrets out for, inspector? Did somebody die?"

Davis shook hands. "I haven't seen you for a couple of years, Bob."

Lucia studied her husband for a moment, then unexpectedly stepped closer to him and pecked at his cheek, leaving a smudge of lipstick.

"You look tired, darling. Bob says you promised to do more work with him tonight on the profile."

"I am tired."

"There was some trouble upstairs," said Larmar. "This is Inspector Davis from police headquarters. He dropped in to see if I'd heard anything."

"Police headquarters?" Lucia looked pale as she put a hand on Larmar's arm and turned to face Davis. "This apartment house is unusually well built. There have been plenty of parties in the other apartments but we never hear a sound."

"I'm sure you don't," said Davis.

"Why don't you mix us some cocktails, darling? Then you and Bob and I can go out to dinner. Skip the profile for tonight. You don't seem to feel very well."

Out on the terrace the sergeant rounded Larmar's desk and pushed thru the privet hedge to start down over the wall.

Lucia opened her bedroom door and let out Winnie, who dashed about excitedly seeking attention from his mistress and Larmar. When Larmar looked out on the terrace again the sergeant had apparently gone.

"He's crawling around in back of your desk," said Morse. "I wonder what he's looking for?"

"He's an inquisitive cuss, Archer." The inspector left his post by the sofa and without a glance at any one, walked quickly out to join the sergeant.

Lucia asked, "What's all this about, Larmar?"

Before he could answer, Davis called from the terrace, "Would you come here just a moment, Mr. Jordan?"

"Certainly," he said, and walked out to join Davis and Archer.

Archer was on his knees, and his heavy hands had parted the springy bushes of the privet hedge. Larmar followed the line of the inspector's finger, which was casually pointing down.

A handkerchief had caught on a twig and hung there limply. Close beside it, lying starkly against the dampened soil in the narrow green box which held the hedge was a strange looking, long barreled pistol.

Clerics on Way to Russia Stop Off in Chicago

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop Alexy, Russian Greek Orthodox bishop of Alaska and acting chairman of the Metropolitan council of America of that communion, and the Very Rev. Joseph Dzvonchik of New York, secretary of that council, conferred briefly with Russian church dignitaries in La Salle st. station last night while en route to Moscow to attend an all-Russian church council, opening Jan. 31.

Bishop Alexy and Father Dzvonchik are principal delegates sent to Moscow on invitation of acting Patriarch Alexi of the Russian church. Two others, the Very Rev. Nicholas Metropolsky, Stamford, Conn., and Ralph M. Orkush, attorney for the American council, will follow later. The Rt. Rev. Bishop Leonty of the Chicago diocese, the Very Rev. Sergius Snegireff, dean of Holy Trinity Russian cathedral, and the Rev. Emilian Solanka, archdeacon, met the travelers last night. They left by rail for Fairbanks, Alaska, whence a soviet plane will take them to Moscow.

A principal function of the Moscow meeting will be to elect a new patriarch of the Russian church. Bishop Leonty was invited to attend the council but declined because of advancing age.

The delegates hinted that far reaching decisions affecting the Orthodox communion thruout the world might possibly be made in the forthcoming Moscow meeting, but made it plain that the American Russian Orthodox church is autonomous, altho recognizing spiritual ties with the church in Russia. A comparison between the autonomous Episcopal church in the United States and the Church of England was used to describe the relationship.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 16.—Warners officials hope they have their own Barry Fitzgerald. Anyway, they've got Barry's older brother, Arthur Shields, under a long term contract. His first will be "Too Young to Know." Shouldn't that be "He's Too Old to Tell?" Anyway, the kids in it are Joan Leslie and Bob Hutton. . . . Humphrey Bogart may do "The Two Mrs. Carrolls." Does that mean he'll play both of them? No, he'll do the Victor Jory part. . . . "Some Must Watch," by Ethel White, was bought by David Selznick three years ago. It will be Dore Schary's next. A murder mystery set in New England, its action covers 24 hours. It will be Paul Stewart's introduction to picture making. . . . I hope it's true that Don Hartman got $80,000 for an original story. He's one of our best. . . . Olivia de Havilland is moving into Ad Schulberg's lovely home in Bel Air.

Hot Off the Wire.

Constance Bennett sent me a wire about the story that all was not sweetness and light with Gregory Ratoff, and it runs: "I'd like to say now that if my picture is as successful as my association with Gregory is harmonious, it will break all records. Anyway, who am I to criticize temperament? I ask you. It's the sauce on the steak, the dressing on the salad, the hat on Hopper, and it's Ratoff on 'Paris Underground'—bless him. Yours, Connie." . . . Dan Duryea just signed for one of the top spots in the new Deanna Durbin picture, "Lady on a Train." . . . Felix Jackson says the reason David Bruce was given second lead in that picture was because he was so coöperative while doing a bit in "Christmas Holiday." . . . Hunt Stromberg got William Deiterle for one picture. . . . Martha Vickers leaped from "The Big Sleep" to the lead in "Danger Signal" with Zachary Scott.

Success—And How Achieved.

Irene Dunne says she's reached the top of her career in "Over Twenty-One." The prop boy told her he had just sprayed her dressing room with a brand of perfume. Irene said to him, "Thanks—but you shouldn't have wasted it. That's my favorite perfume." The boy told her he knew that, but the grass outside her dressing room didn't smell too good, so what the heck! . . . Louis Jean Heydt is leaving for New York to play one of the leads in Sheridan Gibney's new play, "Calico Wedding." Heydt's last pictures were "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes" and "The Big Sleep."

This and That of Hollywood.

Johnny Mitchell, whose name was Douglas Drake, is all washed, scrubbed, and clean for his divorce from the Stern department store heiress. . . . Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson have been loaned by Twentieth Century to do the tunes for Eddie Cantor's next. Inasmuch as Jimmy and Cantor are related by marriage, Eddie says, "Your music had better be good, brother." Well, it always is. . . . It sure wouldn't make Barbara Stanwyck's friends and fans angry if she were to win the academy award. I see no reason why she shouldn't get one for "Double Indemnity." Barbara's been giving award performances for years, and it's about time we gave it to her. . . . Four marines write from the South Pacific: "A group of us just saw the picture 'Canterville Ghost' and we wish to express our delight at the wonderful job done by Margaret O'Brien. To us she's the typical example of what we're fighting for. Will you please see that she receives our praises as a really fine actress?" . . . Lou Costello was talking with Martha Raye's husband, who's a 4-F, when along came Martha and he asked the name of their baby. She said, "Melody." "O," said Lou, "Melody in 4-F!"

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by the Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Myrtte Hansen, 4046 Keystone av.]

THE QUESTION.

What do you consider your greatest hardship in winter?

WHERE ASKED.

39 S. La Salle st. building.

THE ANSWERS.

Marge Whitney, bookkeeper, 5441 Kenmore av.—My greatest hardship is starting each day with a stuffy ride on an overcrowded bus. Buses aren't so crowded in the summer because people will walk if it isn't cold. Then, too, the windows can be opened to permit circulation—eliminating cold drafts and stuffy fumes.

Nan M. Haworth, stenographer, 7702 Kingston av.—In my neighborhood, especially this winter, the snow has been piling up on the sidewalks. I don't mind the cold weather and snow except that it makes walking more dangerous than usual. I fell and hurt my elbow. I wish people would shovel the snow off their walks.

Ellen Doran, stenographer, 5801 S. Artesian av.—Standing on a safety island waiting for a bus or street car is bad in the winter. It seems motorists deliberately see how much mud they can splash on your stockings. I didn't care so much when we had nylon stockings because they could be washed easily, but these rayons—!

Mary A. Brown, receptionist, 301 S. Ashland av., La Grange.—It seems like midnight these dark winter mornings. My first dreadful task is to slide out of a warm bed and rush over to shut the window before I freeze to death. Then I dress in a cold room and walk five windy, cold, dark blocks to the station to catch a train.

Evelyn Evertsen, secretary, 4433 N. Knox av.—The hardest thing for me to endure is the fact that I can't play golf. If they'd only make black golf balls! Each year I play golf until the snow flies and the thought of winter makes me unhappy because I just have to wait until it's spring again. What a waste of time!

A. S. Merigold, real estate broker, 4160 Drexel blvd.—During the winter and summer I work outside. I like outdoor work and wouldn't have it any other way — but the only thing I don't like in winter is wearing heavy clothes and clumsy overshoes. It's difficult to dress to be comfortable both in an office and outdoors.

Youth Seeking to Help Solve Its Problems

Should she tell him she wants to ask her mother if she can go?"

"Mother and dad both work, so I've done most of the housework this summer. When mother did, she got crabby and cranky; when I did, she found fault with everything. How can I remedy this?"

Parents might do well to ponder these questions. There is a pathetic urgency in them and an appeal for something more than the arbitrary, "You can't do this because I said you can't."

Not only teenagers, but youngsters of 7, 8, and 9 years old are puzzled by the family problem, according to questions asked by one junior high school group. Too young yet for romance, the little girls most of all want to know:

"How soon can I join the WAVES?"

"How long before I can wear lipstick?"

"How can I keep my little brother out of my things?"

"What can I do because I don't like my cousin and he lives with us?"

"Why do I have to mind my grandmother?"

"How do you reason with your dad?"

"How do you go about getting along with your mother?"

In another teen-age group, one girl wrote: "I am 13 and going to be a sophomore this fall. When I want to go to a dance or something my mom and dad tell me I've got plenty of time to go places and I don't need to go, but I want to go with the girls I know, and besides I feel older than 13. Do you think my mom is right in not letting me go or do you think I should be allowed to go?"

Trained staff members and child guidance experts of the Association for Family Living, are present at youth meetings to answer questions and guide the discussion.

"What they ask from us," Mrs. Loeb says, "is a presentation of both sides of a problem, our own suggestions, and then the opportunity to make their own decisions, to take responsibility for mistakes, and to feel an appreciation from those whose opinion they value so highly."

She pointed out that many parents feel inadequate to discuss a child's problems, and others become embarrassed and evade the question entirely.

"The adolescent needs to be articulate," she said. "He must have something to strike out against. This need is as basic as the need for security. What better buffer or target is there than the ones he cares for; parents, teachers, group leaders? Of course this makes him play an internal baseball game; he is offensive and defensive at one and the same time. But when the home folks do not understand, when they thwart this natural desire, then the next step is to battle the community."

That the adolescent is a conformist, that he is anxious neither to hurt nor displease, is indicated not only in his how-can-I-make-mom understand questions, but in another question which with slight variations has popped up again and again in hundreds of youth groups. The question is:

"How can one break off with a boy if one finds that she no longer cares as much as she used to for him, but yet does not want to hurt him."

This, as well as most of the other questions asked by young people today, shows that they are not the silly scatterbrains many have dubbed them.

On the contrary, they have grown up in the past five years with startling rapidity. Perhaps it is this sudden maturity that confounds their elders, a few of whom apparently have reverted to adolescence themselves.

It must be disconcerting to a tavern trouping mama when her teen-age daughter springs the subject of fidelity or religion.

Five years ago these teen-agers were asking such simple questions as:

How old should you be before you go steady?

How do you keep a fellow from getting fresh?

Should a girl let a boy kiss her on their first date? If not, when should she?

How does a girl go about getting a super date?

Now they want to know:

Can boys and girls of different religious faiths make a successful marriage? If so, how?

What about differences of religion? Should you think of that even tho you are an adolescent?

Do you advise marriage during this turmoil or do you advise waiting until the war is over?

Would it in later years be better to have married a fellow who is more fun and more of your ideal, or a fellow you're sure will provide for you and will be a regular companion

The difference is easy to see. Once the teenagers were thinking about dates; now they're thinking about marriage. But they are thinking, asking, and demanding answers. A few have been impatient, or perhaps have been given the wrong answers.

The Association for Family Living offers its professional services to young people in schools, colleges, churches, settlements, Y. M. C. A.s, Y. W. C. A.s, Boy and Girl Scouts, and other neighborhood and private youth organizations.

Superb Arias Are Sung Well by Young Tenor

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Some of the persistent tenor trouble which afflicts local oratorio societies may henceforth be solved by John Toms, a young, personable, and gifted singer of that persuasion, who made his first appearance here in Kimball hall last night.

It was the immediate measure of Mr. Toms' sincerity and self confidence that he began his program with three superb arias, with accompanying recitatives, by Handel, glorious music which few singers have the skill, the courage, or the intelligence to negotiate. Mr. Toms did not overestimate his powers, for he can summon the flexibility, the breath control, the correct kind of dramatic impulse, and the scrupulous feeling for the nobility of English language to do them justice. His voice is light in weight, tho ingratiating in quality, and its greatest lack at present is a varied middle range of dynamics, for at one extreme he commands a fine pianissimo and at the other some round and assured high tones sufficiently robust to balance its general weight.

There were some fine moments in four Brahms songs, tho perhaps the singer is not yet far enough away from his own childhood to capture the poignancy of "O wüsst, ich doch den Weg zurück." Both the "Dream" from "Manon" and the "Flower Song" from "Carmen" missed the ecstatic note, tho the latter was brought to an effective climax. He is not yet ready for grand opera, but if we were an impresario we would keep a watchful eye on this young man.

In making the selection of an opening lead you will sometimes find yourself torn between two conflicting theories and the choice may not be easy. Today's hand provides an interesting example.

North's business double of three hearts may appear somewhat aggressive, but since the completion of the contract would give the opponents game in any event he decided to take a "pot shot" at it. GROUP OPPOSES LEGISLATION ON PEACE TRAINING

Postponement until after the war of consideration of any plan for universal military training was urged last night at a meeting of the Chicago Committee to Oppose Peace Time Conscription in the Stevens building restaurant.

John M. Swomley, editor of Conscription News, published in Washington, D. C., asserted that the cost of such a program would be between 3 and 4 billion dollars a year, in comparison with a present cost of 3.2 billion dollars a year for all public schools. He said the figures had been gathered by Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.].

"If we had compulsory peace time conscription, in 20 or 25 years there would be no minister, no teacher, no official in government who had not been indoctrinated with militarism," he said.

He asserted that the war department is now preparing a new conscription bill that would put a burden on employers, as well as a bill to provide for voluntary military training of women.

A petition urging postponement of compulsory military training legislation was circulated among the 100 persons present, who included labor representatives, business men, clergymen, and teachers.

117 SUSPENDED AS MORGAN PARK CADETS REBEL

Classes at Morgan Park Military academy, 2153 W. 111th st., yesterday proceeded without 117 cadet residents of Hansen hall, a dormitory, who were suspended and sent home after boisterous conduct, including pulling electric light fuses in the dormitory Sunday and Monday nights.

The suspensions did not affect more than 300 other cadets at the academy who live at home and attend classes in the day time.

The suspended students had demanded a liberalization of regulations, Col. Harry D. Abells, superintendent, and Col. Haydn E. Jones, assistant superintendent of the academy, said. Return of the 117 suspended students, a spokesman for the school said, would depend on a review of individual cases.

Estate of Slain Bystander Sues Police for $10,000

Suit for $10,000 was filed yesterday in Superior court against Detectives Clarence Mallon, William Lydon, and Frank Janousek by the Trust Company of Chicago, administrator of the estate of Salvatore Lapetina, who formerly lived at 1110 Newberry av. The suit alleges Lapetina died Jan. 31, 1944, as the result of being wounded by a bullet fired by one of the three detectives as they pursued a fugitive at Halsted and Madison sts. a week previous.

SNOW HAILED AS LIFE GIVER FOR DRY SOIL

Thaws Further Aid to Farmers.

The heavy blanket of snow covering the midwest is proving the value of the old saw that "snow is the poor man's fertilizer." A dangerous deficiency of moisture stretching back to last June has been compensated in part by the 28.5 inches of snow which has fallen this winter, weather bureau officials and farm experts said yesterday. This snowfall is equal to approximately 2.8 inches of water.

An unusual set of circumstances this winter is making it possible for the snow to be of the greatest benefit to the farmer, soil experts said. The ground has been frozen to only a slight depth and with each slight thaw the snow cover melts and soaks into the ground. Up to midnight the moisture deficiency since June totaled 8.97 inches, said O. T. Lay, chief of the weather bureau.

Ground Kept Warm.

Usually the ground is frozen to a depth of several feet before heavy snows come, but this year there were enough thaws before Dec. 10 to keep the ground soft until the first heavy snow arrived.

The warmth and moisture of the snow are aiding winter plantings of wheat and rye, C. A. Hughes, Cook county farm adviser, said. He reported that farmers digging into their ground have found it soft and absorbent.

Helps Pests, Too.

The only drawback to the snow is that it is furnishing warm protection for many crop insects wintering over in rubbish piles.

Altho there has been more snow than usual so far this winter, weather bureau records disclosed the following moisture deficiencies:

Month.	Precip., in.	Def. below norm., in.
June	3.18	.30
July	1.93	1.50
August	1.89	1.13
September	1.56	1.64
October	.59	1.97
November	1.31	1.20
December	1.10	.97
Jan. 15	.70	.26
Total		8.97

The records also show that when the first heavy snowfall came on Dec. 10, the temperatures had been above the freezing mark for the previous week.

JUNIOR C. A. C. AWARD GIVEN TO GOLD STAR MOTHERS FOR 1944

The 1944 distinguished service award of the Chicago Junior Association of Commerce was presented last night to Mrs. J. E. "The Gold Star mothers appreciate your tribute to the sacred memory of our sons," Mrs. De Lacy responded. "May their sacrifices soon be rewarded by a just and lasting peace."

The association also honored four of its members for activities in 1944: Phillip J. Pawl, Ralph Rohweder, Clark G. Taylor, and Donald G. Williamson.

The principal address was delivered by Mearns T. Gates, president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, who named Nelson A. Rockefeller, assistant secretary of state, as the "nation's outstanding young man" for 1944.

The Old Log Cabin Quilt.

Each wisp of silk had breathed a tale
As her wee needle sped,
Upon this quilt my mother sewed
With mem'ry's golden thread.

My childish curiosity
Was twirled and highly pitched,
When mother told the origin
Of every scrap she stitched.

For, some were rare old fragments, that
She plied with girlhood art;
The sewing skill she brought with her
To play a mother's part;
And some were from the gowns she made
To wear on life's new ways;
While others were the party gowns
That shared the polonaise.

I love this old log cabin quilt,
My mother's hand had made,
With her own youth's gay talisman
That walked in weird parade;
For, dearest of all wisps to her,
She patterned in full view,
These precious glowing swatches of
Her wedding dress of blue.

WHO'S AFRAID OF CANADIENS? HAWKS' CHANT

BY EDWARD BURNS.

It's been a long spell since the Blackhawks have defeated the Montreal Canadiens in a hockey match, but tonight's the night, Manager Paul Thompson and the refurbished team like to think, as they contemplate the engagement of the champs and the current tailenders in Chicago Stadium. On Dec. 6, 1942, the Hawks whanged the Canadiens, 5 to 2, and the going in the 28 games between the two outfits since that time has been very bleak for the Chicagoans.

Toe Blake.

Tonight's game will be the sixth between the teams this season and the Hawks are proud, indeed, that they were able to hold the Montrealers to 2 to 1 scores in two of the matches. Things haven't been so bad in Chicago—the scores of the two games in the Stadium having been 4 to 2 and 2 to 1. Rather rough in Montreal, however, 9 to 2, 2 to 1 and, on Jan. 6, 10 to 1. Thus, in the five encounters, the Canadiens have scored on Mike Karakas 27 times; the Hawks foiled Bill Durnan, Canadien goalie, seven times.

Paul Can Dream, Can't He?

Tho the Hawks aren't exactly favorites to win tonight, those who enjoy the best in hockey are expected to forget their Hawk partisanship a little as they watch the operations of the line composed of Toe Blake, Elmer Lach, and Maurice Richard, three linemates who now rank one-two-three in the individual league scoring standings.

Manager Thompson has not conceded Canadien success, especially after the Hawk victory Sunday night over Boston and the workout yesterday. Instead of brooding over those 9 to 2 and 10 to 1 scores in the past performances, Paul prefers to reflect on those two 2 to 1 close ones. He thinks the new team is enough better than the old one to reverse those tabulations.

The new Hawks, no matter how brilliant they skate and shoot tonight, will remain possessed of their heritage from the old Blackhawks—last place. They now are nine points back of the Boston Bruins and seven behind the New York Rangers. Tonight's game will be the first in the second half of the Hawks' season.

Marquette Is Beaten, 79-56, by Irish Five

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 16 [Special].—Notre Dame dealt Marquette its eighth straight basketball defeat here tonight, winning, 79 to 56.

Billy Hassett, Notre Dame's brilliant guard, paced the Irish as they maintained their 63 point per game average. Hassett had a phenomenal shooting average, attempting 15 shots, dropping in 10 baskets, five of which were long shots, and adding two fouls to lead in scoring. The Irish star also played a good floor game, setting up many scoring plays.

22 Game Rule May Hit Senn in Prep Race

BY DAVID CONDON.

Senn High school's Bulldogs, winners of the University of Chicago holiday basketball tournament and pre-season favorites to win the City league senior championship, face disqualification from the league title race by the time they complete their official schedule, Coach Harry Leighton told his squad yesterday.

Leighton, addressing his squad prior to the Senn game with Waller, said that a City league rule provides that no team shall play more than 22 games, including practice contests, and exclusive of league playoffs. He said that because of Senn's success in the Chicago tournament, necessitating the playing of five games, the Bulldogs will have played 23 games by the time they have finished their last scheduled league game. When the team plays its 23d game, he said, it will have violated the league rule and must forfeit all league games. This would leave the Bulldogs with an official record of 10 defeats. The team would be disqualified from league competition for a year, he added.

Coach Admits Error.

The Senn coach said that by admitting his mistake he hoped something might be done about the situation before the end of the season. He declared that it hardly seemed fair to the boys that they should be disqualified from possible city honors merely because of their success in the Chicago meet. Leighton said he was reporting the matter immediately to the school principal and to Albert Shaffner, Senn representative on the board of control of athletics in the public schools.

August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director in the public schools, declined official comment, preferring to wait until the matter was officially called to his attention. He did say that the subject had not come up in previous years, and admitted there existed a rule disqualifying teams playing an excess of games.

Ruling Up to Board.

Pritzlaff said it would be up to the board of control to make a ruling, when the matter was called to its attention, and indicated it was possible some adjustment might be worked out. This, he said, was a matter for the authorities alone.

The Bulldogs lost three of their first eight practice games; then entered the Chicago tournament and defeated Bowen, Crane, South Shore, Wells, and Gage Park, to win the title. Prior to yesterday afternoon Senn had defeated Lake View and Amundsen in north section competition.

The Senn seniors continued in a three way tie for first place in the section by defeating Waller, 73 to 49, after Leighton addressed the Bulldogs.

Expect C.Y.O. Skaters Will Keep Trophy

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Catholic Youth organization skaters, who have won the Walter Eckersall Memorial team trophy in the Silver Skates Derbies for nine years in the last 10, are favored to retain this honor in the 28th annual races sponsored by The Tribune Charities, Inc., Saturday and Sunday at Garfield park. In defense of the title, Vic Ronchetti, C. Y. O. coach and winner of the men's senior Silver Skates Derby in 1937, has entered 72 boys and 13 girls.

C. Y. O. strength is centered in the men's senior, boys' intermediate, and girls' senior divisions. In the first two, C. Y. O. skaters are leading in the point standings for all meets held this winter under sanction by the Illinois Skating association. Lowell Miller, Buddy Solem, and Max Kargol are listed in this order in the senior point standings.

Klemundt Tops Intermediates.

John Klemundt of the C. Y. O., tops the intermediate class for the season with 310 points, while Jerry Fahrenback is fourth behind Dave Roll of Glen Ellyn A. A. A. and Ken Henry of Northwest Skating club. Marion Laise and Luetta Du Mez, C. Y. O. senior girls, are leading contenders for the Silver Skates one mile championship.

Because he recently passed his 16th birthday, Ken Henry now competes in the intermediate division.

Northwest Club Enters 77.

Chris Heckenbach, Northwest Skating club coach, has entered a team of 62 boys and 15 girls in the eight Derbies. Rita Janet, senior; Mixie Kitazaki, intermediate, and Juanita Gatling, junior, are ranking point scorers for the year for Northwest. Miss Gatling is in second position in the class for girls under 16 years of age with 160 points. Barbara Meyer of Glen Ellyn is the division leader.

John Mock of the Henry Playground Skating club has entered 58 in the boys' five Derbies. He rates Henry's best as Robert Holman, Joe Legner, and Frank Matsumoto in the junior Derby, and Richard Legner and Edward Krause in the intermediate Derby.

Other Entries Listed.

Other team entries tabulated yesterday are Garfield park, Eileen Fish, instructor; Altgeld park, Norman Volz, instructor; Mason playground, Dorothy H. Stahl, instructor; Winnemac park, William Mayhercy, instructor; Chapin park, Mary Vigrola, instructor; Davis playground, Norman H. Fossier and Anne Youstra, instructors; Clarke playground, Frank E. Mannott and Antoinette J. Mohar, instructors; Foster playground, A. R. Ackerman, instructor; Holstein park, Olga Singer, instructor, and Perry playground, Arthur Peters, instructor.

Points are not scored by the Illinois Skating association for the Silver Skates Derbies. Points are scored, of course, in all eight Derbies to determine the team champion. Forty-eight major awards, six in each Derby, are offered in addition to gold medals for skaters leading the largest number of laps in the boys' intermediate and senior and girls' senior Derbies.

CAUTIONS WAR COMES FIRST; STEEL GROUP BACKS ATHLETICS

Griffith Views It as 'Green Light.'

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—President Roosevelt today gave baseball the "go ahead" sign for the 1945 season—if it can operate without interfering with the conduct of the war.

At a news conference he said he favors continuation of the game so long as it does not rob the services or essential industry of needed man power. This was accepted by baseball men as the official approval for which they have been waiting for weeks.

But the President left no doubt that it is up to baseball to get along as best it can without using men who can fight or man war essential jobs.

Griffith Hails Stand.

Roosevelt pointed out that he does not think any perfectly healthy young man should be playing baseball in these times.

Nevertheless, baseball felt that the President had befriended the game for the second time during the war. Shortly after Pearl Harbor he took the position that the sport should keep going as a morale builder.

Since War Mobilization Director Byrnes called for reexamination of professional athletes and 4-F's baseball has had the jitters, but the President's comment is expected to dissolve much of this doubt about the immediate future.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, said: "Baseball is pleased that the President has said to go ahead without interference in the war effort."

Sees Chance for Kids.

What caliber of teams the clubs field will "depend on the rejected and returned players that we get," Griffith added.

Most of the teams have a few men above the age limit as well as a handful of "kids about 17 who will have a wonderful opportunity to play in the big leagues," he said.

"I think we can continue all right under Mr. Roosevelt's outline," Griffith declared.

Approximately 500 players, including 223 4-F's, were on the rosters of the two major league clubs last season, but a substantial percentage of these were farmed out to the minors.

Many Turn to War Work.

Army physical standards have not been lowered and it is presumed that some 4-F's will again be rejected upon reëxamination. However, these are expected to go into essential industry.

Many already are taking jobs in war plants and hope to be available for whatever baseball is possible under existing conditions.

Baseball officials have maintained all along that they will put teams on the field, if they have only nine men to a side, unless the government definitely halts play.

The President's encouragement was the third good break for baseball the past few days. A war man power official and the war committee on conventions said that restrictions on lighting and conventions do not apply to sports events.

HARRIDGE IS PLEASED.

In Chicago President Will Harridge of the American league said he was "greatly pleased" with President Roosevelt's statement and declared the sport will carry on with whatever men are available.

In a prepared statement Harridge said:

"We are greatly pleased with the statement made by the President.

"Baseball will carry on with whatever men are available and do the best it can to give the fans a good show."

Chicagoans to Take Plea to Capital.

"Sports above all things must be kept alive while America is at war and no effort must be made to kill the thing men are fighting for both on the battlefront and on the home front."

This was the demand made before 30 prominent steel production and fabricating executives in the Union League club last night by Howard M. Reineman, general manager and founder of Metal Fabricators, Inc., operators of four large Chicago industrial plants.

That Reineman's appeal struck a responsive chord at the meeting was proved when he was named chairman of a committee to carry to Washington an appeal that sports should continue.

Fred Whiting.

Bartholomew O'Toole.

Plan National Drive.

Those who will serve on the committee with Reineman include: Fred Whiting, vice president of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company; Dwight Merrill, Carnegie Steel Company of Illinois; Duane Hicks, Pressed Steel Car company; Thomas Arndt, Modern Fabricating and Welding company; Ben Wilmer, Inland Steel company; B. C. Anderson, Playtime Products company; Bartholomew O'Toole, Pullman-Standard Manufacturing company; and William Weiss, Midland Steel company.

Chairman Reineman announced following the meeting that his committee will take immediate steps to organize a nation-wide move among manufacturing and industrial concerns to champion the cause of war time sports. He continued:

"It is true that we need more man power and we need it badly but on the other hand our present workers need the recreation provided by the field of sport if we hope to continue our production at a high level.

Workers Need Sports.

"We must not overlook the fact," Reineman continued, "that baseball, football, hockey, and boxing are some of the greatest recreational and stimulating forces in our country today. Our workers need sports. Our production charts will show that when we keep men in production on an overtime basis that our output falls, but when we keep them on a regular schedule a high peak is maintained.

"Our big job is to sell the workers themselves on the idea of the important tasks they have before them. In our plant during the past week we have used the services of Beans Reardon, dean of National league umpires, very effectively. Reardon has been addressing our employes during their luncheon periods as well as talking with them while they worked along the production line. He tells workers of his experiences in the Southwest Pacific, where he spent six weeks. He also impresses them with the urgent need of materials in that theater of war."

Baseball Stimulates Production.

Reineman further emphasized the need for the continuance of sports when he said:

"We must take into consideration that in baseball only a few men, altho they may be over age or not qualified for military service, make up sides for a game that will bring relaxation to as many in some instances as 50,000 war workers. Inasmuch as baseball, in some cities, can be played at night this sport will act as a stimulant to war production rather than a hindrance."

Reardon, who followed Reineman on the program kept the interest of his audience at high pitch while relating his experience in the South Pacific.

Sports a Common Ground.

"Those G. Is out where the fighting is pretty tough certainly don't want us to discontinue sports," he said. "Our fighting men do not begrudge civilians anything. They

PETERSON AT 65 SHOWS SOLDIERS BILLIARD TRICKS

Old Time Cue Expert Makes Camp Tour.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

"Show me a billiard shot I can't make!"

This familiar defi is currently being hurled around the town by its originator, a spry, baldish lad of 65 summers whom you may remember as Charles C. Peterson. The veteran trick shot wizard, who can make a billiard ball do nip-ups from an almost inexhaustible fund of stances and strokes, has just returned from a tour of service camps and hospitals which saw him travel more than 100,000 miles since Pearl Harbor, covering all 48 states and several Central American countries.

Pete, whose energy, keen memory, and rapid-fire verbal delivery belie his years, is convinced that billiards of all types will enjoy a tremendous boom after the war, not only on the competitive side, but also in improved conditions in cue-and-ivory establishments. He feels that the quondam pool hall of dubious repute is on the way out.

Charley Cites Reasons.

The anticipated transformation is due to two factors, he allows. One is the interest of service men in the game. They have been given spic-and-span playing conditions in post recreation rooms, U. S. O. headquarters, and the Chicago Service Men's centers, conditions of which the big league academies might well be proud.

Another important factor in postwar billiards will be the collegiate field. It was Peterson himself who induced the larger universities to conduct the first national intercollegiate championships in 1932. The University of Wisconsin, where Porter Butts is director of the student union, was a pioneer in this project.

In 1940 Peterson also arranged a national tournament for co-eds, in which girls from Minnesota, South Dakota State, Utah, Wyoming, and Colorado State College of Education competed.

Peterson's career in billiards followed a term as batboy for the old Milwaukee baseball club, when a young fellow named Connie Mack managed the Brewers. The billiardist was 19 and in a soldier's uniform during the Spanish-American war when he first encountered the man with whom his later billiard activities were to become intertwined for years. The latter, William Frederick Hoppe by name, was a 10 year old prodigy when they met in a special match in Milwaukee in 1898. The youngster trimmed Peter, 250 to 148, making the closing point with a masse shot while kneeling in the center of the table.

Pete Explodes a Legend.

Pete will go to great lengths to puncture that myth about Willie having used a soap box in his more tender years. He insists that Hoppe never used such a box, but would wriggle his tummy onto the table rail, then stroke the ball.

Hoppe and Peterson have toured the country for years, with the latter acting as Willie's trainer. It was Pete who ultimately overcame the New Yorker's antipathy to three-cushions, a field in which Willie went on to win a number of championships.

Peterson, who will give demonstrations at Great Lakes tomorrow and at Gardiner General hospital next Monday, has a repertoire of 600 shots. One of the outstanding stunts is one in which he centers a silver dollar between two pieces of billiard chalk, set about a foot from the shooting end. He then drives the coin out with his cue ball, the dollar running to the opposite end rail, then bouncing back between the two chunks of chalk.

This Stopped Pete!

Another specialty which most of the stars regard as impossible, finds the cue ball frozen to a corner, but not quite frozen to the object ball, which in turn is frozen to the third sphere. The secret of making a three cushion short off of this arrangement is a quick, force-masse.

During his extensive tour of army, navy, and marine posts, Peterson found himself stumped only once. He was due to give an exhibition at the army camp in Plattsburg, N. Y. Pete thought the table looked rather odd, and heard this challenge from his audience, "Let's see you make some shots on that one, Pete!"

He tried a few, but found the balls going at right angles instead of spinning back. Then he discovered that the table had been donated by an old family in the vicinity, and had been built about 1850. The rails were narrower than the average, and were stuffed with horsehair.

NEW DEAL RULE HELD PERIL TO ROAD BUILDING

Asks Local Control to Bar New WPA.

Highway planning must be kept out of the hands of New Deal bureaucrats if the United States is to have adequate roads, Plans must be completed quickly, if post-war construction projects are to stabilize employment. These tenets were expounded yesterday as the American Road Builders' association met in the Stevens hotel to discuss the new 1½ billion dollar federal program that already was being termed inadequate.

"A revived works progress administration, which would squander big sums at the whims and discretions of burocrats, is inevitable after the war unless congress and local officials keep a firm hand on the highway situation," said Rep. Mott [R., Ore.], a veteran member of the house roads committee.

Fund Held Too Small.

Congress will make it mandatory that federal grants be matched by and spent under control of state highway engineers, he said. Three billion dollars would not be too much for the federal program, whereas half that amount was approved last month by President Roosevelt for allocation during the first three post-war years, he pointed out. Larger sums could be obtained, if they were to be given to burocrats to toss about thru a new WPA, he said.

Part of the federal funds, matched by the states, is to be devoted to super-highway construction in Chicago and other large cities.

"We are not prepared for the return of peace," said Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, federal works administrator, who urged early completion of highway and street plans as a means of providing jobs and stabilizing the construction industry.

Fleming said that after the war a works program costing 5 billion dollars annually would be necessary. State and federal aid highway programs will amount to a billion dollars a year. Direct federal expenditures for reclamation, flood control, river and harbor work, public buildings, and similar projects will aggregate another half billion, he said, and another billion of public works has been planned by states, counties, and cities.

Deplores Foreign War Costs.

Public works will be impossible if the United States continues to settle and pay for foreign wars, said Herman A. MacDonald, Massachusetts commissioner of public works and president of the American Association of State Highway Officials. MacDonald was unable to get transportation from New York and his speech was read by Charles M. Upham, engineer-director of the road builders.

"We must chart our course so that never again shall we be drawn into the maelstrom of European and Asiatic wars which we had no part in creating," MacDonald said. "Let us help to keep the peace of the world if we are not called upon to pay three-fourths of the cost or some similar proportion. But let us at the same time remember that we have a nation of our own to look after that nobody else will take care of except for what they can get out of it."

BETTER METHOD LEADS TO RISE IN RETAIL SALES

American industry during the war has improved its methods and efficiency to such extent that retailers during the last three years have sold more goods to more customers than ever before in their history, Lawrence B. Sizer, sales promotion manager for Marshall Field & Co., asserted yesterday. He spoke at the concluding winter conference session of the Newspaper Advertising Executives' association in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Over the last three years, "American production has fed, clothed, and armed a colossal fighting force, and at the same time has provided civilian goods for an increase from retail sales of about 42 billion dollars in 1939, to nearly 64 billions in 1943 and an estimated 67 billions plus in 1944," Sizer said.

SMALL RECEIPTS CUT OPERATIONS IN PORK PACKING

Many pork packers yesterday were forced to reduce plant operations when farm shipments of hogs were reduced again.

Management for some packing companies said their hog butchering the first two days of this week were smallest of the winter. Competition for supplies was exceptionally brisk, with ceiling prices paid for nearly all stock offered.

Top steers rose 25 cents to $17.75, highest since Dec. 26, and within 25 cents of the ceiling which becomes effective Jan. 29. However, the trade for most other cattle was draggy and prices steady.

Sheep and lambs sold slowly at mostly steady prices, altho the lamb top advanced 5 cents to $15.50.

Dealer Views Vary on Floor Trading Rule

Opinions of securities dealers in Chicago were mixed yesterday as to the advisability of a rule prohibiting floor trading in stocks on the New York Stock and Curb exchanges. Such action was recommended by the trading and exchange division of the securities and exchange commission Monday.

The division in a report which surveyed the practice over the last 10 years said curbing of floor trading [trading by members for their own accounts] was required because it resulted in instability and accentuated price trends.

Regards Rules as Adequate.

"I cannot see anything wrong with floor trading as long as it is done under present rules and regulations," one broker said. "This proposal looks like an undercover attempt to regulate and regiment our business under the cloak of immediacy."

Another dealer asserted that any benefits derived by the adoption of the proposed rule would not offset the value of a broader market, saying that the market would be narrowed to a substantial degree. He said he did not believe the SEC would attain the goal it was seeking by prohibiting floor trading.

The loss of "certain cushions" in price fluctuations would result if the rule were put into effect, another broker said. The volume of trading would be smaller, the fluctuations of prices would be larger, and some of the benefits of "in and out" trading would be lost.

Another trader said the rule would tend to lessen the liquidity of the stock market.

Others Defend SEC.

Other security dealers held opposite views to those who thought the rule would be harmful.

"In spite of all the abuse the SEC has received, it has placed our type of business on a much higher plane and has eliminated many abuses experienced before the advent of the SEC," one dealer commented. "It has contributed much to eliminating the gambling feature of our type of business.

"This rule is not going to hurt us. It is a good thing. It has some bad features, but these are not serious. Resulting will be a tendency to the stabilization of prices."

Another dealer agreed that the rule would be constructive; that the SEC's point that price trends were accentuated by floor trading may be true more often than not. He asserted that the SEC currently was thinking "quite constructively."

STEEL OFFICIALS ORGANIZE FIGHT ON ABSENTEEISM

Executives of large steel producing and fabricating companies in the Chicago area named a committee of nine members yesterday to investigate the problem of employe absenteeism and make recommendations for its solution.

The group was named at a meeting in the Union League club after an address by John Reardon, National league baseball umpire, who has just returned from a six weeks' tour of military camps in the Southwest Pacific.

The committee includes Howard M. Reineman, general manager of Industrial Metal Fabricators, chairman; Fred Whiting, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing; William Weiss, Midland Steel; Thomas Arndt, Modern Welding; Ben Wilner, Inland Steel; B. Anderson, Playtime Products; Dwight Merrill, Carnegie-Illinois Steel; Bartholomew O'Toole, Pullman-Standard Manufacturing, and Duane Hicks, Pressed Steel Car.

UNITED AIR PROPOSES TO LOWER PASSENGER FARES BY 10 PER CENT

United Air Lines has proposed reducing passenger fares 10 per cent to bring almost all of its one-way fares below comparable rail and Pullman charges, W. A. Patterson, president, announced yesterday. The cut was in addition to a 5 per cent discount on round trip tickets, government travel, and holders of volume travel plans.

"United's substantial cut in passenger fares is not designed to increase traffic because our loads are virtually capacity now," Patterson said, "but these reductions will pass on to the public the lower fares to which users of air lines are entitled when an air line's financial position enables it to make reductions."

He said the discounts on round trips, government travel, and volume plans "are in line with air line practices before Pearl Harbor when these discounts were effective."

CORN AND OATS DECLINE; OTHER GRAINS UNEVEN

Continued good war news dampened sentiment yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade and grain prices averaged lower in relatively slow trading. At no time were corn and oats futures above Monday's close.

Corn declined ⅝ to ⅞ cent a bushel and oats ⅝ to ¾ cent. Wheat held within a narrow range and closed ⅛ cent lower to ¼ cent higher. Rye was ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher and barley ⅞ cent lower.

Trading in rye futures was large, but commission houses and professional traders alternately bought and sold and prices were erratic. Premiums on choice quality cash rye were reported reduced 2 cents a bushel relative to May because of slow demand.

INSTITUTE NEW COAL SHIPPING BANS IN PINCH

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The government, declaring that stocks of special purpose coals for some war plants are "dangerously low," moved today to ease a "tight" fuel situation.

The solid fuels administration reached agreement with United Mine Workers President John L. Lewis for miners in parts of four states to work two seven day weeks with double time for Sundays.

The SFA at the same time banned shipments of certain eastern bituminous coal to retail yards in these eight states where other coals are available: Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, and Missouri.

RFC Sells Seven Million of I. C. Equipment Liens

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 [Special].—Sale of $7,344,000 of Illinois Central railroad company 3 per cent equipment trust certificates, series U, at 103.814 and accrued interest by Reconstruction Finance corporation to the First Boston corporation, as agents, was announced today. The sale price represented a premium to RFC of $80,080.

Travel Crisis Threatens on Lack of Space

Florida bound winter tourists who ignore warnings of difficult travel on their return trips will face within 60 days a condition dwarfing that of last spring when thousands were stranded for weeks in southern resorts, Chicago office of defense transportation officials warned yesterday.

While return travel does not reach its peak until March and April, already there are more demands for the available space on trains north bound from Florida points. Chicago rail officials, recalling that a year ago the three Chicago railroads were allotted combined sleeping space for 60 persons daily and that more than 600 wanted reservations, foresee at least double the congestion of 1944 when the big return rush starts in March.

Despite announcement of ODT officials early in December that travel space to and from Florida is less than was accorded to civilian travelers a year ago, demand for space on southbound trains out of Chicago is heavy, with hundreds clamoring in vain for train space.

Reservations Sold Out.

Reservations on Chicago and Eastern Illinois trains are now 30 days in advance. Inquiry at the Pennsylvania offices disclosed that all trains are sold out to Feb. 17. Illinois Central ticket agents said reservations for Feb. 17 would be taken, starting at 6 a. m. today. For weeks, all available space has been taken each day by 6:30 a. m. for trains traveling a month later.

J. Monroe Johnson, ODT regional director, had warned early in December that the special trains which brought thousands of "refugee" tourists out of Florida last spring would not be permitted this year and that no plea of emergency would be heeded by those seeking the limited space on north bound trains.

Military Travel Increases.

Making Florida travel situation more critical this year is the greatly increased amount of military travel, which is estimated by railroad officials at nearly 75 per cent of all space, as compared with less than 70 per cent three months ago. This is caused, not only by the many military camps in Florida and other southern states, but also by the increased number of casualties and furloughed soldiers brought back from the European theater of operations, most of whom land in southern states.

WLB ENFORCES UNION IMPOSED FINE FOR STRIKE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—The war labor board directed tonight that a $12.50 union imposed fine be deducted from the pay of 572 employes of the United States Rubber company, Detroit, for engaging in a wildcat strike last October.

Because of the possible explosive effect of the order and the urgent need for tire production, the WLB said it was stationing a representative at the Detroit plant to report to it "concerning any circumstances which might indicate the need for further action by the board in order to assure uninterrupted production."

WLB said that in the event of any further interruption of production the company and the union, the CIO United Rubber Workers, are expected "to take prompt and vigorous disciplinary measures against those responsible."

Nonfarm Employment Gains 459,000 in Month

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—Employment in nonagricultural work rose 459,000 in December to a total of 38,901,000, largest monthly increase in more than two years. Secretary of Labor Perkins said the increase resulted principally from "the new drive to concentrate all available man power on munitions production."

WARD ATTACKS ARMY SEIZURE AS AUTOCRACY

Insists F. D. R. Goes Beyond Powers.

If the seizure by the army on Presidential order of certain properties of Montgomery Ward & Co. is upheld by the courts, then the nation must face the fact that its Constitution has been suspended and the only supreme law left in the land is the will of the President, was the conclusion set forth in a brief filed yesterday on behalf of the company in federal District court.

It was filed in connection with the government's suit for an injunction to restrain officials and employes of the company from interfering with army operation of the seized properties.

Seizure Imperils Constitution.

"The order of seizure is an assertion of autocratic power because it is in the final analysis based upon the claim that the President, as commander in chief, may in time of war make laws by executive decree, punish citizens for acts which congress has never made unlawful, and seize the property of anyone of whose conduct he disapproves," the brief stated.

"If this be so, then the Constitution is suspended in time of war, and the will of the President is the supreme law.

"Ward's submits its case in the confidence that the Constitution and the Bill of Rights still protect the citizens against the concentration of autocratic power in the hands of one man."

Presidential Act Challenged.

The brief set forth at length the company's contention that the President lacked authority, either statutory or constitutional, to order seizure of the properties without process of law, and asserted specifically that the President has no right, in the absence of an act of congress, to seize the property of citizens, even in time of war, outside an actual battle area.

"The practical result of the doctrine implied by the President's order in this case is that the citizen may have his property taken away from him by force without having any opportunity of adequate redress in the courts," the brief said. "He may be deprived of his property by the bayonets of the army, not because he has committed any offense whatsoever against the laws of the United States, not because he has violated the laws of good citizenship as he sincerely interprets them, but simply because the leaders of an antagonistic labor union have called a strike against him.

"Army Rule Supplants Courts."

"Under this doctrine, the Bill of Rights and the fifth amendment to the Constitution are discarded, and the rule of the army is substituted for the rule of the courts and the rule of law."

Again, the brief, in discussing this doctrine, said:

"No greater threat to the liberties of citizens of this nation has ever been presented than the claim that their properties can be taken from them if they refuse to accept the advice or recommendation of the appointees of the President. . . . The seizure of Ward's property was in direct defiance of the will of congress and in complete disregard of the Constitution of the United States."

The single issue, the brief asserted, is whether the President had the statutory or inherent constitutional right to issue the order of seizure.

Commenting upon the inconsistency in the seizure of only part of Ward's properties, the brief said:

"The damage to Ward's extends thruout its business, and is not limited to the seized locations."

Alton Bondholders Propose New Plan of Reorganization

A separate plan of reorganization for the Alton railroad was filed yesterday in United States District court by the protective committee for holders of Alton 3 per cent refunding mortgage bonds. The plan provided for a higher capitalization than was recently proposed to the court by the road's trustee.

Attorneys Arthur M. Cox and Andrew J. Dallstream, representing the committee, said the group holds more than 10 per cent of outstanding refunding mortgage bonds.

Propose 73 Million Capital.

The new plan provided for a capitalization of 73 million dollars, compared with $69,976,781 as suggested by the trustee. It would include 45 million of new bonds and 280,000 shares of no par common stock valued for bookkeeping purposes at 28 million.

Under the plan all cash, materials, property, and franchises of the Alton, including property held under leaseholds from three subsidiary companies, would be converted in fee clear of all liens to the reorganized company or to a new corporation.

When the plan is accepted and new securities distributed and issued, the existing mortgage bonds, notes, and other debts including bonds pledged, would be surrendered to the reorganization managers and the debt would be canceled, mortgage released, stocks canceled, and the lease line companies dissolved;

Would Assume Equipment Debts.

The plan also provided that the reorganized company shall assume all equipment obligations of the road and the trustee.

Distribution of new securities would be:

1. Holders of 3 per cent refunding mortgage bonds due 1949 would receive for each $1,000 bond, together with all interest coupons maturing subsequent to Oct. 1, 1940, $533.62 of first mortgage series A bonds, $426.89 of general mortgage series B bonds, and 5.5327 shares of new no par common stock of the reorganized company.

2. Holders of Joliet and Chicago Railroad company 7 per cent capital stock, $100 par, together with all accrued dividends, would receive for each share $53.36 of first mortgage series A bonds, $42.69 of general mortgage series B bonds, and .5532 shares of no par value common stock.

Provide for Leased Line Stock.

3. Holders of Kansas City, St. Louis, and Chicago Railroad company 6 per cent preferred stock, $100 par, together with accrued dividends, would receive for each share one share of new no par common stock.

4. Holders of Louisiana and Missouri River Railroad company 7 per cent preferred stock, together with all accrued dividends, would receive 1 share of new no par common stock.

5. Interests or equities of all general unsecured creditors whose claims are not entitled to priority over holders of 3 per cent refunding mortgage bonds and holders of common stock would have no value and nothing would be distributed to them.

LAST YEAR'S OUTPUT OF SYNTHETIC RUBBER TOTALS 763,000 TONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—Secretary of Commerce Jones reported today that 763,000 long tons [of 2,240 pounds] of synthetic rubber were produced in the United States in 1944 and asserted that this development of a "vital new industry during the emergency is a credit to the ingenuity and enterprise of American business."

Synthetic production last year was equal to the entire annual rubber needs of the United States in pre-war years, when consumption ran between 700,000 and 750,000 long tons. Jones said production of synthetic rubber can be increased to a million tons a year if necessary.

"Something over 700 million dollars" has been invested in Rubber Service company plants and facilities, Jones said, and production costs in 1944, exclusive of plant amortization, were approximately 33 cents a pound. The cost was kept high by the fact that 60 per cent of the rubber was made from alcohol instead of petroleum. Prior to the war natural rubber cost from 18 to 20 cents a pound.

LOAN COMPANY BOARD PROPOSES TO SPLIT STOCK

Directors of Household Finance corporation yesterday voted to recommend to stockholders at the annual meeting March 12 that common stock be split three for one. Stated value will be $10.

The company has outstanding 722,506 shares [excluding 14,883 in treasury], representing $21,675,180 of common stock capital and approximately $11,150,000 of surplus. The proposed division of the common stock will increase outstanding common shares to 3,167,518, but will involve no change in the capital or surplus accounts. It should promote wider stock ownership and facilitate employe stock purchases, it was said.

If the $1 quarterly dividend, paid on common stock since 1937, should be divided by three, the quarterly dividend on the new shares would be 33⅓ cents, it was pointed out. A dividend in an odd amount is undesirable, it was admitted. If the board declares quarterly dividends of 35 cents per new share for the current year, annual dividends would be equivalent to $4.20 per old share. The additional 20 cents per old share would increase the total dividends by about $145,000 per year.

LESS CHICKEN, MEAT ALLOTTED IN 1ST QUARTER

Predict More Eggs, Cheese, and Milk.

Asks Bigger Output

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16 (AP).—War Food Administrator Jones asked farmers today to plant more acres and produce more live stock this year than in 1944 when output set a record. The appeal reflected prospects for a longer European war than was expected last fall. A revision in 1945 goals from those announced last November called for special emphasis on production of milk and hogs and for increased marketings of beef cattle.

Because of increasing military requirements, the civilian food supply in 1945 will not be as large as during 1944, altho it will be slightly larger than the 1935-'39 average, the war food administration said yesterday in announcing allocations of foods for the first quarter.

Compared with the last quarter of 1944, more milk, eggs, cheese, and citrus fruit will be available to civilians during the three months, but there will be less meat, chicken, fats, and oils, butter, canned fruits and vegetables, potatoes, sugar, and dry beans, WFA said.

More Used Than Before War.

Because of the large demand for food now, even those which actually are more plentiful than before the war may appear to be scarcer, the agency said. Compared with supplies consumed before the war, civilians this year will be drinking much more milk and eating more eggs, meat, chicken, fresh fruits and vegetables, lard, margarine, sirups, honey, and cereal products, but consumption of some foods, notably butter, sugar, dry beans, canned fruits and juices, evaporated milk, and canned fish, necessarily will decline.

WFA listed prospective supplies of those commodities which are allocated as follows:

MEAT—Of a total of 6 billion 82 million pounds of meat available for the quarter, civilians will receive nearly 4 billion 174 million pounds. This is about 15 per cent less than during the last three months of 1944. The decrease will be mostly in veal, lamb, and mutton. Pork supplies will be down slightly, and beef about the same, WFA said.

Chicken Supplies Smaller.

CHICKEN—More than three-fourths of the total supply estimated to be available in the quar-

Has your Will kept pace with these changing times?

IT IS A WISE MAN who reviews his Will frequently. For the effectiveness of any Will may be seriously altered by changing circumstances. Today, under the extraordinary conditions of war, the changes may be even more acute.

Consider your Will, for instance. Has the executor you named been called into Service? Or has he, perhaps, moved to another city where he would not be available immediately should his services be needed? Or have the heavy demands of war deprived him of the time which your affairs may require?

And what about the estate itself? Has it remained constant or has there been some upward or downward shift in the value of the securities, business interests or other assets?

Since either or both of these circumstances, together with increased taxes, can vitally affect you and your family, it will pay you to review your Will at this time with your attorney.

Perhaps you may wish to consider the appointment of this bank as your executor or trustee. The officers of The Northern Trust Company will be pleased to place its 55 years of practical experience in the probating of Wills and in the administration of estates at the disposal of you and your attorney.

STOCKS UNEVEN; LONG WAR TALK STEADIES TRADE

Proposed Floor Trading Ban Is Influence.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—A few rails and industrial specialists advanced in today's stock market, but many leaders were unable to attract substantial support and the close was uneven.

Trends steadied after an easy opening when Prime Minister Churchill warned of a prolonged war until unconditional surrender was obtained. The sweep of the allies on virtually all European fronts remained a sobering influence for speculative sentiment inasmuch as a quick victory would accentuate reconversion problems at home.

Tending to cool bullishness was the move of the securities and exchange commission to abolish floor trading by stock exchange members for their own account. A reflection of this was the sale of a seat for $61,000, off $4,000 from the last transaction on Dec. 4.

BOND MARKET MIXED.

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Alternate periods of recovery and decline resulted in sharply contrasted trends in today's bond market. At one time it looked as if the speculative rails would pull out of the sharply lower curve of Monday, but the group lacked holding power. The Associated Press average lost 0.3 more. Leaders in the industrial and utility sections made a better showing, each ending a little higher with the utilities at a new peak. Sales of $11,526,000 compared with $12,446,700 on Monday.

So thoroly mixed was the trend that bonds of the same company were prominent on both sides at the close. Milwaukee 5s of 1975 and-adjustment 5s each ended a little higher, but the 3½s, 4s, and 4½s were lower. Rock Island refunding 4s retained a fractional advance against losses up to 1½ points for other obligations.

CHICAGO PRICES IRREGULAR.

Prices were mixed and turnover decreased to 50,000 shares yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Among volume leaders were Peabody Coal, up ½; Chicago corporation common, up ½; Asbestos Manufacturing, unchanged, and Butler Brothers, down ¼. Among nine stocks reaching 1944-'45 highs was North West Utilities 7 per cent preferred, up 1½.
